De Gaulle In Kremlin

MOSCOW (Reuters) — President Charles de Gaulle discussed European security and the German problem for three hours today at the start of talks in the Kremlin.

Leonid Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, swept diplomatic protocol aside to talk to the general face-to-face. Normally, as party leader, he does not take part in detailed negotiations with Western visitors.

A French spokesman said the first negotiating session since de Gaulle arrived Monday for an 11-day visit began with an opening statement by Brezhnev, followed by a statement from the French leader.

As they broke up, both de Gaulle and Brezhnev stressed the considerable importance of close consultation between France and Russia, the spokesman said.

The spokesman said de Gaulle told the Russians that his journey to Moscow, his first for 22 years, was in itself a tangible manifestation of France's desire for East - West consultations.

SET EXAMPLE

De Gaulle was quoted as saying that negotiations between countries of West and East were a good thing and that the example should be followed by other European nations, namely that West Germany should have such talks with the Soviet Union.

Russia's leaders were reported to have stressed the desirability of contacts between European nations and France.

Few details of the discussions were released, but the French delegation said the entire morning was taken up by European security and the German problem.

Normally talks with Western visitors are conducted by Premier Alexei Kosygin or President Nikolai Podgorny. Today both took back seats to Brezhnev.

The party leader took complete charge as soon as he strode in at the head of the Soviet delegation to greet the

Shotgun Blast Wounds Australian Labor Chief

CALWELL

Follows Anti-War Meeting

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Opposition Leader Arthur Calwell had his chin cut by glass splinters tonight after a youth fired a shotgun at him through a closed car window.

The Labor party chief, who had just finished speaking at an anti-Viet Nam meeting at a suburban town hall, was reported in satisfactory condition in the hospital after the incident.

A doctor said the 69-year-old Calwell had not been hit by any of the shotgun pellets.

The Labor leader told a reporter as he was placed in the ambulance going to the hospital:

"I'm all right . . . I'm all right. I must get word to my wife that I'm all right."

Calwell was taken on a stretcher into the hospital's casualty reception area for immediate attention.

His chin was heavily bandaged, he looked pale and his eyes were closed.

Peter Westaway, a television station official who arrived on the scene seconds after the incident, said:

"Mr. Calwell, holding a bloodstained handkerchief to his face, called out 'I've been shot, I've been shot'."

Westaway said Labor party supporters who attended the meeting chased and caught a young man.

The windshield of Calwell's car was shattered, Westaway said.

"Most of the crowd had dispersed from the meeting when the incident occurred," Westaway said.

Police who were at the meeting had also left.

"I was in the foyer of the hall when I heard an explosion.

"I raced outside and saw Calwell standing on the footpath."

Police were questioning a man about the shooting.

Calwell has been leader of Australia's federal Labor party since 1960, after being deputy leader for nine years.

As a member of the Labor government after the Second World War, he served in the posts of minister for information and for immigration.

His leadership of the party has been under attack and only recently, he had to fight hard to retain the position against a strong bid led by the party's deputy leader, Gough Whitlam.

KY MOVES IN

Fasting Buddhist Seized

SAIGON (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's South Vietnamese soldiers seized the extremist Buddhist leader Thich Tri Quang in his hospital room in Hue today. The slight, robed monk walked out of the building on the 14th day of his hunger strike.

With the four-month Buddhist uprising crumbling under the military junta's firmness, Tri Quang's chief rival, the moderate Thich Tam Chau, appealed to Ky to "assure the life and liberty of the Venerable Tri Quang and all other monks who led the struggle" against the regime.

A police officer in Hue said that Tri Quang, 42, had been put in protective custody to shield him from the Viet Cong.

The government's action against the chief of the Buddhist struggle movement showed its confidence that it had all but smashed the militant Buddhist minority's campaign for an immediate restoration of civilian rule.

In Saigon, troops and police kept several hundred monks and their followers bottled up inside the Buddhist Institute for the fourth day despite their plea to the International Red Cross that they faced epidemic and starvation.

SEES VICTORY

After four days of talks with Ky and other government leaders, Lord Walston, Britain's under secretary for foreign affairs, told newspapermen he foresaw a military victory for the allies within 12 months.

Lord Walston's prediction echoed one made by Ky on the first anniversary of his rule Sunday, but Walston added: "I cannot see a real building up of a peaceful democracy here for a very long time indeed."

He said the shooting and bombing "will slowly fade away" and the number of terrorist incidents gradualy decline. He said North Viet Nam had become convinced it could not win a military victory but he saw no imediate prospect that Hanoi would sue for peace.

On a strip of beach along the Mekong Delta south of Saigon, U.S. seamen unloaded 250 tons of Chinese-made arms and ammunition from a gun - running trawler intercepted Monday as Viet Cong sampans were about to pick up the cargo. U.S. military authorities said it was probably the biggest arms prize of the war.

The trawler, which bore no markings, was believed to have come from the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong. The crew fled with the guerrillas after a battle with U.S. Coast Guard cutters, planes and helicoters.

LED REBELION

Tri Quang had led the Buddhist rebellion in the northern provinces and was a leader in agitation against previous governments, including the regime of the late president Ngo Dinh Diem. Some American officials think his ultimate objective is establishment of a Buddhist state that could make a deal with the Communists and expel the Americans.

He began the hunger strike June 8, when the rebellion began faltering, vowing to take only liquids until the United States withdrew its support of

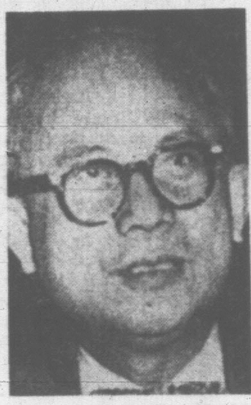
NEW VIET WAR PEACE DRIVE

MANSFIELD BACKS U THANT

MANSFIELD
. . . 3-point plan



THANT
. . . would halt bombing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called on UN Secretary-General U Thant today to take the lead in a new effort to arrange Viet Nam peace talks.

Mansfield said he believes a three-point plan renewed by U Thant at a United Nations press conference Monday would get "every consideration from President Johnson" if there was some sign the Communists might accept it.

Thant proposed a cessation of U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam, scaling down of military operations by both sides and a willingness on the part of all concerned to enter discussions with all participants in the fighting. However, Senator Gale W. McGee (Dem., Wyo.), a strong supporter of Johnson's Viet Nam course, said in a separate interview he thinks Thant's proposal has "a hollow ring to it."

"We've tried stopping the bombing before and it didn't invite any response," McGee said. "On the contrary, the enemy used the lull to intnestify their efforts."

UN Chief Will Visit Moscow

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—UN Secretary-General U Thant plans to visit Moscow later this summer, diplomatic sources reported today. The Viet Nam conflict, which he described Monday as "one of the most barbarous in history," is expected to be a major topic in his talks with Soviet leaders.

Informed quarters said Thant received an invitation some time ago to visit Moscow and he has recently accepted it. The time of the visit is understood to be under discussion.

Thant was asked at a UN correspondents' luncheon Monday whether he believed a visit by him to Moscow would be useful. He replied that "a visit by the secretary-general to any capital of any member state at any time is sure to be useful."

He mentioned no plans to go to Moscow, but word began to circulate later that such a visit is being arranged.

Wilson Charges Reds Prolonging Ship Strike

By JIM ANDERSON

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson rocked Parliament and the striking seamen's union Monday with the charge that Britain's shipping strike is being prolonged by Communists who want to damage the nation.

He didn't use the word "Communist" but there could be no mistake about the meaning of the carefully-chosen words in his statement to Parliament on the shipping strike, now in its fifth week.

He said a tightly-knit group of "politically-motivated men" had put pressure on "a select few" of the 48-member national executive of the seamen's union, who "in turn have been able to dominate the majority of that otherwise sturdy union."

Sources said later that the government did not believe any of the executive were Communists, but that a Communist group was meeting regularly and dictating strike policy to the executive with the threat that any show of weakness would mean defeat in union elections.

PLANS AIRLIFT

Wilson told Parliament: "This group holds views which failed to secure any representation in this House at the last election, but their backstage views have had effect."

He also said plans were being made for a Royal Air Force airlift to deliver important exports and carry backed-up mail to Northern Ireland. The Royal Navy would be used to get supplies to outlying islands.

WILSON

The prime minister, who has been rebuffed by the seamen in his personal attempts to win a settlement, called William Hogarth, general secretary of the union, to a meeting at 10 Downing St.

Hogarth is believed to be a moderate, and Wilson is said to have urged him to take a stronger lead in the union executive.

Hogarth's only comment on the meeting and Wilson's statement was that it indicated a toughening attitude by the Labor government.

Militants among the seamen quickly rejected the charges and said it was the prime minister who was turning a strike over economic issues into a political struggle.

RED REPLIES

John Gollan, general secretary of the British Communist party, accused Wilson of "McCarthyite smears and innuendos" against leaders of the seamen's union.

In a statement after Wilson made his Commons speech, Gollan said the 36,000 - member Communist party opposes the government's wage - restraint policy as "a barefaced fraud" and blames Britain's economic difficulties on "crippling military expenditures at home and abroad."

The rest of Britain's trade union movement has largely sided with the government in calling on the seamen for a settlement. But chances of a serious split in the sailors' ranks seemed slight after votes Monday at six major ports supported the executive.

A secret ballot among the seamen has been suggested, but Wilson said it would be difficult. More than half the union's 63,000 members are still at sea in ships that won't be laid up until they reach British ports.

Copper Cleared

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Rhodesia railways today gave the all-clear for some 16,000 tons of Zambian copper exports, held up for weeks in Rhodesia by a payments dispute, to move on to Mozanbique ports. The copper is worth about $28,000,000.

Strike Call Flops

ROME (Reuters)—A three-day Italian engineering strike, expected to affect nearly 1,000,000 workers, met only partial success on its first day today. The Fiat auto plant in Turin, Italy's biggest private employer, announced that 98.3 per cent of its staff reported for duty.

Two Die From Gas

CALGARY (CP)—Police today blamed lack of oxygen in a small basement apartment where a gas stove was burning for the deaths of two Vancouver teen-agers. The victims, found dead Monday afternoon, were identified as James William Owenn, 17, and Lynn Fursse-donn, 16. The couple came here from Vancouver Thursday.

BITTER BATTLE RAGES FOR JUNGLE HIDEOUT

SAIGON (AP)—American paratroops smashed today into a jungle hideout in South Viet Nam where 500 Viet Cong guerrillas threw up a bitter defence from log bunkers and criss-cross tunnels.

At last report a pitched battle had been raging for 36 hours and 69 guerrillas were known killed.

Some 2,000 or more men of the 101st Airborne Division and the helicopter-borne 1st Cavalry Division were battling the Viet Cong in the jungle highlands of Phu Yen province, about 15 miles north of the American coastal enclave at Tuy Hoa.

It was the second major action for the 101st Airborne in two weeks. From June 7 to June 14 the paratroops battled North Viet Nam's 24th Regiment on the Kontum plateau, 120 miles northwest of Tuy Hoa, and estimated they killed more than 1,000 of the 1,400 to 2,000 troops opposing them.

UNCOVERED FOR SECOND TIME IN 342 YEARS

Nun's Body Preserved by Legendary 'Miracle'?

By ROY FERGUSON

MADRID (Reuters) — The body of a Roman Catholic nun who died 342 years ago is being medically examined here because of a legend that says it has remained undecayed through the centuries by a miracle.

The body, about four feet, six inches tall, has been on public display in a chapel since Friday—the face covered by a thin veil and only the shrivelled, dark brown hands and feet showing from beneath a white shroud

Thousands of persons have filed into the chapel to view the body of the Blessed Mariana of Jesus, who was mother superior of the convent of Don Juan de Alarcon in central Madrid.

An official medical report, expected to be made public sometime this week, was being prepared to find out whether a miracle has occurred.

According to local legend, the nun's body gave off a sweet fragrance when she died and she was said to have had visions of the Virgin Mary during her later years in the convent.

Centuries ago, Spanish church officials asked the Vatican to have her named a saint but there was no decision.

Now a new petition is to be made to the Vatican if the medical report indicates that a miracle has taken place, church officials said.

The body was removed from its sealed coffin above a side altar at the convent Friday Thant was asked at a UN cortained.

It had been removed from the coffin once before—in 1924. Two nuns who were present then attended the removal last week.

They told doctors the body was in the same state as when they saw it at its first removal.

A spokesman for the convent said the body's eyes were intact but the face was badly distorted.

When the report has been completed, the body will be transferred to Madrid Cathedral for veneration and by the end of this week will be sealed back in the coffin.

Whether it has decomposed will be weighed in the church's official acceptance of the existence of a miracle, a determining factor in cases of canonization.

PATHFINDERS LOST

Wrong-Way Cyclists Climb Mount Newton

An eager party of 32 young Portland cyclists went on a wild mountain goat chase when they misunderstood directions for their Thetis Lake park tenting grounds and pumped up Mount Newton.

'It must have been a mile high," said one 16-year-old member of the Portland Pathfinders, a church group which landed here Sunday for its fifth annual camping and bicycling holiday in Victoria.

But the 1,000-foot Mount Newton is just a bump in the road compared to their plans for the 2,400-foot Mount Constitution on Orcas Island on Wednesday.

The Pathfinders, most of them under 20, brought their bikes in trailers as far as Anacortes and have used pedal-power since.

SMALLER WAISTS

Outing leaders Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Montgomery explain the youngsters have been eating heartily so far.

Seventh Day Adventists, they eat no meat, depend on fresh fruit and vegetables for mountain-climbing a la two-wheeler.

Encouragement, Subsidy Offered School Pageant

DUNCAN—Cowichan School Board will offer "encouragement and subsidy" to local schools to present a centennial pageant.

Trustee Wilf Peck suggested Monday this might be better than students "tapping Dad," for contributions to a province-wide scheme.

However, the board decided to investigate both ideas.

Mr. Peck said the provincial suggestion is for B.C. students to present one of the sister Commonwealth countries with a tangible centennial gift—such as a vocational school.

School principals will be asked to find out student reaction.

. . . AND A TIGER FOR NAPOLEON BONAPARTE

MOSCOW (UPI)—President Charles de Gaulle took time out from his rounds of political talks today to cheer the Russians in Russian.

During a visit to Moscow's city hall where he was received by Mayor Vladimir Promyslov, De Gaulle stepped to a balcony on the front of the building and hailed the crowd below.

There was a cloudburst but De Gaulle ignored it as he stood on the balcony hatless and coatless and shouted:

"Da Zdravstvuyet Moskva!" (Long Live Moscow).
"Da Zdravstvuet Moskvichi!" (Long Live Muscovites).
"Da Zdravstvuyet Rossiya!" (Long Live Russia).
"Da Zdravstvuyet Druzhba!" (Long Live Friendship).

The crowd cheered each phrase.

WOULD-BE-WEDS

Would You Believe Hempseed at Midnight

By TERRY IZZARD

Girls!

Looking for a husband?

Men!

Want to get rid of your mother-in-law?

If so, tonight could be your lucky night.

The would-be-weds should go down to the churchyard around midnight and scatter hempseed along the ground (corn won't do).

CHANT-ALONG

While doing this the prospective bride must chant:

Hempseed I sow, hempseed
I mow,
He that will my true love be Come rake this hempseed
after me.

All being well, the future husband will be seen following her, mowing or eating the seed.

The mother-in-law haters must sit on the porch of the parish church and watch the ghosts of all the parishioners filing in.

If ma-in-law's among them and she fails to come out, it means she's going to die in the next year.

Nonsense?

Not at all.

Anything can happen on the first day of summer.

EUROPEAN CUSTOMS

These are just two of the ancient European customs connected with the longest day of the year (which was today for the benefit of Victorians who never saw the sun).

For those who don't want a spouse, there's plenty of other customs for passing away the long day.

A great favorite is witch burning and dragon hunting (somehow mother-in-law can't keep out of this).

Your neighbors won't appreciate this but the fires should preferably be built of old bones and rotting vegetation.

EVIL SMELL TOO

That way, the stink will keep the evil spirits away.

If your vegetable garden's been sadly lacking recently, try jumping through the flames. The higher you jump, the higher your crops will grow.

Local dairy farmers should try passing their cows through the flames—the sun will be very pleased with that.

Not to forget loggers, who, if they follow the example of their Finnish brothers, will assemble along the Sooke River for all-night logging sports.

Most obvious custom of all is sunbathing.

But what man in his right mind would try that in Victoria in June?

BROAD POWERS to run the country until general elections restore democracy to Indonesia were conferred on army chief Lt.-Gen. Suharto today. But the Provisional Peoples Consultative Congress did not set a deadline for the elections. President Sukarno retains his title and little else under the change.

French leader in the Kremlin's Catherine Hall.

De Gaulle's theme of one Europe from Atlantic to the Urals was echoed today by Moscow radio. A French-language broadcast said:

'NEED NO BLOCS'

"There is only one Europe in the world. For centuries in the history of mankind its lands have been ravaged and devastated. Latins, Scandinavians, Germans, Slavs have no need of military blocs. They need peace to work, to help each other and live in friendship."

In talks with his Russian hosts de Gaulle was expected to expound his theories on how France and the Soviet Union could work together for European unity and security.

In a Kremlin banquet speech Monday night, de Gaulle set the tone for his talks by calling on Russia to join France in breaking the "harmful spell" of confrontation between East and West.

"Without ignoring the essential role that the United States has to play" in the world, he said, France thinks that the first condition for world progress "is the re-establishment in Europe of fertile unity instead of having Europe paralysed by sterile division."

It is up to France and the Soviet Union to start trying to solve European problems, particularly the problem of Germany, he said.

Podgorny, also speaking at the banquet, said he is convinced France and the Soviet Union can agree on the situation in Europe and other areas "especially those where the flames of war are raging today." He obviously meant Viet Nam.

Walk Proves Uneventful

LOUISE, Miss. (AP) — The Mississippi marchers ended their most uneventful and longest day's trek—17 miles—late Monday and pitched their three tents on the hardpacked ground of a big hog lot on H. L. Montgomery's farm outside this community of 481 persons.

The New York Committee for the James H. Meredith March said 43 persons had registered to fly to Mississippi Friday night to join the final two days of the march to Jackson. The committee said it expected 100 more.

Thich Tam Chau, the relatively moderate chairman of the Buddhist Institute, has tried to cool off Tri Quang and his extremist followers. He fled the institute compound on the outskirts of Saigon last week when the monks there rejected his appeals for a truce with the government and an end to such tactics as Buddhist family altars in the streets to obstruct traffic.

In a telegram to Ky, Tam Chau asked the premier to remove the troops from the institute area "in order to create an atmosphere of unity and understanding."

Informed sources said Tam Chau has been meeting privately with Ky to work out a solution between the government and the Unified Buddhist Church, an organization of about 1,50,000 Buddhists which conducts its secular activities through the Buddhist Institute.

Brilliant Student Awarded Degree Posthumously

A former Shawnigan Lake student, who died after a traffic accident in Vancouver in April, will receive his bachelor's degree posthumously from the University of British Columbia.

James Ruggles Macdonell, 21, would have been given his degree at a convocation ceremony next week.

Accounted brilliant by his professors at the university, Macdonell had been nominated for a $2,500 Woodrow Wilson fellowship before his death.

He was the grandson of the former manager of the Victoria branch of the Huron and Erie Mortgage Company, Joseph W. Ruggles, who died in 1959, and the son of a former Victoria Times' staff writer, Elizabeth Ruggles.

Macdonell was an honors graduate at Shawnigan Lake School in 1961. He had been in an honors philosophy program at UBC.

His friends at the university have started a memorial fund to establish a scholarship in his name to be awarded to a UBC philosophy student.

B.C. Treatment Centre Needed Says Saanich

Sanich will press the provincial government to establish a treatment centre locally for emotionally-disturbed children.

Other area municipalities are also considering such a resolution brought forward by the Greater Victoria juvenile detention home committee. The city has already given its backing.

Coun. Edith Guning said the committee is "alarmed" at the number of emotionaly-disturbed children coming to the juvenile detention home.

"We feel there should be more of an attempt to rehabilitate some of these children," she said.

OBVIOUS NEED

"There is an obvious need for long-term residential treatment."

Lack of such facilities had forced authorities in some cases to send children to Eastern Canada or the United States "at the greatest expense."

Reeve Hugh Curtis suggested it might be incorporated with the proposed retarded children's hospital in Saanich.

Coun. Gunning replied that Woodlands School for the Retarded in New Westminster already has a waiting list.

Billboard On Safety Rejected

Saanich said no Monday to a proposed safety sign measuring 28-by-eight feet suggested by the Kiwanis Club of Saanich.

"Billboards are a nuisance and do nothing to enhance the beauty of any municipality," said Coun. Leslie Passmore.

"If we allow one we will have to allow others. I'm not criticizing their efforts but I do criticize the billboard."

Council suggested the Kiwanis work with the police department in its safety program.

The big billboard would have shown a life-size policeman holding a child with the words: Safety is in your hands. Accident figures would be posted on the sign.

Book Prizes for Leading Students

Local students who ranked top in their grade 11 social studies classes have been awarded book prizes by the Ss Beaver Kiwanis Club.

The books are on Canadian history, also the subject of the grade 11 course.

Winners, one from each senior secondary school are Catherine Reiner, Victoria; Gilbert Chew, Oak Bay; Robert Partridge, Mount Douglas; Peter Lawrie, Mount View, and Pamela King, Esquimalt.

The students will be treated to breakfast Thursday morning with their school principals at the club's regular meeting.

The book prizes are part of the Ss Beaver Kiwanis Club's centennial project.

Windows They Clean, Carpets They Dirty

They have clean windows at Victoria City Hall these days.

They also have dirty water-stained carpets in the second-storey offices fronting on Douglas Street.

Officials said a firm hired to clean the windows on a "one-shot" deal used a high-pressure gadget to wash the dirt of six months from the panes.

On new windows, sealed tight against the weather, the jet worked fine. But on the ancient frames in the older section of the building the power proved too much.

Several department heads entered their inner sanctums Monday to find soggy puddles on the carpets and many a window-ledge-filed report a saturated mess.

City manager Dennis Young said the firm would be asked to make a financial adjustment to cover the as yet unestimated damage.

Six months ago it was suggested that city staffers take over the window-cleaning chore. The suggestion was rejected by council.

Since then private firms have shown a reluctance to meet normal City Hall specifications for the cleaning contract.

Last week, after public criticism, a private firm was hired to spruce up the windows on the one-wash basis.

The long-term problem as to who gets the permanent job remains unsettled.

Zoning Keeps Council Busy

Saanich council rejected six proposed zoning changes Monday night.

At the same time, it approved a meeting hall and administration centre zone for the Saanich New Democratic Party after an assurance by the solicitor it could not be used for dances.

Rejected by council were:

- Hairdressing operation, 2620 Killarney;
- Boarding and breeding kennels, 5087 Del Monte;
- Kindergarten, 305 Cadillac;
- Three-storey apartment, 1711-1731 Cedar Hill Cross Road;
- Three-storey apartment, 1753 Blair;
- Truck depot for Farmer Construction, Oak Street;

HEARINGS

Council called for public hearings into applications for a commercial swimming pool, southeast corner of McKenzie and Glanford, and office use by the Saanich Peninsula Credit Union at the old Royal Oak municipal hall.

Referred to lands and planning committee was an application for a trailer campsite at the northwest corner of Sayward and Lochside.

Among new applications received by Saanich were ones for a swimming pool on the west side of Shelbourne between Derby and Knight and a handicapped children's clinic at the northwest corner of Arbutus and Haro.

U of O Degrees For 2 Victorians

Two Victorians received post-graduate degrees recently at commencement exercises at the University of Oregon, Eugene, Ore.

Bryan James Wain Gray received a master of science degree. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Gray, 523 Oliver.

A doctor of philosophy degree was awarded at the same time to Stanley Arthur Perkins, also of Victoria.

One-Year Agreement On Library

Central Saanich should approve the new intermunicipal library agreement on a one-year basis, Reeve Gordon Lee said today.

But the agreement should be amended next year to allow Central Saanich to have a representative on the library board, he stated.

He also wants the board to provide the municipality with a small library as soon as possible.

Approval of a new library agreement has been delayed because municipalities have disagreed on voting powers on the board.

OUT-OF-DATE

"The voting system on the board is out of date," said the reeve. "Some changes should be made in 1967."

Central Saanich, he said, should be allowed a representative on the board with the power to vote on all policy matters. Municipalities with larger populations would vote on both policy and financial matters.

"This is the way library boards operate on the mainland," said the reeve. "Voting on financial matters is based on a population basis, but all representatives vote on policy matters."

CAMPBELL WHACKED AGAIN

Letter Called 'Incredible'

A letter from Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell to all B.C. municipalities was termed "incredible" Monday night by Esquimalt Reeve Ray Bryant.

The letter instructed the municipalities to accept the lowest bid on contracts, Reeve Bryant told council members.

"It's just an incredible letter. There's no other way of putting it.

"Obviously we have to judge for quality; the lowest tender is not always the lowest in fact," the reeve said.

Greater Victoria municipalities have for years stipulated that the lowest tender is not necessarily accepted when calling tenders, he said.

It was incredible that Mr. Campbell wasn't aware of this practice, "carried out by everyone, including his own department," Reeve Bryant stated later.

"We've been trying through the usual diplomatic channels to find out the reason for the letter, "but haven't yet been able to discover it, he told council.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The showers which were falling throughout coastal areas this morning were to end early this afternoon along the south coast and begin again late this evening. The interior will have variable cloudiness and scattered afternoon showers or thundershowers today and Wednesday. The flow of moist cool air will continue over the province for the next few days with a band of showers passing across southern B.C. on Wednesday.

IN MONTREAL

Walkout Stalls Rail Loadings

MONTREAL (CP) — The movement of freight from the Montreal's waterfront sheds to railway cars remained stalled today, as some 600 freight handlers employed by the CPR and CNR continued their strike.

Some 200 men, members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees (CLC), left their jobs Friday night and some 400 others joined the walkout Monday.

A group of men showed up for work early today, but when the usual muster roll didn't take place, they left for a nearby union hall.

The latest walkout on Montreal waterfront started the day after 4,250 longshoremen here and in two other Quebec ports—Trois-Rivieres and Quebec city—had returned to work after a 39-day strike.

The latest dispute arose when the railway freight handlers demanded a new contract which would guarantee them payment of time-and-a-half rates after 7 p.m. weekdays and all day Saturday with double time being paid for Sunday work.

Under their current agreement the railway workers receive time-and-a-half rates for overtime work during the day and a 27-cent hourly shift differential for night work.

Overtime work for the railway employees has become a necessity in an effort to clear the huge backlog of cargo which arrived during the longshoremen's walkout.

Normally the railways employ 40 gangs of 32 workers each on duty at one time, but this number has been greatly increased to handle the excess cargo.

Sleepy Linda Irritates Cameramen

MADRID (Reuters) — Angry Spanish photographers caused a furore in front of the Spanish royal palace today while waiting for President Johnson's eldest daughter to arrive. But Lynda Bird Johnson slept through the whole thing.

The shouting photographers laid down their cameras in protest after being told by an official of the palace that they could not go inside.

Lynda, who arrived in Madrid shortly after dawn for a vacation in Spain, was too worn out to appear. A spokesman for the U.S. embassy said she was sleeping in her room at the ambassador's residence.

Earlier, at Madrid's airport, she had said with a broad smile, in answer to a reporter's question, that she had no marriage plans. Her constant boy friend in the U.S. is movie actor George Hamilton.

U.S. GRABS BAIL BOND OF MINING MAGNATE

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—A $10,000 bail bond posted on behalf of Canadian mining magnate John Christopher Doyle was seized by the U.S. government Monday, since Doyle has failed to serve his prison sentence.

Doyle was supposed to appear in U.S. District Court last July 15, nearly a year ago, to be taken into custody. He had been sentenced to three years, sentence to be suspended after three months, for sending unregistered stock of Canadian Javelin Limited, a Newfoundland iron ore firm, through the U.S. mails.

The violation is not an extraditable offence, and no action can be taken against Doyle as long as he stays outside the United States.

NATO Playing 'A Vital Role'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara said today the pressures for cutting U.S. forces in Europe are legitimate and must be seriously considered.

But he said the United States has no plans to reduce its European combat capability "in the present circumstances." And he told senators worried that U.S. military strength is being spread too thin:

". . . The United States is capable of maintaining its combat capability in Europe while continuing to meet planned troops deployments to Southeast Asia."

McNamara testifies before Senator Henry M. Jackson's subcommittee on national security today.

In his prepared statement he said NATO "is not a military hangover from a different period." He praised its potential for playing "a vital role" in Europe's political evolution and said France's moves "will be in no way disabling" to the alliance's military posture.

The moves forced by France's decision to pull out of NATO's military structure will only cause "some short-range destruction, inconvenience and expenditure."

PIRATES SACK TOWNS— GET $280,000

MANILA (Reuters)—Armed pirates invaded two coastal towns in the southern Philippines during the weekend and fled with about 100,000 pesos ($280,000) in cash and valuables, according to reports reaching here today.

Meanwhile, The Philippine Navy announced plans to organize an anti-piracy task force to curb the activities of pirates attacking coastal towns and foreign vessels docked in the country's ports.

Every Soldier Can Have His Say . . . "If"

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer said Monday any soldier can deliver a public speech if he asks permission first.

In a Commons reply to J. Patrick Nowlan (PC — Digby-Annapolis - Kings), the Liberal minister said the chief of the defence staff is the one to give permission.

Mr. Nowlan complained about a June 10 speech in the capital by Air Vice - Marshal Edwin Reyno.

The officer made remarks strongly supporting the command integration of the Canadian forces.

Mr. Nowlan said he objected to the principle of a ranking officer making a speech on such a controversial government policy.

JET BOMBERS IN MID-AIR CRASH

Flaming Death Hits Homes

HAMPTON, Va. (AP)—A U.S. Marine Corps bomber, aflame colliding with another jet, hurtled into a suburban neighborhood of small frame homes Monday night, all but devastating a three-block area. The other plane fell harmlessly into Chesapeake Bay.

There were conflicting reports on how many residents were killed, ranging from two or three to eight. Forty were injured and 11 remained in hospital.

Six to eight of the modest, two-bedroom homes were demolished and an estimated 20 others damaged to some degree in the housing development near Buckroe Beach, a summer playground on the bay.

The two-seater A-6 Intruder attack bomber plowed into the development from the south at 8:57 p.m. Seconds earlier, it had collided at 400 miles an hour with another Intruder at 2,000 feet.

All of the four marines aboard the two aircraft ejected safely and landed near the second bomber in Chesapeake Bay off Norfolk. Three were picked up by a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter, the fourth by a private boat.

MISS CENTRE

The crash occurred not far from the big Fordham shopping centre and the homes of many air force and army men from nearby Langley Air Force Base and Fort Monroe.

Witneses said the aircraft came down at a 45-degree angle just off Sergeant Street, where its engine buried itself in a deep crater.

The wings and portions of the flaming fuselage continued on—with parts of the fuel tanks—for two blocks, mowing down homes as they went and setting some of them on fire. Bits of the plane were found 15 blocks away at the shopping centre, where a wheel plunged through the roof of a bowling alley and injured three persons.

The marine bombers, out of Cherry Point, N.C., were en route to Patuxent River, Md., and had left their Cherry Point base at 6:30 p.m. The Fleet Marine Force Atlantic said it had no immediate explanation for the collision and that the planes were on a routine weather mission.

'Second-Best' Effort, Says Grit Leader'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ray Perrault, provincial Liberal leader, Monday described the government's voter registration campaign now being publicized as a "second-best effort" and said B.C. urgently needs a complete house-to-house emuneration.

Nothing less, he said in a statement, would make certain that all those entitled to vote were registered.

He said almost 500,000 people have moved to B.C. in the last 10 years. In addition "we are in the vacation season when thousands of people will be absent from their places of residence and unaware of the need to register voluntarily."

"By itself a publicity campaign directed to those not on the present outmoded voters list cannot result in satisfactory voter registration throughout the province."

Mercedes-Benz and safety: a story of rigid roofs, folding ends, swinging axles, $44 tires and $15 locks.

SAFETY? Consider the Mercedes-Benz 230S. If we shaved a few inches off the roofline, prettied up the dashboard and steering wheel, and softened the seats, the car would certainly have more showroom appeal.

But such changes affect safety—and our engineers will not yield on these matters.

SAFE AT SPEED: Mercedes-Benz refuse to install sofa-soft springs that compromise safe roadholding. Any Mercedes-Benz can be driven around a racing circuit flat out, in utter safety.

There's no need to substitute "heavy duty" parts, either; all parts are "heavy duty". (Tires on the 230S, for example, cost $44 each.)

ROADHOLDING: The unique Mercedes-Benz low-pivot swing axle started life in a world champion racing car. Its virtues will become instantly apparent the first time you are forced to swerve abruptly, brake savagely or corner quickly.

BRAKES: Among experts, Mercedes-Benz cars are renowned for their stopping power. The reason? Impeccable engineering from the ground up—tires, suspension system, weight distribution.

The brakes themselves (disc up front, huge drums at the rear) would stop a car of twice the weight. Front and rear brakes have separate systems (if one set fails, you still stop).

HIGHWAY FATIGUE ITEMS: Most car buyers plump for soft seats. Mercedes-Benz seats are undeniably firm.

A liability in the showroom, these seats are a blessing on the highway. Orthopedic surgeons designed them to give firm support to the knees, shoulders, back and bottom. They keep you fresh, alert—and superbly comfortable.

In a Mercedes-Benz, instruments are placed where they can be seen at a glance. They are legible; they are shrouded to kill glare. All to reduce eyestrain.

Fresh air is constantly circulated, and stale air exhausted, to stave off drowsiness. Even tiny harmonic vibrations, inaudible and unfelt, are tuned out, since they dull the senses.

APPEARANCE: Styling purists say the 230S sits too high. Mercedes-Benz retorts that the driver sits high, with a commanding view of the highway. He can also see all four corners of the car without craning.

The 230S steering wheel is indelicate, too. But decidedly functional. Smaller, thinner wheels are less comfortable to grip. And more tiring.

FOLDING ENDS: In a head-on crash, the front end of a Mercedes-Benz will fold. It will act as a shock absorber, to cushion impact. If you are hit from the rear, the back end will crumple.

Tests show that up to nine tenths of the force of impact is dissipated by this patented "folding body" system.

Between the shock-absorbing ends is an incredibly strong passenger area. Roof supports, for example, are built with the strength of a roll bar on a racing car. (The pictures above were taken during a test of this principle.)

CAREFUL PACKAGING: In a Mercedes-Benz anything that can cause injury is either recessed, flexible, generously padded, or made of special soft metal.

The windshield will pop out in a crash, away from the occupants. The rear-view mirror is spring-mounted. Impacts over 16 lbs. spring it loose.

One thing won't give way, though—the door locks. Their safety-cone design stops the doors from springing open during a crash. These locks cost $15 each.

Nobody sees or admires $60 worth of locks. They are simply part of the hidden value in a Mercedes-Benz.

Come in and drive one soon.

'NO CAUSE FOR ALARM' FRANCE ASSURES CANADA

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA —There should be no cause for alarm among the western allies over General de Gaulle's visit to Moscow, Canada's secretary of state for external affairs Hon. Paul Martin was assured at the Brussels NATO meeting by French spokesmen.

The Canadian government was somewhat concerned over the scheduled visit by the French president. Mr. Martin while in Brussels took the opportunity to sound out his good friend the French Foreign Minister Couve De Murville. He was reassured by these conversations, it was learned here today.

The Canadian minister is on the record as stating that he believes improvement in East-West relationships should be done in consultation. He made clear that in taking this position Canada is not meaning to imply any criticism of General de Gaulle's visit to Moscow at this time. Any head of government has the right of going to other capitals, including the Soviet Union and many of them have exercised that right.

However the Canadian government is hoping that whatever positions are taken by General de Gaulle in Moscow they will be positions that are not inconsistent with the general interests of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The Canadian government was advised that it should not be apprehensive over the talks. There will be conversations for example regarding greater exchanges between France and Russia in the cultural fields and discussions on space technology.

France and Russia are already in agreement on two objectives. They both want to remove American influence from Europe and they both would like to maintain Germany in a relatively weak and non-nuclear role among the defence forces on the continent.

The Canadian government is determined to have France continue to play an important role within NATO.

Prime Minister Pearson in his important policy speech at Springfield, Illinois, voiced sympathy with General de Gaulle's objections to NATO in its present form. At the same time Mr. Pearson criticized the French president's decision to withdraw from the integrated military command of NATO.

Mr. Pearson by his words and by implication supported President de Gaulle's contention that the dominating role of the United States over the European nations when NATO was set up was no longer justified under present day circumstances. France he said was not alone in feeling that Europe was strong enough to be given its rightful share in the control of the policies of the alliance.

The Canadian prime minister cautioned against other western states denouncing President de Gaulle because the French leader was demanding a position for France in the alliance equal to that of Britain and somewhat closer to that of the United States.

A Tide of Wheat

THE RECORD $800-MILLION wheat sale to Russia announced yesterday has major significance on both sides of the Pacific.

For Canada it will mean a solid marketing base for all the wheat we can produce over the next three years — with all that this implies for the prosperity of the prairies and of the industries that quickly reflect the wellbeing of the farmers. For Russia it is recognition, even before the results of this year's spring crop are known, that large importations of grain will be necessary to maintain domestic needs and commitments to Communist allies.

Eventually the effects of the sale will be felt throughout most of the economy of Canada. They will be still more widely felt if we permit the natural interflow of trade to take place, for exports in any normal economy mean corresponding imports. We cannot indefinitely sell to Russia without increasing our purchases from that country — and so far our purchases have been relatively small.

The Soviet wheat buying admittedly is on an emergency basis: the country will face stringency without extra grain. But this situation does not preclude any need for Canada to keep the trade equation at least within sight of a balance. The fact is, that although Canada appears to be the favorite place for massive purchases of wheat, we are not the only source. We may not retain our position if we persist in closing our doors to Russian products.

In Russia, it is plain that the Communist system has so far failed to organize agricultural production adequately. The great farm program of Mr. Khrushchev has failed to meet the need; and his successors have not yet mastered the problem. The increasing Soviet population and Russia's promised supplies for Cuba and Eastern Europe create a greater demand than the inadequately mechanized and inefficiently organized production complex can meet.

The public admission of this is no doubt a much harder burden for Russia to bear than the $800 million cost of food imports. A nuclear world power with insufficient bread to feed its people is a paradox, to say the least. Apparently Russia foresees at least three years of shortage ahead, and those years will call for striking changes in the Communist system of farm operation.

This important association in trade carries other benefits, not only for Canada but for the West. The closer the trade contacts with the Soviet Union the greater the opportunities for co-operation in other fields leading to better understanding and peaceful purposes.

But the trade agreement poses a challenge for Canada. Our farm production can fill the bill, granted reasonable weather and crop conditions. But our transportation and handling facilities will have to be properly organized to prevent bottlenecks, as has happened before in the case of large shipments. And Canadian labor should interpret our nation's commitments to the purchasers as an opportunity to contribute greatly to the general prosperity, not as a club to use in wage negotiations.

The Rumpled Welcome Mat

THE CASE OF THE VISITING Japanese girl who ran into unforeseen difficulty in entering this country in which she was to be a guest for four months is another illustration of the sterile rigidity of our immigration laws and their lack of adaptibility to individual problems.

To be detained and threatened with expulsion as an undesirable alien is a poor reception for a visitor whose only purpose in coming was to foster friendly relations with another country. By the strict letter of the regulations the Vancouver officials no doubt were carrying out their duty perfectly. But the juggernaut of laws made 3,000 miles away is not likely to spare the tender feelings of little girls who get in its way through no fault of their own.

Admittedly newcomers to our country must be protected against exploitation of their labor. But surely this protection could be in the form of follow-up action, particularly when the sponsors of the visitor are reputable citizens obviously acting from the best of motives.

More independence of judgment should be granted to federal authorities on the spot, so that embarrassment and hardship will not result from blind imposition of overall legislation designed for much more serious cases. It should be easy enough to guarantee the whereabouts of a temporary immigrant without placing her in detention, while the red tape is unsnarled and the obvious, simple corrections made.

How Big Is Jumbo?

IN SUPERMARKETS HERE AND throughout Canada, the housewife can wander through aisles of produce packaged in a way to suggest to prospective purchasers that they are receiving particular bargains. One may be "jumbo," another "giant" another "family sized." Only if she has time, or inclination, will she find in less prominent print a statement of the contents by weight or volume. And these may be in amounts difficult to compare.

Twenty young college-trained women investigated the packaging and labeling in an American supermarket and reached the conclusion that the average family in that country wastes about $81 a year on packaged food because of evasive or confusing labels. In the United States that figure has been projected to a loss or overcharge of $4.5 billions for the whole nation.

To reduce the waste, loss or overcharge, as the case may be, two senators have sponsored a bill to simplify and standardize package labels in a way to make economical shopping easy for the average housewife.

The bill, winning wide support among American legislators, would require the package to carry the name of the commodity, its manufacturer, a separate statement of net quantity of contents in standardized measures and insist that the quantity statement be printed in conspicuous and legible type "undiluted" by qualifying words such as "six jumbo ounces of detergent."

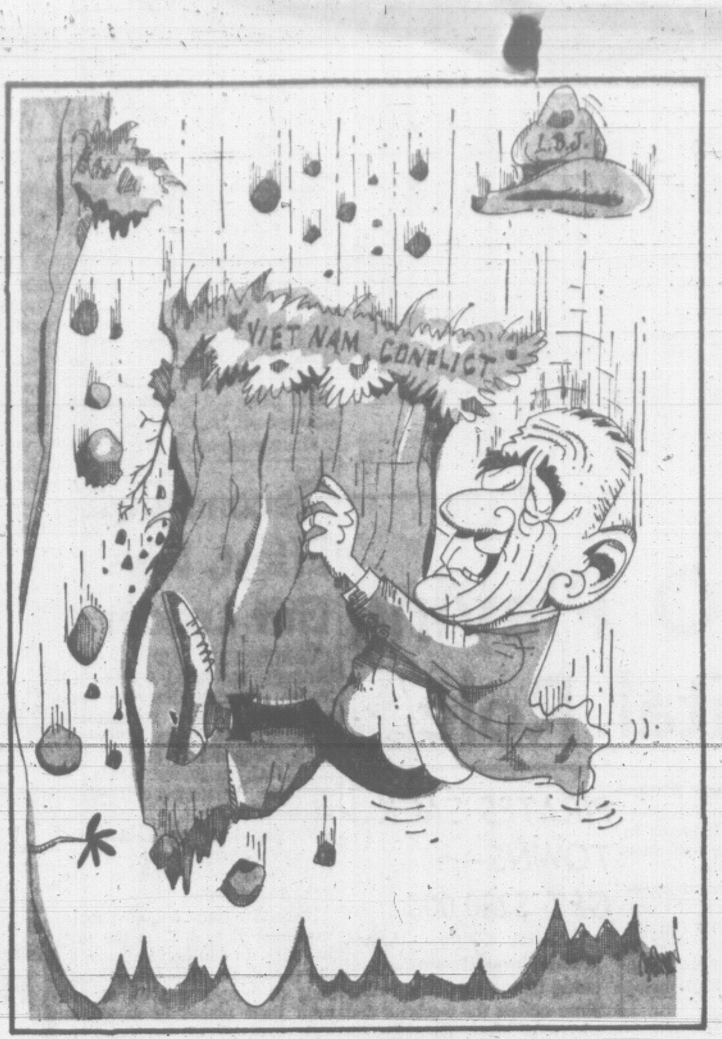
No similar legislation is currently being considered in Canada, despite the efforts of private members to find backing for bills covering the point. Why not? Clarity and integrity in marketing must be basic to our system of distribution. If industry itself cannot maintain standards then the consumer will have to turn to government control to obtain protection.

Educate the Litter Bug

CIVIC AND CHAMBER OF COMmerce leaders are agreed on the principle that Victorians should do more to keep their city tidy. They have promised a study of means whereby the litter which so frequently disfigures the streets and public places on weekends might be eliminated.

The work presumably can be done effectively if costs of cleaning gangs are paid. But litter, surely, is not solely a civic and Chamber of Commerce concern. It is a problem which can, and should, be corrected by the citizens themselves.

Our streets become dirty and unattractive because too many of our people are careless in the disposal of waste materials. The cure for the situation lies not so much in the clean-up job that has to be done, but in the training of people, whatever their age, to avoid causing the mess in the first place.



"My course is resolute"

FROM WASHINGTON

By WALTER LIPPMANN

L.B.J. Betting on Victory

FROM the President's press conference last week, it is now clear that he still hopes for a solution in Viet Nam by military victory. He has not quite said what General Ky said over the weekend — that the Viet Cong would be defeated in a year. But he did say that he expects to defeat the fighting forces of the enemy and compel him to negotiate a peace on our terms. For the time being, until the test of battle has been gone through, he will make none of the concessions which are the essential ingredients of a negotiated peace.

Lippmann

The President has not yet committed himself completely to the militarist solution which calls for the destruction the industrial and administrative structure of North Viet Nam, and contemplates years of warfare to occupy and pacify all of South Viet Nam. All that now stands in the way of this militarist solution is a wishful and hopeful prediction that Hanoi will give up the struggle if its elite troops have been defeated and decimated in the battles which are now beginning.

It is, of course, a gamble, not the first in a series of optimistic estimates and predictions which have proved to be false. Yet it may be, as some impartial and informed Asians think, that while Ho Chi Minh still has a large uncommitted army, he may be in sight of the end of his reserves of elite troops, and that he might come to be in the mood to negotiate a compromise.

That is the best that can be said for the President's current policy. It rests on a thin hope, for it is more likely that the destruction of the hard core elite of the enemy will reduce the level of the fighting to a protracted guerrilla war and that a solution by military victory will continue to elude us. What makes this most probable is that General Ky's government, composed almost entirely of generals who were on the wrong side of the Vietnamese war of independence from imperial France, is certain to confront Ho Chi Minh with terms which he can never accept.

China Factor

There remains the probability that China will not accept an American military victory over North Viet Nam and that in one way or another, if necessary, she will find ways to reinforce Ho Chi Minh's troops.

Nevertheless, the die is cast, the President's mind is no longer open to argument. He is determined to place at least one more big wager on military victory before he considers seriously the problems of a negotiated settlement.

Letters will be considered for publication only if the writer is clearly identified to the editor, who may permit pen names at his discretion. Submissions will be edited and may be condensed. Short letters are favored. None will be returned.

Proud of Uniform

As the mother of an ex-Scout, who was very proud to wear the Scout uniform for all occasions, I hope it will never be changed and I am glad that the chief Scout executive, Jack Scrivener, has the good sense to want to keep it the distinctive uniform it is, respected the world over.

Stick to your guns Jack and be glad that many of the boys are with you.—J. McA.

Shrinking Pensions

The people and the various governments should never forget in this period of affluence in this country that fundamentally our prosperity is due to our pioneers who sweated and toiled to clear the forests and break the land, to build the first bridges, and to make the roadbeds.

It seems to me in this squabble between management and labour they are tackling it from the wrong angle. Let both sides put their cards on the table, also the various governments and the consumer and figure out how all the people have an interest in the outcome, not necessarily their own union.

I remember vividly a conversation I had on the bus with a woman dressed in black who looked very sad. She told me her husband had been an engineer before he died, that she was getting a very small pension. She said that every time after a strike settlement things went up and "that it was just as if they had put a hand into my purse and had taken out some of my much-needed pennies."

It seems that those getting higher wages owing to the strike are cheating themselves in the long run. Perhaps they may soon be out of work and struggling with the righ cost of food, etc.—M. M. Pugh, R.N., 711 Pemberton.

For Dear Old Dad

Once again, due to the observance of Father's Day, we see the antics of "Maddison Ave." are well and truly to the fore. Consumers are being urged to buy certain very exclusive or "prestige" toiletries for dear old Dad, most of which seem to be priced out of all proportion. I think it is a sad reflection on our society especially when so many people are struggling to make ends meet each week on incomes which in some cases are about comparable with the cost of these commodities.

Surely this type of thing only plays into the hands of those who oppose the profit making capitalistic system. A profit system is fine, providing it does not "run wild." In my opinion this latest piece of gimmickry could justifiably be classified as amoral.—Doreen C. Bunn.

Looking Back

From the Times of June 21, 1906:

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company is presently taking up the question of cheap weekend trips for autoists from Seattle. At present the rates are too high to warrant bringing automobiles from the Sound for a day or two. There are hundreds of machines in Seattle but no roads suitable for touring, while Victoria and vicinity have the best roads on the continent. The trip from Victoria to Cumberland, for instance, would make an excellent week-long expedition.

CANADIAN POLITICS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Hodge-Podge of Conflicts

MR. PEARSON'S loyal cabinet colleagues have rallied around their chief, denounced his critics and invited him to remain in office as long as he pleases. So, no doubt, they should. Loyalty is a fine virtue in politics and in other more important aspects of life. But men as wise and experienced as Messrs. Pickersgill, Sharp and Martin must know that loyalty, under present conditions, cannot be enough. For the difficulties now afflicting him and the nation will outlast Mr. Pearson (and even Mr. Diefenbaker, who is practically immortal).

Hutchison

The Liberal government and party have been painfully split and live in almost perpetual crisis, but not merely because Mr. Pearson cannot manage them. The Conservative opposition is in the same state of disorder, but not merely because it cannot find a way of unloading Mr. Diefenbaker. All the miseries of these two men in their troubled twilight are only passing ripples on the current of the nation's life.

Double Process

Our real concern is with that current, not with a bitter personal feud which must soon end in the course of nature. No man can yet guess where the current is running, or what sort of nation will greet its hundredth birthday only a year from now. It seems to me, however, that a double process is in flow, much deeper and more complex than we suspected even a month ago.

With the arrival of Mr. Daniel Johnson in Quebec we confront our oldest Canadian problem in a new, acute and frightening form, if he actually means what he says. Unless we can solve that problem all the brave solutions we are planning for other problems will be irrelevant.

Leaving French Canada aside for the moment, not because it is unimportant but because its leader's true intentions are unknown, we must realize at last that the whole political system is taking a new shape as yet unforeseeable. The party lines that guided us since 1867, with remarkable success on the whole, are breaking down. This is not a sudden apocalypse as some excited headline writers imagine but a natural evolution. Our politics, in short, are struggling to keep up with our society.

So far, they have fallen behind. The result is bewildering confusion on both sides, right and left. No one expects, of course, that any political party will be consistently on one side or the other and such clarity would soon wreck the system. Given one party standing against social change of any sort and another standing for total change overnight, every election would be a revolution, perhaps a civil war, as has happened in so many nations which have not learned the virtues of inconsistency.

Citizen's Due

But the citizen surely is entitled to know, in a general way, that one party stands for a policy of change, along certain lines, that the other party stands for the consolidation of changes already made before the next advance is attempted.

That is a rough working definition between a liberal and a conservative party in any nation or age, whatever labels they wear. In contemporary Canada the historic definition has collapsed. Our major parties have been unable to re-define their attitudes toward our rapidly changing society. Both suffer similar agonies of soul-searching and neither knows where it stands on the basic issues of these times.

The Liberal party thought it knew where it stood when it came to office but Mr. Walter Gordon and his friends have lately undertaken to shift its centre of gravity drastically leftwards into more radical liberalism, though oddly enough they want a conservative policy of protectionism and national self-containment. The reaction to this pressure was instantaneous. Throughout the West, and doubtless in many parts of the East as well, many Liberals are determined to crush the Gordon revolt at the October convention.

More Confused

The Conservative party is still more confused. After the six years of the Diefenbaker government it could not pretend to know where it stood in policy. It knew only that it stood in the wilderness, led by a man who was never a conservative by any definition but a lonely agrarian rebel, with his own private revelation, a strange mixture of reform and nostalgia. For the time being conservatism as a doctrine has lost its way, all its energies concentrated on the choice of a new leader, with few to spare for ideas.

Thus we have no Liberal party with an understandable position, since the position depends on the outcome of the present inward power struggle, and no Conservative party since its future depends on Mr. Diefenbaker's struggle to survive. In consequence, a section of the Liberal party is closer to Mr. Douglas than it is to the ruling men of the cabinet. A section of the Conservative party is closer to these men than it is to Mr. Diefenbaker.

The facts have become so obvious that Mr. Douglas counts on a realignment of politics, the emergence of a coherent right-wing and a coherent left-wing party, while some university professors recommend a grand coalition of all parties, without any policy at all, except goodwill, honesty and a rejection of sin.

Mr. Douglas may be right, though a little premature. He is right anyhow in sensing that the current chaos of men and ideas cannot last indefinitely. One way or another it will be clarified, either within the major parties or by a new combination of parties.

As if their family quarrels were not sufficiently distracting, an extra element enters the political chemistry with Mr. Johnson. Whatever else his election may mean it unquestionably means that a large part of French Canada is alarmed by the Quiet Revolution. It cannot repeal such a profound and necessary movement but wishes to slow the pace. Mr. Johnson evidently will slow it.

While that is Quebec's own business, it raises a large question in the rest of the country, apart from the ancient racial question: How many English-speaking Canadians agree that the pace of the nation-wide leftward movement should be slowed, temporarily at any rate, until the huge commitments already made are digested?

Central Issue

There is the central issue facing and dividing the major parties and it comprehends all others. Both parties have evaded it up to now and Mr. Douglas simply ignores it under the impression that Canada can do everything at once, regardless of its growing but still limited means.

The central issue cannot be evaded much longer because the means are now stretched to the limit, or beyond it, as proved by every economic index and the prices in every shop. Around this question of means and timing, not the question of social reform, which almost everybody desires, the parties must clarify their thinking to the point where the people have at least some broad alternatives to vote for. The system will remain disordered and unworkable so long as such alternatives are lacking and each major party is a hodgepodge of contradictions, both in personalities and in policies.

OBSESRVER OF SOCIETY

Balzac was the observer or secretary of society. What modern zoologists were doing to explain animal species in relation to their environment, he was doing for modern man. Social behavior and social environment were inseparable; he was recording both. The Human Comedy is essentially a kind of zoo in which all the animals can be observed in their natural environment.

Never Too Late

New York Times

SOCIALISTS used to argue that a state-owned economy would quickly do away with the damage to the common welfare inflicted by those who could not see beyond their private interest.

For almost a half-century now the Soviet Union has had to learn the hard lesson that the bureaucratic factory manager intent only upon achieving his production plan can be at least as indifferent to the general welfare as the most narrow-minded capitalist, and consequently just as guilty of polluting the environment. The Soviet record of outrages against that country's air, water and other natural resources is fully as shameful as the American, and has aroused the same alarm among thoughtful Soviet citizens as conservationists express here.

A crucial battle is now being fought by those who wish to stop the ruin of the Soviet natural environment. A band of leading Moscow intellectuals seeks to prevent the poisoning of one of the world's natural wonders — Lake Baikal — by Soviet pulp and paper plants now almost ready to go into production. The importance of their effort arises from the fact that Baikal is the world's largest and deepest fresh-water lake. The protesters are demanding that the economic planners recognize their mistake, write off the capital investment and prevent these plants from ever operating in their present location.

Yes But . . . Ugh!

Ottawa Citizen

CONCERNING long hair on young men, we are not dogmatic. By long hair we mean, of course, locks that reeach to the shoulders, or thereabouts. The Beatle style of haystack haircut is no longer strange. The longer hair is still sufficiently unusual to cause raised eyebrows and, in the Yorkville section of Toronto the other day, a near-riot.

There are some who say that shoulder length hair on a youth is a sign of effeminacy. We are not so sure. After all, it was only after he got a haircut that Samson was so weakened that his enemies could overcome him. Old pictures of Walt Whitman, the 19th century American poet, indicate long hair, yet he was the most virile and masculine of writers. Pictures of the 17th and 18th century explorers of North America reveal not a single crew-cut; these adventurous men almost invariably wore long hair. And many an 18th century sportsman and fighter wore his in a short pigtail.

This is not to say we favor long hair. It's just that we don't think there's anything to worry about, and that the style in which a person wears his hair is his own business. The trouble is, of course, that long hair is not the general fashion, and therefore creates antipathy. No doubt if it were the contemporary style, the non-conformists would have crew-cuts. The way we see it, non-conformity is no crime as long as it hurts no one, and the world would be a poor, dull place without it.

Historic Example

The Gazette, Montreal

THERE is only one lasting benefit that could come from the longshoremen's strike: it could become the historic example of something that should never be allowed to happen again. The terms of the settlement are costly. But no one can possibly estimate the total cost that the breakdown of transportation in the St. Lawrence has inflicted on the country.

What price tag is to be placed on the delay in shipping exports of Canadian grain? What is the price of the disruptions in the import trade? Who shall estimate the added costs the delay has placed upon Expo? What is the total bill for the damage the strke has done to the reputation of the Port of Montreal? What will be the final loss of revenues for this port, and for the ports of Trois Rivieres and Quebec?

Who will recompense all those who have suffered as the result of the policy of the federal Government in allowing the strike to go on for nearly 40 days? Obviously, they will receive no recompense. Everyone who has suffered loss will have to make good that loss on his own, as best he may.

'Much More, Now!' New Cry From Unions

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — The government won some battles last week to keep water traffic moving and Air Canada flying, but it lost a major campaign in its war against inflation.

Waring

After the 85 cents an hour increase to seaway workers, approaching tacit recognition of these workers' right to wage parity with U.S. seaway workers, and after a generous settlement with the dockers that the government forced on the shipping federation, it is not realistic to expect other unions to exercise any restraint or forbearance in their wage demands.

The cry of the unions has been "More, now!" The new cry will be "Much more, now!"

And the loudest cry, and one which the government will find impossible to deny, will come from the CBRT, which is moving inexorably towards a strike against the CNR to back up its demand of a 90 cents an hour wage increase from both major railways. This is the same union that the government allowed to raid the federal treasury last week to keep the seaway open and the export wheat shipments moving.

Prime Minister Pearson's explanation of why the government agreed to the very large increase needed to get the seaway workers to call off their strike is that it "is in the national interest."

But is it?

Unquestionably it is in the national interest to prevent the seaway from being closed with consequences of huge economic disruption, including a serious shortfall in our contracted wheat deliveries to Russia and other overseas customers.

It would be naive to fail to realize CBRT timed its crunch for the season when a strike would do the maximum damage to the economy, and therefore the government would be forced to prevent a strike. In my book, this comes pretty close to blackmail.

And if trade unionist readers snort at this, I would suggest that they consider that the CBRT was not dealing with some sweatshop operator trying to screw the last ounce of work out of employees who were paid niggardly wages. It was dealing with a public agency, a creature of their country's government, a government that assiduously tries to pay wages equal to those prevailing in comparable private industry, on top of fringe benefits, including security of employment, that are unmatched in the private sector.

Is it then in the national interest to capitulate to demands that make a mockery of the government's appeal to the Canadian Labor Congress to act with responsibility, restraint and moderation because of the danger of inflation?

The government did not have to capitulate. It could have brought forward legislation to forbid a strike, and to require the workers to stay on their jobs pending compulsory arbitration of the issue.

However, this action would have been unpopular with organized labor.

So the government retreated—from compulsory arbitration and from any pretense at a hold-the-line policy in these inflationary times. It is politically afraid to cross the unions. It chooses instead to sow the wind.

CHINA DIARY

The Inevitable Imbalance

By FRANCOIS SULLY

(Diary of an extensive trip through China recently by a Newsweek magazine correspondent.)

HANGCHOW TO CANTON — I spent three days on Chinese trains travelling through Chekiang, Kiangsi, Hunan and Kwangtung provinces. It was a fascinating lesson in geography — and much else.

Some peasants in remote areas of Chekiang still live in squat, windowless huts with thatched roofs where one family shares a single room. A Chinese passenger tells me that his government "is aware of the imbalance between cities and countryside, tries to reduce it but is meeting many difficulties."

In 1927, Kiangsi was the cradle of Chinese Communism. The revolution has not brought many changes. It is still a land of small villages of brown bricks; many children in the fields doing light work; red clay hills covered by plantations of tangerine trees.

Kiangsi peasants wear raincoats made of grass against the chilly drizzle. Two men push a crude wheelbarrow with handcarved wooden wheels. Some carts carry a small wind sail. Three men harnessed like oxen pull a harrow through the grey ooze of their paddy field.

Grass Raincoats

Hunan is the native province of Mao, and it is poor. Peasants do not take pride in their dark, dilapidated homes. Old revolutionary slogans painted on the ochre walls are slowly erased by the rain. In South Hunan, however, Hengyang is a large industrial city echoing with the wailing of locomotives hauling trainloads of coal dust to humming factories.

Kwangtung province shows less signs of poverty. Peasants are better dressed, ride bicycles to their field. Flotillas of brown ducks cruise fish ponds fertilized by overhanging communal latrines.

Thirty miles south of Canton is the 14,000-acre commune of Sinh Tan. With 13,500 households, it is one of the largest of China's 80,000 communes. The commune leaders told me that the community today owns 3,400 bicycles against 33 before 1958 and 1,000 radio sets against 22.

Said the commune chief: "We eat well, but we still wear our old clothes and the houses obviously need some improvement. Farm mechanization remains at a low level although 90 per cent of the fields are now irrigated."

$400,00 Gross

Last year, the commune grossed the equivalent of $400,000. Sixty per cent of that was distributed among commune members and three per cent went to a welfare fund providing needy commune members with some social benefits. The commune owns two trucks and two tractors.

Added commune leader Lieu Wo Yeh while rolling a cigarette between his calloused fingers: "Like other communes in China, we are on our own. We have to generate our own capital. We cannot go every time to the state for support. The state needs the money elsewhere."

In a remote corner of the commune I discovered a kibbutz where some 100 young boys and girls live in barracks like dormitories. Strong and healthy, they are among the several million city youngsters sent by the regime to the countryside after completion of "middle school." Their task is to transform some steep hills of Kwangtung into plantations of pineapples.

More Food

The regime is doing its utmost to wrest more food from the land. At the same time, it is trying equally hard to curb the high birth rate, which outstrips all production gains. Although these boys and girls live together, chastity is strongly recommended. Nevertheless, a pharmacy that I visited offered a wide variety of crude contraceptive devices and illustrated pamphlets on how to use them.

Little Food, Eating In the Latest Novels

By STANLEY REYNOLDS
Manchester Guardian Weekly

Everybody does it. Turns his back on selling used cars and bangs out "The Pot Boilers," a fraught memory of a grimy adolescence in a Glasgow suburb and the rewards! £10,000 advanced to Capote for "In Cold Blood"; £52,000 for Harold Robbins' "Carpet Baggers"; £50,000 to Le Carre; £53,000 for "Tropic of Cancer"; and £25,000 for Frank Harris' "My Life and Love."

And in America, according to the Daily Mail the other day, publishers are going mad. They give thousands to authors who haven't yet finished their books, tens of thousands to authors who haven't started, and hundreds of thousands to authors who aren't authors.

One result of this I've noticed is that you don't get so much food and eating in first novels any more.

At one time first novels were always filled with people eating themselves silly because novelists in those days never got much of the real stuff for themselves.

In fact, I've got a pretty good book in me about that winter I almost starved to death but every time I start working the sentences up I remember it and get so hungry that I gorge myself full of lip-smacking good nostalgic jam butties and go to sleep.

I moved to London that year because somebody told me once that if you published a novel it's good for a year of dining out. I used to telephone these literary loving London hostesses and say: "Say, baby, I'm writing a book. Do you think I could have a ham sandwich on account?" But they never would.

Like Three Rs

People used to say that when we started giving young writers a lot of money they could stop writing about food things like soul and inspiraand write about high-toned affairs like war and peace.

Of course, it hasn't worked out like that. Now the young writers all write about ulcers and servant problems and about rich young men who are having trouble with their mistresses and all those problems that a decaying aristocracy have. And this is because young writers have become as rich as decaying aristocrats.

Of course, the public likes its three Rs — riches, ruffians, and rape. But the public don't read the books. They buy them all right or else how would you get the advances? But they don't read them.

"Have you read 'The Solid Mandala?' " Someone will ask someone at a dinner party.

"No," they will say, "but I bought it five times."

Subsidize Them

And what else can they do? They are too busy earning enough money to buy all those books — you can't expect them to read them.

But where will it all end? Some day the bottom will have to fall out of the book market. There won't be enough room for all the books.

Then the government will have to step in. They'll have to subsidize the publishers.

But not in the ordinary way. They'll subsidize them like the American government subsidizes alfalfa growers. They'll pay them for not publishing books, and the more books they don't publish the more they'll pay them.

And authors will get paid for not writing books.

Publishers will issue lists saying: "This spring we are not publishing 'The Pot Boilers' which was not written by Sean Shenanigans."

Diplomats: In or Out Of Rhythm?

WASHINGTON—The mounting speed of jet travel is putting such a strain on diplomats that sometimes an envoy can hardly tell what day it is.

This difficulty is discussed in the new issue of the U.S. state departmen'ts monthly magazine, News Letter, by Assistant Medical Director Donald K. McIntyre, who wants to keep Secretary Dean Rusk and his globe-flying aides in top shape.

"Serious errors of judgment," wrote Dr. McIntyre, "are conceivable if a diplomat reaches decisions when plagued by fatigue compounded by physiological upsets."

The state department doctor spoke of the upset to the circadian rhythm—the body's daily physiological timetable —on a jet flight such as the 26½-hour run from New York to Thailand. Noon in New York is midnight in Bangkok and vice versa.

On arriving at the Thai capital at noon "your circadian rhythms believe it is midnight because of the 12-hour difference," he said. "You might even be thinking clearly and yet be thinking in the wrong day."

And thinking clearly would be difficult too, he indicated. He said Federal Aviation Agency investigations showed long-distance jet travellers suffered "diminished mental acuity for about 24 hours" afterward and needed a four-day rest to get back to normal.

Ho Chi Minh Trail a Puzzler

ROUTE CHANGES, DIRECTION SAME

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

SAIGON—Communist soldiers from the north infiltrate into South Viet Nam at a rate of 5,500 or more every month on a a route called the Ho Chi Minh Trail, named for the aging (76) president of North Viet Nam.

It is not a trail. Rather it is many trails, roads and jungle paths, running from North Viet Nam first westward into Laos, then south through Laos into Cambodia and then eastward into South Viet Nam at a half dozen places.

Its most-used starting point is the Mu Gia Pass in North Viet Nam. Its southern "terminal" consists of a series of fingers from Cambodia into Viet Nam. The Ho Trail changes its route, but not its general direction, with the seasons. During the dry period, it follows low ground. In the current monsoon rains from May to August, it goes to the high ground.

Recent intelligence reports indicate that 200 miles of the trail have been newly surfaced with crushed stone and the road concealed from air strikes by overhead foliage.

In a drive to choke off Hanoi's southward flow of men and supplies, American air power has repeatedly pummelled the Ho Trail. Guam-based B-52 bombers have hammered the Mu Gia Pass starting point. Navy and Air Force fighter-bombers have hit at the approaches to the pass and have plastered the southern outlets in Southern Viet Nam's "War Zone C" on the Cambodian border. American planes from other bases, including Thailand, have hit at various segments of the Ho Trail.

Possibly because of this heavy interdiction, the Communists have taken to using a supplementary trail running across northern Cambodia from west to east into South Viet Nam, named the Sihanouk Trail ofter Cambodia's Prince Norodom Sihanouk. Like the Ho Trail it is a network of truck roads, and jungle paths.

Can Universities Be 'Court of Last Resort'?

By BENJAMIN R. BARBER

In a recent issue of The New Republic, a liberal American weekly magazine, distinguished commentator Walter Lippmann wrote of the need in contemporary life for a "universal company of scholars" to be provided by the universities to fill the "spiritual and intellectual vacuum" of modern times in which man has been "deprived of traditional and customary authority."

A Harvard University graduate student, Benjamin R. Barber, has filed a dissent to Mr. Lippmann's thesis which provides an interesting comment on the state of the university today. Mr. Barber's comments are in the letters column of the magazine.

. . . I must confess to Mr. Lippmann that after ten years of spiritually debilitating preparation for entry into the "community of scholars" which is to become the nation's saviour, I have gained a rather different picture.

It has been my impression that scholars spend most of their time pursuing not "truth," but contracts and grants, not "wisdom," but publication and professional renown.

How Many Read?

The universities are indeed "depositories" but of orthodoxy and cant, not wisdom . . . How many books are turned out by the university presses that are read by Lippmann's common man in need of spiritual guidance? Why not even the professionals try to read most of the barely grammatical prose churned out by the learned journals.

I wonder if Mr. Lippmann had in mind the training of police cadres in Viet Nam under CIA contract when he spoke if the university's role in educating the "rulers of the state." And does the "royal science" refer to the determination of class standings which are then provided, free of charge, to a government bent on shipping out the less fit (as determined by grades) to kill or be killed in an undeclared war?

Independence?

. . . Can the universities, ever more dependent upon federal contracts, federal grants, federal contacts, and state patronage, play anything like an independent role?

Can the new generation of scholars (any generation), having spent the best years of their youth being dessicated, compartmentalized and rendered safely sterile and irrelevant by the ennervating and petty tasks of graduate life in order to meet what Lippmann thinks are the sacrosanct standards of the academic priesthood, be expected to provide religious inspiration and disciplined guidance to a world "lost and adrift"?

But let us assume that the universities are, or can become, the centres of scholarship and wisdom that Lippmann presumes them to be. Ought we then to make them the "court of last resort" in all matters of "truth and error"?

None Would Agree

Are they to become the sole "possessors and guardians of true knowledge"? No thinking man — least of all a true scholar — would assent to such a role for the institution in which he worked.

The truth is not, as Mr. Lippmann seems to think it is, an elusive but real substance invisible to most of us, but perceivable to an initiated elect established in self-perpetuating ivory towers. Nor does knowledge of facts, processes, or physical laws (which, it can be conceded, the universities have in abundance) provide a basis for making ethical or religious decisions.

The judgment that American policy in Viet Nam (for example) is good or bad has an entirely different basis than the one that two and two make four, and authority in the latter is no guarantee of authority in the former.

The total capitulation of German academicians to the Nazi regime should prove this even to those unwilling to take the word of Hume or Kent or G. E. Moore.

If, as Lippmann tells us, "modern man in his search for 'truth . . . is left, for better or for worse, with the professors,'" then let us make no mistake: it is for worse.

Bureaucrats and commissars, priests and even kings would make kinder masters than the present denizens of America's tradition-bound universities.

I myself would be content with transforming them back into relatively independent cases of thoughtfulness and reflection where students can once again learn and scholars can think and teach.

McNamara Knows Does Often Tell

WASHINGTON — In Lyndon Johnson's Washington, Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara wields awesome power. And if you would like a candid evaluation of the extent of that power, the way to get it is to visit the treasury department, the budget bureau, the commerce department, or the council of economic advisers.

There, in the agenices responsible for the direction of the U.S. economy, you will hear the wistful statement:

"Of course, everything depends on Viet Nam spending, but we can't get a damn word out of McNamara."

Among the top-most officials in these agencies, there is little resentment over the Iron Curtain McNamara has clamped over Pentagon plans and estimates. There is instead a sort of grudging admiration for the unique and dominant role that the president allows him to play.

Okay With LBJ

The president appears to have almost a reverential attitude toward his defence secretary's decision-making ability, and if McNamara wants to keep defence budget data secret, even from other cabinet officers, that is okay with Mr. Johnson.

Down the line in the departments, lesser officials are more snappish than their bosses.

"I wonder," one waspish critic mumbled, "Does McNamara give the numbers to the president?"

A few weeks ago at the American bankers' meeting in Madrid, federal reserve chairman William McChesney Martin said pointedly that the whole future course of the economy is hitched to Viet Nam.

But, Martin added, neither he nor the treasury secretary nor other officials knew "where we go from here."

Will appropriations for the new fiscal year need to be raised? By how much? Will a tax increase be needed in 1967?

Only McNamara knows the answers at this point. Yet, the president's team of economic advisers can hardly make intelligent plans, even on a contingency basis, unless they know the course of the military budget for next year.

Top government officials fall back in their speeches on the suggestion that there are a lot of "uncertainties" in the picture. On Capitol Hill, Democrats and Republicans alike are more blunt on what they consider an "information gap" at the Pentagon.

Plans Withheld

Many cynical politicians are sure that the Pentagon's spending plans are well developed, but are being withheld so that any unpleasant consequences can be postponed until after the congressional elections.

In the congressional cloakrooms, the common gossip is that McNamara will be ready with a supplemental request for some 5 to 6 billion dollars once the election is out of the way.

These same sources in the fall of 1965 predicted that the Viet Nam war would cost upwards of 10 billion dollars a year — a figure that was ridiculed by the Johnson administration — but turned out to be "on the button." Treasury secretary Fowler, as a matter of fact, said in a Chicago speech that if he knew of such a program, he would be back in his office working out a tax increase to pay for it.

Today, governmental and business decisions must be keyed closely to the Viet Nam program. Will it stay much the same? Will it go up, or down?. What will be the impact on tax and money policy

The Johnson administration isn't noted for its full disclosure policies. Unhappily, the tight-lipped attitude prevails even within.

PROBATION SERVICES FOR ALL

An Ontario magistrate says the day is coming when probation services will be available to every court and a pre-sentence report on first offenders will be mandatory.

Magistrate E. W. Kenrick, president of the Canadian Corrections Association, says where such courts are not now available justice is dragging its feet.

He was addressing the closing sessions of a meeting of the B.C. branch of the association in Burnaby.

He said probation services are what opens the door of the court to clinical, hospital, welfare or social treatment instead of jail or prison.

It was becoming widely recognized that the clinical approach to the offender is best. The court was fortunate that it could refer offenders to such places as alcohol clinics, mental hospitals or narcotic adiction centres.

"It is the case history or pre-sentence report which permits the court to assess an individual need and — in effect — to diagnose on an objective basis and through sentence prescribe adquate treatment."

Benjamin Thorpe
(1782-1870)

"Fuller's Earth," the self-written epitaph of Thomas Fuller (1608-1661) is certainly one of the shortest on record, although Thorpe, a distinguished British philologist, almost matched it in brevity with the epitaph he requested to be carved on his tomb: "Thorpe's Corpse."

If you think you don't need disability insurance, you haven't seen the statistics.

Of 1000 persons aged 35, 33% will be disabled by illness or injury—for three months or more—before they reach age 65. That's what the statistics show.

What kind of a statistic will you be?

It makes sense to look into a Manufacturers Life Personal Income Protector Plan. Nothing can give you such peace of mind as the sure knowledge that if you are disabled and cannot work, a guaranteed income will come your way.

Our Plan has many advantages. It offers you a wide flexibility in amount of income and the length of time it will be paid. For example; you may be able to arrange for income benefits right through to age 65 for total disability due to sickness or for life when an accident is the cause. Accidental death and dismemberment benefits to age 65 are also offered. You can co-ordinate the plan with your other resources; tailor it to your needs and your pocketbook. Manufacturers Life cannot cancel the policy nor can your premium rate be raised—ever. The plan can be adjusted to correct the inadequacy of any short-term coverage you already have.

If you are interested, call the Man from Manufacturers. When advising you on disability income he offers you the same competent counsel available to you when you are planning your life insurance security.

$500 Million For Poverty War

By DENNIS BELL

VANCOUVER (CP)—Health Minister MacEachen says the federal and provincial governments will spend more than $500,000,000 during 1966 and 1967 in an all-out attack on poverty.

But one of his chief field commanders, R. A. J. Phillips, director of the special planning secretariat of the Privy Council of Canada, says the secretariat lacks experience in dealing with press conference the secretar- that much money.

Mr. Phillips said at a Monday lat, which is in charge of co-ordinating war on poverty programs, would like to make a pilot test.

He suggested picking one or more depressed communities and injecting every form of federal welfare and development aid available into them.

Federal welfare oficials, he said, would study the sociological and economic implications of the many aid programs in order to learn how to aply the war on poverty on a regional or national basis from the pilot project findings.

'SHOWS DETERMINATION'

In a speech opening the Canadian conference on social welfare, Mr. MacEachen said Monday night the $500,000,000 "provides ample evidence of the determination of both the federal government and the provinces to provide resources needed to tackle problems of poverty on a realistic scale."

The health minister cited the following welfare projects:

—$112,000,000 for construction of housing on Indian reserves.

—Legislation now introduced for establishment of a $50,000,000 rural development fund.

—$85,000,000 for the Canada Assistance Plan, comprehensive federal legislation covering almost the entire spectrum of social assistance.

—Balance of federal health and welfare funds for the Canada Pension Plan, increased assistance to students and universities, a fisheries development program, the labor mobility program launched last December and industrial incentive programs to stimulate employment through support of secondary industries.

—$1,200,000 for the Company of Young Canadians, a vital cog in the war on poverty machinery.

NAMES TARGET DATE

Meanwhile, Mr. Phillips told a press conference the Company of Young Canadians expects to have its first anti-poverty workers in the field by mid-August.

He said the first group of 70 volunteers will begin a six-wek training course at the end of June in Nova Scotia.

When they graduate they will start moving into the various parts of the country where their services have been requested. These include Eskimo, Indian and Metis settlements and slum areas in various cities.

"Their job basically will be to help the poverty-stricken rebuild their own lives," Phillips said.

The first 70 were selected from a group of 337 who applied to take part in the initial pilot project.

On a population proportion basis, B.C. led the country in applications. Only Ontario with 105 applicants had more in number than B.C. with 50. Quebec, the next largest, had 45 applicants.

Seminars on 28 different welfare subjets and related fields will occupy the 1,000 delegates until the welfare conference ends Friday.

500 From Here To Help Crowd Empire Stadium

More than 500 Jehovah's Witnesses in the Victoria area are planning to attend a district convention in Vancouver's Empire Stadium Aug. 3-7.

A crowd of 35,000 is expected from all parts of the Pacific Northwest and they will join in Bible discussions concerning God's will for man on earth.

"A complete cafeteria and rooming facilities are being provided," said John H. Pimm, presiding minister of the Victoria congregation.

"Hotels, motels and private homes in the Greater Vancouver area are being contacted for room listings, so all delegates are assured of accommodation."

Mr. Pimm said the cafeteria, manned by Witness' volunteers, will be in operation providing full-course meals three times a day on the convention grounds.

Mr. Pimm said the convention will be one of 13 to be held in North America this summer.

St. John Parade

An annual church parade will be held Sunday by the St. John Ambulance Brigade.

The event will commence at 11 a.m. at St. Matthias Church, 600 Richmond Road.

MEAT CLERK WALKS OFF WITH QUARTER MILLION

MONTREAL (CP)—A 19-year-old employee of a Montreal meat packing company fled his employer's office Monday with a briefcase containing $267,000 in negotiable cheques and some $1,800 cash, police said Monday night.

The employee, a clerk whom police declined to identify, had been told to wait in the rear receiving room of Legrade Inc. for a Brinks Express armored car coming to fetch the money.

When the truck arrived, there was no clerk in sight, and no briefcase.

Canada-Japan Pact Lauded by Atom Body

VIENNA (AP) — Japan and Canada submitted Monday their bilateral nuclear power agreement to inspection by the East-West International Atomic Energy Agency here.

The agreement, which went into force with Monday's signing, provides that Canada and Japan transfer to the IAEA the responsibility for administering the safeguards against diversion to military purposes of atomic energy.

IAEA said this bilateral fact that it is fully reciprocal agreement is noteworthy for the and that each government is entitled to exercise safeguard controls over all the facilities and materials located in the other country and covered by the co-operation agreement.

The director general of IAEA, Dr. Sigvard Eklund, said that with the new transfer agreements, Japan has associating itself with "yet another first."

"It is Canada's first safeguards agreement with the agency," he said, "bringing another country, another area of the world into the 'peaceful nuclear club of nations' which have charged the agency with the administration of safeguards."

Child Begged For More Food

VANCOUVER (CP)—A father testified Monday that his 22-month-old boy literally begged for food to the day of his death but couldn't have it because of a strict diet prescribed by a naturopath.

Harry Dimosten, a fisherman, was testifying at the inquest into the death of his son Leonidas Dimosten. The jury ruled the boy died of malnutrition after being on a special diet for seven weeks.

The jury was told that the boy had been taken to Dr. E. E. Rogers—who has a medical degree but who has been barred from practising medicine except as a naturopath—for treatment of a skin condition.

The father testified that Dr. chopped vegetables, grapefruit Rogers ordered a strict diet of "poison" in his body. The child died of malnutrition seven and some milk to clear the weeks later.

"When his brothers were eating meat, butter and milk, the little fellow would reach up his arms and plead for some, but he couldn't have any," said Mr. Dimosten. "We were following instructions 100 per cent."

Dr. Rogers testified the boy was destined to die because he had an advanced disease, was full of "poison," and lacked the vitality to live.

Pathologist Dr. T. R. Harmon said his autopsy showed a picture "of extreme starvation, malnutrition, loss of protein and anemia." He said the boy could have been saved "if he had been properly treated. . . . He was combating his skin infection very well."

Cool-off Swim Proves Fatal

LYTTON (CP) — Vancouver truck driver Donald MacLean, 43, is believed to have drowned in the Thompson River about nine miles north of this Fraser Canyon community.

RCMP here said he stopped his truck on the river bank Sunday and told several persons nearby he was going for a swim. He dove into the river and disappeared in a whirlpool.

His body has not been recovered.

CS Pension Increase Talked Out

OTTAWA (CP) — Both opposition and government MPs pleaded in the Commons Monday for increased pensions for retired civil servants, but a private member's motion endorsing the idea was talked out by Liberals before it came to a vote.

Richard A. Bell (PC—Carleton) sponsored a resolution urging the government to give "the earliest possible consideration" to higher pensions to take into account recent increases in the cost of living.

David Groos (L — Victoria) said the government should develop a more flexible pension scheme to meet the needs of public servants and suggested a study to find out if the government is "getting a large windfall" from funds contributed earlier by persons now retired.

Bud Orange (L—Northwest Territories) suggested that many persons who have retired from private industry also are feeling the pinch of inadequate pensions.

He suggested that a Commons committee examine the total problem with relation to all Canadians.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre, a long-time advocate of increased pensions for retired civil servants, urged that the government take action in this session of Parliament to remedy the situation.

Esquimalt to War on Weeds?

Noxious or obnoxious, Esquimalt weeds are spreading.

So much so they're going to be surveyed, just to see what can be done about them.

A weed survey was ordered by council Monday night after complaints were received.

Weeds are springing up beside the railway track through the municipality, and growing so high they obscure vision at intersections, council was told.

One councillor said he nearly collided with a railway handcar because the weeds obstructed the view.

Another said weeds are spreading from vacant lots into gardens.

A tow-away by-law for Esquimalt Road is being prepared for consideration by council.

The municipality's chief traffic channel at rush hour, it will become a four-lane road with "no stopping" regulation from 4 to 5 p.m. weekdays.

A two-hour p[illegible]g limit was also ordered for Lyall Street.

Former Miss Canada Finds Husband on TV

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Example of how one thing can lead to another: Writer Richard Warren Lewis accepted a magazine assignment and found himself a wife, Joan Patrick of Windsor, Ont., a former Miss Canada.

It all started last month when Lewis was delegated by TV Guide to write an article on The Dating Game, a daytime show on ABC television. The gimmick of the show is to present a single man or woman with three possibilities for dates. By interrogation — but without seeing the three prospects—the contestant picks the likeliest date.

Lewis selected Joan, an actress. Twelve days later they were engaged. They plan to marry Aug. 27.

Still stunned by the sequence of events, they explained how it all happened. Miss Patrick, 27, in recent times has appeared in television and plays. Warren, 33, a New Yorker born in Bellow's Falls, Vt., has been a successful magazine writer.

"When I was assigned the story on The Dating Game, I thought I might get a different approach by appearing on the show itself," he said.

ARRIVES FOR FILM

Meanwhile Miss Patrick had come to Hollywood from her New York home for a television film.

"I didn't want to do the show but my agent said I would be barred from the studio for life if I didn't take the role," she recalled. "So I flew out here, arriving at 4:30 a.m. At 10 that same morning, ABC called with an offer to appear on The Dating Game. It had to be fate."

Her fellow contestants for a date with Warren were a Playboy Club bunny and Italian actress Luciana Paluzzi.

"I figured the way to a man's heart was through his stomach," she said. "He asked us if we could cook, and I told him I had a special recipe for rock cornish game hen stuffed with wild rice and cooked in white wine."

"She has since cooked it for me, and it is excellent," added Warren.

They were to spend the evening together two weeks after the show, but Warren operated more swiftly. He asked for a date that night.

Twelve days later he proposed.

FOR LORD MORAN

More and More Woe Over Book

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Lord Moran says he once quarrelled with Sir Winston Churchill because the late prime minister believed incorrectly that he wanted to be minister of health.

"I allowed myself to become worked up over this absurb charge," says Moran, Churchill's physician for 25 years, whose recent book about the wartime premier has caused sharp controversy.

Moran's statement comes in a letter to The Daily Telegraph, which last week carried an article by Randolph Churchill, son of Sir Winston, saying that the doctor-peer asked to be made health minister when Sir Winston was returned to power in 1951.

The article stated Christopher Soames, son-in-law of Sir Winston and a former Conservative minister, recalled that Moran flew into a "tantrum" when Sir Winston received his bid with hilarity.

Moran says in the letter: "I had only one serious quarrel with Sir Winston during the 25 years in which I was associated with him, and my recollection of this incident is quite different from Mr. Churchill's version.

"I had been sufficiently ill-advised to criticise the manner in which ministers of health were appointed, so that, as a rule, they only remained in office for a few months.

WASN'T PLEASED

"Sir Winston did not take my criticisms in his usual good-humored way. Indeed he took sharp exception to what I said. 'You know nothing about politics. I believe you want to be minister of health.'

"I allowed myself to become worked up over this absurd charge and we parted without patching up the quarrel. My wife made peace between us."

Randolph Churchill says that Soames recalls Moran approaching Sir Winston and asked to be made health minister only to be "met with a hilarious and incredulous response."

DIDN'T WANT DOCTOR

While Moran was Sir Winston's physician for 25 years, what the prime minister needed for the health job was a politician, not a doctor, said Randolph in his article.

The Moran book, published against the wishes of Lady Churchill, has caused a continuing controversy with its detailed analysis of Sir Winston's declining health in the later years of his career.

Senate Hurts Davey

CFL Seeks Full Time Director

WINNIPEG (CP)—The ticklish chore of finding a successor to G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg as commissioner of the Canadian Football League is expected to come to a head during a league meeting beginning today.

Speculation has been that Senator Keith Davey is the leading candidate for the post, which becomes vacant when Halter resigns at the end of this year.

Bud Grant, coach and general manager of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, said a three-man committee charged with finding Halter's replacement has kept its own counsel through most of its search, "but we certainly expect some additional information during the next few days."

A meeting of the committee members — Pat Mahoney of Calgary, Don McPherson of Regina and Jake Gaudaur of Hamilton — is scheduled today. A statement to representatives of the nine CFL teams is anticipated Wednesday.

OTHER NAMES SECRET

Grant said he does not know the names of others who might be considered rivals to Davey for the post.

Largest obstacle to Davey's possible appointment, Grant added, is the fear that his obligations in the Senate might conflict with his duties as commissioner.

"I think the first question almost anybody would ask would be: How much of his time will be occupied with this other position?"

Grant looked forward to another step toward implementation of recommendations that the CFL form one autonomous league, rather than Eastern and Western divisions with separate constitutions.

"A big stumbling block in anything like this is the recommendation that television and gate revenue be split evenly," Grant said.

"I don't expect the full report by the Committee Of One League to be adopted at this meeting, although I don't know what progress has been made.

"The committee has held private discussions since our annual meeting in Calgary in February and the basic thing we expect here is a report on progress."

DISCUSSED IN CALGARY

The C.O.O.L. report, discussed at length in Calgary, calls for establishment of a central office in Toronto; an equal split of television revenue; a gate-equalization plan based on the system now in use in the Western conference; and expansion of the CFL pension plan.

Grant said the agenda lists several internal details of no immediate importance. Discussions of 1967 scheduling and the three-year television contract recently signed with CTV also are on the schedule.

Grant said he has no firm idea what form the discussions of television will take, but CTV sports officials are meeting here this week "and we've been told television people will be available to us."

The meeting is scheduled to end Wednesday night, but Grant said it easily could be extended until some time Thursday.

Kasapis Signs With Calgary

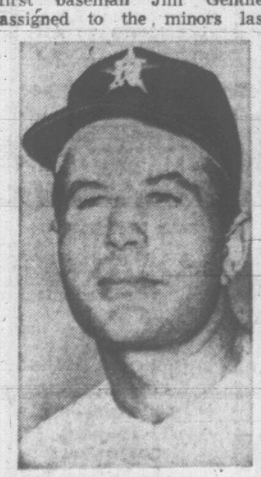
Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference have announced the signing of the 21st and 22nd new players, Canadian Terry Evanshen and import Gus Kasapis.

Evanshen, an Eastern Football Conference all-star while collecting rookie of the year honors as a flanker back in 1965, comes to Calgary from Montreal Alouettes.

Kasapis, a 225-pound defensive tackle, was recently obtained from B.C. Lions.

YOU SUPPOSE HE WAS SWAYED BY $25,000?

HOUSTON (AP) — Veteran first baseman Jim Gentile, assigned to the minors last Monday by Houston Astros for disciplinary reasons, has decided to report to Oklahoma City.



JIM GENTILE
... "I love the game"

Gentile indicated earlier he would quit baseball rather than report to the Astro farm club in the Pacific Coast League.

"I love the game and just can't quit now," Gentile said. "I hope I can perform well enough at Oklahome City that another major league club will want my services."

Gentile, 32, has paid a $250 fine for tossing his bat during an argument with an umpire in a game between Houston and Chicago Cubs.

An Astro spokesman said the Houston club had contacted every major league club in an effort to keep Gentile in the majors, but was turned down.

The spokesman said Gentile will be paid the same salary he received as an Astro, reportedly $25,000.

BREADWINNER GETS HIS REWARD

Kiss from wife Shirley and hug from daughter Linda, 11, were ample rewards Monday for Billy Casper after he defeated Arnold Palmer by four strokes in playoff for U.S. Open golf championship at San Francisco. Casper's caddy is at left. Monetarily Casper did all right, too, taking home $26,500. Casper plans to pass up British Open. (AP Wirephoto.)

'...This Was Worth Thousand Speeches'

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—It was, said Carlos Ortiz, merely a matter of time.

And when the time came, it was a matter of seconds.

Now, the Puerto Rican-born Bronx resident can settle down to a more important battle—winning the Democratic nomination for the New York State Senate.

He figures he gained himself 300,000 votes to that end Monday night when he scored a technical knockout over Johnny Bizzaro of Erie, Pa., to retain his world lightweight championship.

"He was as easy as I though he would be but he frustrated me when he kept running," the 29-year-old Ortiz said.

But it really wan't. Bizarro, a used car salesman when he isn't performing in the ring, outmanoeuvred Ortiz through the first 11 rounds, bobbing and weaving, staying out of reach of danger and scoring consistently, but lightly.

"The punch that sank him was a left hook to the body," grinned Ortiz who weighed an even 135 to Bizarro's 133¾. "That really put him down."

Bizarro said he was hurt by the bombardment, but felt the fight was stopped too quickly.

"I knew I was hit, but I wasn't groggy," said the 27-year-old Bizzarro, stopped for the first time in his 66-fight career. "I went down, but I got back up quick and shook it off."

Luther Burgess, Bizzarro's trainer, commended referee Buck McTiernan.

"I think the ref did a wonderful job," he said.

Ortiz, whose campaign reaches a climax in next Tuesday's primary election, wants to get back to New York as soon as possible. He said his victory over Bizzarro was worth "a thousand speeches and 300,000 votes."

After the politicking, he plans to go after the welterweight crown.

The TKO gave Ortiz a career mark of 46 wins, including 17 knockouts, against seven losses, a draw and one no-contest. Bizzarro has won 54, dropped 10 and drawn twice.

The fight, nationally televised and broadcast by Sports Network Inc., was an artistic success, but a financial flop.

It drew a crowd of 4,204 and a gross of $31,000.

Ortiz had a guarantee of $41,000 and 50 per cent of radio and television proceeds. Bizzarro received a flat $5,000 plus expenses.

Lead of 202

TERRIFIC STAND AIDS W. INDIES

LONDON (Reuters)—A magnificent sixth wicket stand of 193 between Gary Sobers and David Holford helped the West Indies reach 288 for five wickets on the fourth day of the second cricket test against England Monday.

The West Indies, trailing by 86 on the first innings, started the day at 18 for one wicket and suffered some early shocks, losing two wickets with only seven runs added to the Saturday close. Sobers was unbeaten with 121 at the close and Holford was on 71.

LEAD BY 202

The West Indies enter the last day with a lead of 202.

Shortly before lunch the touring team struggled with five wickets down and their lead only nine runs. But Sobers, playing a fine captain's innings, and his cousin, Holford, altered the picture of the game.

Instead of facing a crushing defeat, the West Indies now is well in the running to go ahead 2-0 in the series. England will need a quick breakthrough today and even then its target will be a formidable one.

With the touring team struggling in the pre-lunch session Monday, the England bowlers were triumphant and it was expected then that the match would not run its full distance of five days.

Scores in other O.C. matches played Monday:

Hampshire 189 and 73 for 6; Leicestershire 134.

Essex 136 for 9 and 80 for 7; Northhamptonshire 151.

Kent beat Derbyshire by seven wickets. Derbyshire 262 for 6 declared and 99 for 3 declared; Kent 188 for 6 and 174 for 3.

Cambridge University 123 and 116 for 4; Somerset 130.

Middlesex 276 for 7 declared; Nottinghamshire 118 for 3.

Lancashire 178 for 8 declared and 101 for 8; Worcestershire 91.

Surrey 209 and 162 for 5; Glamorgan 90.

Gloucestershire 251 for 8 declared; Warwickshire 251.

Sussex 231 for 4 and secondly 121. Yorkshire 202 and 128. Sussex won by 22 runs.

FIGHT RESULTS

PITTSBURGH—Carlos Ortiz, 135, New York, stopped Johnny Bizzarro, 133¾, Erie, Pa., 12. Ortiz defended world lightweight championship.

Stricken Catcher Released

SEATTLE (AP)—Merrit Ranew, Seattle Angels catcher who suffered a brain injury May 11 in a Pacific Coast League baseball game in Vancouver, was released Monday from hospital.

Ranew will remain here for a week or 10 days for observation before returning to his home in Albany, Ga.

Ranew was hit on the head by a baseball bat during a brawl in the game with Vancouver, suffering damage that left a blood clot on the brain. This was removed by surgery June 6 and physicians report Ranew appears to be making an excellent recovery.

Vancouver player Santiago Rosario is under suspension for wielding the bat and Ranew himself was fined $100 for his part in the brawl.

ROY EMERSON

EMERSON DEFEATS CANUCK

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Roy Emerson, the wiry Australian shooting for his third Wimbledon title in succession, led a procession of six other seeds into the second round of the men's singles Monday.

It was a dull opening to the 80th tournament, with no upsets.

Only one seed — fifth-ranked John Newcombe of Australia — was in trouble. Newcombe trailed against countryman Ray Ruffels, but finally won 6-11, 3-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Both U.S. seeds, sixth-ranked Dennis Ralson and eight-seeded Clark Graebner — came through without difficulty.

Of the other seeds, the only one who had trouble was Manuel Santana of Spain, seeded fourth.

He ran up against Isao Wanatabe of Japan on a greasy court and dropped the opening set 5-7.

Emerson had no trouble in coasting to a 6-4, 6-4, 6-3, win against Canadian Harry Fauquier.

Fred Stolle, the beaten finalist for the past three years, defeated German Davis Cup player Ingo Buding, 6-2, 6-2, 4-7, 6-2.

Cliff Drysdale of South Africa defeated Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 6-4, 7-5.

Church Tee Next For 'King' Casper

U.S. Open Champ Plans To Bypass British Open

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Newly-crowned United States Open golf champion Billy Casper will pass up the British Open next month to play in a church event.

"My wife and I were recently converted to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon), and it has brought me a new inner strength," the 34-year-old champion said after winning the championship Monday.

Casper changed his religious affiliation late last year and on Jan. 1 was baptized by the Mormons. After tying Arnold Palmer with a tremendous comeback Sunday, he made an 80-mile trip to take part in a church fireside program at Petaluma, Calif.

Great Putting

He plans to play in the Mormon tournament at Salt Lake City, Utah, which precludes his going to Muirfield, Scotland, for the British Open July 6-8.

Casper captured his second Open with some great putting for a one-under-par 69 in Monday's playoff, while Palmer duplicated his collapse of Sunday and shot a 73 after leading by two strokes at the end of nine holes.

They had wound up tied at 278 Sunday.

That brought a $25,000 top prize for Casper plus $1,500 as his share of the playoff proceeds, and he'll give 10 per cent to the church.

Arnie Had Lead

Palmer took a stroke lead on the par-four fourth hole when he dropped with an 18-foot putt. Casper lost another stroke on par four fifth hole when his drive hit a tree. A six-foot birdie putt cut the margin to one at the par-three eighth, but Casper three-putted the par-four ninth, the first time he had done it in the tournament.

The key to victory came at 430 - yard 11th, where Casper dropped a 25-footer for a birdie to even the match while Palmer missed from four feet.

Then at the par-three 13th, Casper rammed home a 35-foot putt for another birdie and took a one-stroke lead.

Lost It on 11th

Palmer's collapse reached full proportions as he went four over par on the next three holes.

"The 11th where I bogeyed and Bill made the putt was the turning point," Palmer said.

"This round was an experience I haven't had. I thought I was not hitting bad shots but getting bad results."

"When Arnie slipped on Sunday, I was charging and ready," said Casper. "When he left the door ajar a crack, I was able to slip in."

Palmer, 36, collected $12,500 plus the $1,500 for the playoff.

MUDCAT GRANT

ANGELS TAME HIM

Mudcat Howls Sans Kittens

The Mudcat doesn't have his Kittens any more, but he still has reason to howl.

California Angels tamed the Mudcat, Jim Grant, for the third time this season as they defeated Minnesota Twins 5-3 Monday night.

Grant was not happy with the decision that dropped his record to 5-9, a far cry from his 21-7 record last year that helped put the Twins into the World Series and himself on the stage with a musical act called Mudcat and the Kittens.

"I think I've pitched better this year than last, and I think my earned run average proves it," Grant said. "But you saw what happened to me a lot this year."

What happened? Tony Oliva dropped a fly ball with two on in the seventh inning, giving the Angels two unearned runs.

Grant, 30, is correct as far as his ERA is concerned. His present mark of 3.26 is lower than his final ERA of 3.30 in 1965 and the 3.68 he had at this time last year when he also had a 6-2 record.

HELPED CLINCH PENNANT

The righthander pitched the Twins to the American League pennant and won two games in the Series.

His bad break Monday night came after Tom Satriano and Paul Schaal singled with one out in the seventh. Pinch hitter Willie Smith then lofted a long fly to centre field, but Oliva dropped it, and two runs scored for a 3-3 tie.

Smith wound up at second and quickly scored the decisive run on Ed Kirkpatrick's single.

TAPS FOR WHOM?

Somebody played Taps for the Braves at Atlanta, but they buried Don Drysdale in Houston.

Drysdale, of Los Angeles Dodgers, admitted after his fifth straight loss—a 4-2 National League defeat by the Astros Monday—that every loss was getting him deeper in trouble.

"When they get you down, whether you're a pitcher or a hitter, they try to bury you."

Meanwhile at Atlanta, a fan in the centre field seats pulled out his trumpet during batting practice and played taps for the Braves, who had lost three straight games.

The Braves replied later with two homers from Gene Oliver and one from Joe Torre to belt Philadelphia Phillies 7-5.

Hydros To Keep Flying

DETROIT (AP) — Chairman Lee Schoenith of the unlimited class for the American Power Boat Association said Monday the season for unlimited hydroplanes would continue despite the death of three of the circuit's best drivers Monday.

"I personally don't think it's going to have any great effect," said Schoenith. "But it sure isn't going to be the same type of season for the participants. These three gentlemen were my dearest and deepest friends."

THREE KILLED

Ron Musson was killed in the President's Cup Regatta at Washington Sunday when his boat, Miss Bardahl, nosedived and disintegrated.

Rex Manchester and Don Wilson were killed two hours later when their boats collided in the final heat of the championship race.

Schoenith said most of the owners and drivers had agreed to continue the racing season, although no formal vote was taken.

BROKEN PROPELLER

Asked whether he thought Musson's disintegration was caused by a broken propeller blade, Schoenith replied, "I would say definitely, from my observation."

Schoenith said he could not say at this point whether the President's Cup Regatta would be continued.

Gorge Vale Eyes Willie Park Driver

The Gorge Vale club will have its eye on the Willie Park Driver Trophy, emblematic of the Inter-Club Golf League championship, when it moves into the final day of the current competition Wednesday.

Gorge, with a 30½ point total, now holds an eight-point edge over second-place Uplands.

Uplands swingers, who have held the championship trophy for the past three years, now have only a slim mathematical possibility of retaining the trophy.

Unless Uplands can take a nine-point sweep at Colwood while Victoria is getting at least eight out of nine at Gorge, Gorge Vale belters will triumph.

HERE'S THE LINEUP

George Bigelow and Doug Munro will swing for the visiting Victoria club against Gorge Vale's Al McLeod and Lex Sutcliffe, while Paul Trapp and R. Scott-Moncrieff take on Art Donaldson and Doug Fanthorpe of Gorge. Also playing at Gorge this weekend will be Victoria's J. R. Flanagan and Jay Wilson, who will meet Gordon Jones and Mel Carlow of the home club.

Meanwhile, Uplands plays at Colwood with Gordie Pellow and Don Billsborough of Uplands challenging the host team's Vic Painter and Don Ross.

R. Hunt and Eric Wright will meet Bill Court and Earl Davies of Colwood. Frank Scroggs and Bob Morrison will also swing for Victoria against Uplands' Ricky Kent and George Andrews.

Blair Wins Bout

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Blair Richardson, British Empire and Canadian middleweight champion from South Bar in Nova Scotia's Cape Breton, won a fifth-round technical knockout over Paul Christie of Boston in a non-title bout Monday night.

BRAVES PASS '65 FAN MARK

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Attendance at Braves' home games this year in their first campaign in Atlanta has passed the full-season total in 1965 in Milwaukee.

The crowd of 21,083 for the Braves' Saturday game with Pittsburgh boosted the 1966 total for 29 home dates to 558,242, compared with the season total of 555,589 in their lame-duck year in Milwaukee in 1965.

FOOTBALL IN JUNE?

Most Canadian Football League teams don't scrimmage until AFTER training camp opens but Darrell Mudra, Montreal Alouettes' new coach, has other ideas. On the first day of camp, usually reserved for handshaking and handing out equipment, Mudra put surprised Larks through whang-bang! scrimmage. By opening of season Als will be dead ready . . . or dead. (CP Wirephoto.)

Mudra Has Larks Hitting On Opening Day of Camp

MONTREAL (CP) — Darrell Mudra, Montreal Alouettes' head coach, wasted no time preparing nearly 70 hopefuls for the training camp grind ahead when he called a workout on the day usually reserved for medicals and documentation.

The former North Dakota State coach says he is determined to better the team's third-place finish of the last three seasons.

"Basically we don't look to change that much offensively," he said. "But one thing is certain. We will have a lot more over-all speed, a man who can kick field goals and extra points and some players capable of catching Bernie Faloney's passes."

Mudra figures the acquisition of Canadian Chet Miksza from Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Tony Pajaczkowski from Calgary Stampeders and the arrival of Pierre Desjardins, a local boy who attended the University of Wyoming, will improve his line.

Other competitors for the offensive line include Willie Taylor from B.C. Lions.

Mudra says he doesn't know what his backfield formation will be. He has returnee fullbacks Pat Batten, J. W. Lockett, and halfbacks Ernie White, returning from last year's club, and Bill Gray from Saskatchewan Roughriders to work in.

Mudra said he will have three quarterbacks to back up the veteran Faloney at the camp and "what we're looking for is one who can play another position as well."

Peter Kempf, formerly with the B.C. Lions, is expected to take up the slack in the extra points department.

INJURED BISHOP TAMES WORKERS

Playing manager Gary Bishop, plagued by a painful knee injury, hobbled out to the mound at Hampton Park to pitch King's Hotel to a 6-4 upset of Transport Workers in a Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League contest Monday night.

Bishop made use of an accurate curveball, a change-up fastball and a baffling knuckleball in order to subdue Transports' heavy hitting lineup.

Bishop fanned nine of his free-swinging opponents while yielding nine hits and giving up only three bases on balls.

Kings pounded Gord Strongman's deliveries for 15 hits. Al Cuthbert, who drove in the winning run with a single in the sixth inning, collected two runs batted in with three hits in five trips to the plate.

SWUNG THE LUMBER

Tony Cosier had a double and three singles, Gary Robertson went two for three and Dave Woodley and Gerry Macadam each had two hits for five trips.

Three runs in the top of the sixth made the difference for Kings. Dennis Thompson started things off with a walk, then came around to score on an overthrow following a double by Gary Watkins. Watkins came home on a double by Cosier before Robertson walked to set up Cuthbert's game winning single.

HEIGHTON HOT

Powerful Jim Heighton contributed to Transports' attack with a deep, towering home run and a single for four. George Fuller collected three hits, including a long double and losing pitcher Strongman went two for three at the plate.

The win was Bishop's second in two starts. Strongman lost his second of six decisions.

Transports and Kings meet again tonight at Hampton Park at 6:30.

NO PITCHERS

Luckies Largely Unlucky

Luckies were without pitchers on Monday in Senior "A" men's softball at Heywood Park.

Two outfielders and an infielder had a try at pitching against Colony Inn, but lost 17-6.

Doug Couch started for Luckies, but after facing 11 batters he was relieved by Terry Moody who lasted till the sixth inning.

Joe Patterson finished out the game for Luckies, not giving up a hit, but managed to walk four and hit a batter.

Winning pitcher Don Bota held Luckies off until the seventh inning when he was relieved by Geoff Hett after being hit for seven singles in a row.

Titled Hero Breezes Home in Plate Trial

TORONTO (CP)—Titled Hero, the 3-to-2 favorite for Saturday's 107th running of the Queen's Plate, came through as expected in his division of the Plate trials Monday at Woodbine.

Titled Hero, owned by Peter Marshall of Toronto, won the second division by 5 lengths.

But the future of Burning Luke, another strong Plate candidate, was clouded after the horse, owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Cerullo of Buffalo, N.Y., limped off the track following the first division. Burning Luke, listed at 8-to-1 for Saturday's race, finished second in the trials to Bye and Near, owned by Conn Smythe of Toronto. Bye and Near won by 3¾ lengths.

Burning Luke favored his right leg after the race. A decision doesn't have to be made until Thursday, when the final eligibility payment of $1,000 is due. Trainer Richard Mattingley will look at his horse today.

BEAT TITLED HERO

Burning Luke defeated Titled Hero last year, one of only four horses to do so.

Bye and Near's time over the 1 1-16-mile distance was 1:45 3-5.

Third in the field of nine in behind the winner, was Donlands, owned by Murray Fleming of Toronto and ridden by Cuban ace Avelino Gomez.

Titled Hero made his move at the head of the final turn of the trial race, pulled ahead of Doubting Thomas and won in a breeze. Gomez was aboard the winner who was timed in 1:43 4-5, four-fifths of a second off the track record for 1 1-16 miles.

McMAHON COLT SECOND

Bright Monarch, owned by Mrs. Frank McMahon of Vancouver, was second. Another horse owned by Mrs. McMahon, Coolie How, was last in the first division.

Arctic Troops, owned by E. P. Taylor's Windfields Farm and ridden by Hugo Dittfach of Calgary, was third just a head behind Bright Monarch. Doubting Thomas, owned by George Gardiner of Toronto and ridden by Jim Fitzimmons, former Calgarian now living in Toronto, was fourth.

Bye and Near returned $9.10, $5.10 and $4, Burning Luke $5.60 and $3.80 and Donlands $3.30. Titled Hero paid $2.60, $2.20 and $2.10, Bright Monarch $2.90 and $2.10, and Arctic Troops $2.10.

The race, scheduled to go off at 2:12 p.m. PDT at Woodbine race track on the northern fringe of Metropolitan Toronto, is expected to produce a record purse of more than $81,000. The existing record of $80,009 went to Canebora, a Taylor horse, in 1963.

The race will be carried live on CBC television.

B.C. LIONS' HOME GAMES ON CABLEVISION IN '66

Home games of British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference will again be cablevised into the Victoria area this season.

The football club awarded Victoria Cablevision Ltd. the telecast rights on Monday, it was reliably learned by The Daily Times today. Otherwise, live coverage is blacked out within a 100-mile radius of Vancouver.

It is understood, however, that while the contract has been signed, "some doubt exists" about the "availability" of televising the first two of Lions' eight home games.

SALE TO RUSSIA

Delivery Top Grain Worry

OTTAWA (CP)—An $800,000,000 Canadian wheat sale to Russia has sparked domestic hopes for higher international prices and a flurry of anxiety about delivering the huge order on time.

First word of the bonanza for the prairie grain belt came Monday from Moscow, where Trade Minister Winters announced the three-year contract for 336,000,000 bushels of wheat and wheat flour. About a third will be shipped in the next crop year starting Aug. 1.

Finance Minister Sharp, responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board, made his own announcement later in the Commons. Agriculture Minister Grene later told reporters he was "tickled pink."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said the Liberals criticized his government when it inaugurated wheat sales to Communist countries several years ago.

Mr. Winters flew to Moscow to negotiate an extension of the Canada-Rusia trade agreement to April 17, 1969. The original agrement was signed in 1957. Russia has bought $1,800,000,000 worth of Canadian wheat and flour since 1963, including the latest deal.

Mr. Greene said the massive sale wil not benefit wheat growers as much as it should unless the world prices go up in line with production costs.

He expressed the hope that trade negotiators in Geneva will agree on a new international wheat agreement with "economic prices." Canadian farmers will get close to the maximum prices under the cur-

Government officials predicted that the sale will boost the whole economy and encourage the United States to demand higher prices for its own wheat exports. Canadian officials have felt for some time the U.S. in its role as a major exporter has placed an unnecessary brake on price rises.

The Russian sale brought another increase in the price of Canadian wheat. The wheat board, which has been jacking up the price for months despite U.S. reluctance to follow suit, put it up another two cents.

The Monday increase brought the price of No. 1 Manitoba northern to more than $2.08 a bushel at the Lakehead. That is the top grade of spring wheat on which world prices are based.

The precise price on a bushel basis paid by the Russians was not announced. However, the wheat board policy is to sell to all comers at the going rate.

USE ALL PORTS

Mr. Sharp said the wheat shipments will be made from all Canadian seaports including the Hudson Bay port of Churchill, Man. Russian ships are expected to handle the bulk of the shipments as in the past, leaving the rest to chartered vessels.

Mr. Sharp said Canada agreed to a Russian demand for a ceiling price per bushel, varied according to wheat grades, for the duration of the contract.

The prices set for the first year were "slightly below the ceiling,' but he declined to give figures. Prices for the ensuing two years would be negotiated later.

The agreement calls for "substantial" flour shipments, some of which likely will be diverted to Cuba as in the past, but exact amounts will be worked out later.

Mr. Greene said the deal gives western farmers assured markets for the next three years, but the task of moving wheat off the Prairies on time would be "a national problem."

This theme was echoed on the Prairies by farm leaders.

Doug Galbraith, an official of the Farmer's Union of Alberta, said in Edmonton the Russian sale will tax Canada's grain handling facilities severely.

The onus was on the federal government to keep the grain moving. The flow had been hindered this year by harbor strikes and a shortage of boxcars.

Roy Atkinson, president of the National Farmers Union, said wheat farmers should get at least 25 cents more per bushel.

MAY COST MORE

There were many predictions that increased wheat prices will lead to higher prices for bread, meat, dairy products and feed grain. The latter boosts would result from a switch to wheat growing by many farmers now in other lines.

The trade agreement with Rusia provides for "most favored nation" tariffs between the two countries. Such tariffs are the lowest in the schedule, apart from Commonwealth tariffs.

The two governments also agreed to facilitate busines trips and trade in commodities other than wheat.

Russian negotiators said they want to expand their exports to Canada. Russia has purchased 478,000,000 bushels of wheat from Canada since 1963, always for cash on delivery.

China and Communist countries in Eastern Europe also are frequent customers, taking advantage of short-term credits.

Opposition MPs expressed the hope that returns to wheat farmers will increase, since production and living costs had gone up considerably.

Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West) said farmers could suffer from higher transportation costs, caused by wage boosts to longshoremen, seaway workers and railway employees.

Workers Seek To Share Forest Wealth

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Labor Reporter

How do you justify a $50 million wage and fringe benefit demand for 26,000 workers?

With figures showing booming profits and productivity (output per man), according to the International Woodworkers of America.

The $50 million demand represents $25 million if the full wage proposal was met, plus an industry estimate of another $25 million in fringe benefits.

No one, of course, expects the union to gain its full demands. In order for bargaining to occur, both sides must allow leeway in which to move.

On profits, the union has compiled a list of eight major wood industry companies and added up the figures.

PROSPERITY

They show these companies made a combined profit of $411.2 million in 1965 before taxes or $258 million after taxes. Figures for preceding years are lower.

Factors in this prosperity picture include higher lumber production and shipments, orders on hand and logs stocks — and prices.

Between 1963 and 1965, says the union, prices rose 18.4 per cent for cedar, 4.4 per cent for hemlock and 3.7 per cent for Douglas fir plywood.

The general retail price of construction-grade lumber has gone up $10 to $12 per 1,000 board feet in the last month.

The Victoria Home Builders' Association said this increase means an average increase of $225 in the cost of building a home in Greater Victoria.

UNIT COSTS

The IWA said that although the costs of labor per hour go up when wages rise, unit labor costs may well go down.

"To the extent that output per man-hour shows a greater increase than wages, unit labor costs are reduced," it stated.

Production per man in B.C. logging between 1957 and 1962 increased 29.6 per cent.

But wage costs per 1,000 board feet were down by 21.3 per cent.

Production per worker in sawmills rose 60.9 per cent in the same period, while wage costs per unit dropped 20.4 per cent.

In plywood, output per worker rose 49.2 per cent while labor costs as a per cent of value dropped 10 per cent.

The union's argument is: The highest-ever productivity and the highest-ever profits should equal the highest-ever wage and fringe benefit settlement.

TWO MASSIVE PROJECTS which would almost replace the present Welland Canal have been revealed by Transport Minister Pickersgill. If both projects are approved it would mean an end to the present program to twin the existing locks. One project which has been approved is the $107,000,000 new channels around the city of Welland. The second project, which is still to be approved, would cost at least $250,000,000 and would be a complete replacement in a new location of the seven-lock system at St. Catharines. Longer and fewer locks would allow bigger ships and a faster traffic flow. (CP Newsmap)

Better Jobs To Come From Automation

Automation should be welcomed not feared, Labor and Education Minister Leslie Peterson told the B.C. Federation of Labor conference on automation Friday.

Admitting automation's initial impact may cause some dislocation, he was confident "it will eventually result in more rewarding jobs."

Automation will bring "greater prosperity tnd monetary rewards for all," the minister said.

It will increase average productivity, raise the standard of living, and enable B.C. to compete more effectively in the world market.

Later the same day, Mr. Peterson told the first graduating class of the B.C. Institute of Technology that their brilliant success will make people realize "there are paths other than university which lead to educational fulfillment and an economically successful career."

He congratulated the Burnaby institute on succeeding "far better than I dared hope when the province, with financial assistance from the federal government, brought this institution into being."

AFTER RATE REDUCTION

Hydro Net Income Down

VANCOUVER (CP) — A big drop in net income but higher gross earnings were reported Monday by British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority.

The government-owned agency's annual report said net income dropped to $7,523,389 from last year's $13,162,522 — a reduction that "partially reflects the electric rate reductions introduced April 1, 1965."

Gross earnings climbed 1.9 per cent to $160,777,546. Kilowatt-hour electricity sales increased 15.8 per cent and gas sales were up 5.3 per cent.

The report also broke down revenue from both electricity sales and gas sales. Hydro got $104,917,978 from electricity and $31,198,277 from gas.

Railway freight revenues of more than $6,000,000 and transit service revenues of $14,044,258 accounted for the rest of Hydro's income.

FINAL TAXES

The report showed the authority has settled with the federal government the final amount due in income taxes from the B.C. Electric Company, taken over by the provincial government in 1961 to facilitate fomation of the Crown power agency.

Ottawa was paid $1,098,511 in final settlement, releasing $2,639,072, which Hydro had set aside for taxes, into the stabilization of rates and contingency reserve.

B.C. Hydro said it has spent almost $100,000,000 so far on the Columbia River project and still has almost $200,000,000 in cash.

Hydro's annual report said the authority made $22,626,121 in interest on the advance American payment of $273,291,661 from September, 1964, to March, 1966.

Of the total $295,917,782, $97,914,505 was spent on the Columbia project, $137,002,652 was invested in short-term notes and $61,000,625 "had been borrowed temporarily by the authority for other purposes."

The report did not say what the "other purposes" were.

TOTAL COSTS

The authority spent $69,828,006 on the Peace River project last year, bringing the total spent so far on that scheme to $147,459,931.

Of the $137,002,652 of the Columbia money invested in short-term notes, the Province of Quebec got $60,000,000 at 5.05 per cent interest; the Kinross Mortgage Corp. $50,000,000 at 5.67 per cent and the Bank of Montreal $26,685,000 at 5.40 per cent.

The report said construction of the Duncan Dam, the first of three Columbia dams, was half complete and some work had been done on the two other dams, the Arrow and the Mica. Work was on schedule.

On the Peace, the Portage Mountain Dam had reached a height of 240 feet, less than half its finished height of 600. Work on this project also is on time, said the report.

Log Case Adjourned

VANCOUVER (CP)—A B.C. Supreme Court hearing into an application by resort owners for a writ to halt a log drive on the Stellako River in north central British Columbia was adjourned Monday.

The resort owners in an area 80 miles west of Prince George are seeking the writ to halt the log drive because of a warning by the federal fisheries department that the drive would damage salmon spawning grounds.

The adjournment until Friday was agreed to Monday after counsel for both the federal and provincial governments sought time to prepare their cases.

Meanwhile, officials of the B.C. lands and forests department, who are conducting the drive contrary to a federal ban, said they completed the seven-mile drive late Monday. It began last Tuesday.

PRIVATE FIRMS

The federal fisheries department had recently issued an order prohibiting private firms from conducting log drives on the Stellako iver because they would affect gravel spawning beds.

The resort owners claim the drive will ruin the sport fishing in the area.

B.C. Forests Minister Ray Williston has maintained that the river is at high water and the drive would have no effect on spawning beds.

The drive was authorized by the B.C. government in defiance of the federal order and involves about 8,000,000 board feet of timber moving to Fraser Lake from Francois Lake.

Pipeline Argument

WASHINGTON (CP) — An American proposal to provide additional Eastern Canada needs for natural gas would cost Canadian consumers nearly $10,000,000 more annually, Trans-Canada Pipe Line Co. contends. Trans-Canada and its American allies are presenting that argument today to the Federal Power Commission as hearings resume on rival applications to get more gas to Ontario.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices showed considerable irregularity in active trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today, with broad advances and aggressive demand in early activity.

Some buying on U.S. markets helped the upswing, but there was considerable profit-taking on American markets and early broad advances were reduced or erased. This resulted in some broad gains in Winnipeg being reduced.

A heavy volume of barley trading was noted with shipping interests preparing for domestic and international trade.

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures prices fell into a fast and broad skid today after having been sharply higher on another delayed opening of the board of trade.

Wheat and soybeans were down about 10 cents a bushel from their highs of the day in early afternoon transactions on pressure described as mainly profit cashing. Dealers said apperently there was also a heavier volume of short selling than on recent days. At their peaks, most commodities again were at season high levels.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Vancouver Mines Slump

Nine mining issues hit lows for the year in sluggish trade on the Vancouver Stock Exchange today.

Trading on Wall Street picked up today and the price picture brightened slightly. Prices edged higher at Toronto.

AT NEW YORK in a technical rally with no particular news behind it, the list moved ahead following an irregular start. Such glamor stocks as airlines, aerospace issues, color televisions, other electronics, office equipments and photographic issues took their accustomed positions of market leadership.

Sperry Rand loomed again as the most active stock, but this time it was unable to post any gain.

Taft Broadcasting, up nearly 2, also was active, helped by a big block.

Fairchild Camera was up about 7 points while gains of 3 points or so were made by Johnson and Johnson, Gulf and Western Industries, Delta Airlines, Chicago and North Western Common and its preferred. Northwest Airlines spurted about 4.

AT VANCOUVER the losses were marginal but widespread across the board.

Among mines slumping were Bornite, down .01 to .35; Copper Ridge, off .01 to .30; Endako, down .12 to $10.50; Midwest, off .01 to .45; Nadina, down .10 to $1.80; Northwest Ventures, off ½ to .12; Rodstrom, down .03 to .40; Silver Titan, down .10 to $2, and Ventures, off .08 to .52.

Northlode was an exception in the trading, gaining .14 to a high for the year of .97.

In the industrials, CPR added $4 to $65.75, presumably reflecting the new grain deal signed between Canada and Russia.

MacMillan, Bloedel was off .25 to $25.87 and Massey lost .12 to $34.37.

AT TORONTO bank issues were big winners. Bank of Montreal gained 1⅛ to 60, Royal Bank 1¼ to 74½ and Bank of Nova Scotia and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce 1 each to 70 and 64¼.

Transportation and grain issues also gained, on news of three-year, $800,000,000 wheat and flour deal with the Soviet Union. CPR climbed 1⅝ to 65½ and Canada Steamship lines ¾ to 35¼.

Maple Leaf Mills gained 1 to 16½, and Ogilvie Flour Mills ½ to 14 among grain issues.

In senior base metals, gains of ⅜ each went to Falconbridge, at 90 and Inco, at 96⅞. Rio Algom gained ¼ to 25.

AT MONTREAL banks led most sections fractionally higher in moderate trading.

Industrial volume was 105,000 and mines and oils 334,800. Among the banks Royal jumped 1⅜ to 74½ and Montreal one point to 60.

AT LONDON the stock market wavered uncertainly today with a market impression gathering force that Britain's seamen's strike is as far as ever from any settlement.

Demand was small, selective and usually related to company news.

Canada Firm To Open Chine Mine

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — John C. Doyle, a director and former president of Canadian Javelin, said Monday the company will open a copper mine in Northern Chile under a revised corporate setup affecting many Caadian holdings of the Doyle interests.

He gave no date for the opening.

In a telephone interview from Montreal with radio station CJON, Mr. Doyle said a new formula will lay out "spheres of influence" for the Jubilee Iron Corp. and the Newfoundland and Labrador Corp., both Javelin subsidiaries.

The changes mean the former firm, under the new name Jubilee Mining Corp., will handle much of the mining and mine exploration and development of Javelin. NALCO will concentrate on timber concessions. The changes also will give Bison Petroleum, another Javelin subsidiary, rights to oil exploration off Newfoundland and now held by Jubilee.

GET 50 PER CENT

Jubilee Iron Corp. had acquired "50 per cent interest in approximately 80 square miles of copper concessions in the immediate vicinity of . . . a coastal port in northern Chile."

"It is planned to immediately begin construction of an operating mine on the property. The location permits profits to be exported as it is in the northern free zone of Chile.

Engineers have estimated on an initial basis that profits should equal approximately $1,000,000 a year, based on a price of only two-thirds of the current market quotations for Chilean copper."

The ore was three and one-half per cent copper, he said.

Park To Get Mine Airstrip

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial parks authorities confirmed Monday that an American-owned mining company looking for minerals in Tweedsmuir provincial park has been given permission to build an airstrip in the park.

Ashfork Mines Ltd., Canadian subsidiary of Phelps Dodge Corp. of the U.S., has staked about 270 claims near the western boundary of the park, about 320 miles northwest of here.

Some mineral claims are within the park, said authorities.

A spokesman said a permit to build and operate an airstrip in the park was granted because otherwise the company would have wanted an access road which would have caused more damage.

The mineral claims were staked by the company from 1959 to 1966. Under new legislation approval is necessary from the recreation minister for further prospecting in such Class B parks.

Tweedsmuir is a 2,400,000-acre park, largely undeveloped.

The parks branch spokesman said the company was told that if and when a mine comes into production inside the park, new road access must be provided from the coast.

TALK RECESSED

House Hears Student Loan Proposals

By PAUL DUNN

OTAWA (CP) — Students, farmers and Canada's fledging film industry drew the attention of the Commons Monday.

The box score at adjournment:

—Debate on an amendment to the Canada Students Loans Act, increasing the loan fund to $58,000,000 from $42,000,000 and giving the finance minister greater discretion in doling it out, was adjourned and is scheduled to come up again this week.

—A resolution proposing establishment of a Canadian dairy commission to operate the present milk subsidy program, control marketing and promote consumption of dairy products was approved.

—A resolution to help found a feature film industry in Canada through establishment of a Canadian film development Corp.—with initial resources of $10,000,000 — was approved.

John Turner, minister without portfolio, supported the student loan bill but looked ahead to the day when university tuition might be abolished.

He hoped the loan scheme could eventually be broadened to include night-and part-time students. It might some day become a scholarship program.

BASED ON POPULATION

At present loans are made at provincial request based on provinces' populations in the 18-24 age bracket. A student may borrow a maximum $1,000 a year up to a top of $5,000 during his university studies. Loans are repaid after graduation at bank interest rates.

Under the proposed amendment to the Loans Act, the finance minister could pay out up to 20 per cent of money in the fund above a province's allotment at his discretion.

Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West) felt too many students without proper academic qualifications were finding it easier to enter universities. This was a waste of time. The stress should be on improved university facilities and better pay for teachers.

Maurice Allard (Ind - PC—Sherbrooke) said the loans bill was unconstitutional. The provinces are responsible for education. Possibly nine of them didn't mind the scheme but Quebec wanted to be mistress over education.

Herb Gray (L—Essex West) said 91,000 students had taken advantage of the loan plan since its inception two years ago.

Agriculture Minister Greene, who introduced the dairy commission resolution, said the new agency would have three main functions: to operate the existing milk subsidy program, control interprovincial and international marketing and promote consumption of dairy products.

PAY PRICE SUPPORTS

The board would co-operate closely with provincial dairy marketing boards. Dairy price supports and the commission's administration costs would be paid by the federal government. The commission would pay for other activities through licences and other levies on the industry.

Theogene Ricard (PC — St. Hyacinthe-Bagot) said his party supported creation of the commission which was three years overdue.

Present subsidies for manufacturing milk were inadequate and well below the promised level of $4 a hundredweight.

Jean-Jaul Racine (L—Beauce) said the commission would be able to provide much the same service to eastern dairy farmers that the Canadian wheat board now gives western wheat farmers.

With the exception of Ralph B. Cowan (L—York Humber) MPs were generally satisfied with the proposed Canadian film development corporation.

Mr. Cowan thought it improper that the government would spend $10,000,000 on the film industry but would not raise the monthly old-age pension to $100 from $75.

Earlier Monday the Commons gave final reading to amendments to plug loopholes in the Bankruptcy Act. The legislation increases the power of the federal superintendent of bankruptcy to investigate fraudulent bankruptcies.

Lightning Strikes End Quiet Period

A rash of lightning strikes in the northern area of the Prince George forest district broke a month-long period of relative quiet in this year's forest fire season, B.C. Forest Service reported Saturday.

Most serious outbreak this week was a 20,000-acre fire burning southwest of the Alaska Highway and Laird River, between miles 508 and 515.

Although hazards were moderate to high in northeast B.C. and in the west section of Kamloops forest district, they remain low to moderate elsewhere in the province.

A total of 52 fires were extinguished this week at a cost of $21,500. Forty-nine fires are still burning.

NEW CONTRACT

Air Employees Accepting Terms

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman for the Air Canada Sales Employees Association reported early today that 84 per cent of the employees have voted to accept terms of a new contract with Air Canada.

Montreal members voted to accept terms of the agreement Friday night. The agreement was reached Wednesday night between representatives of the association and Air Canada.

The spokesman said results of the voting across Canada showed that 1,042 were in favor of accepting the new contract while 166 opposed it. There are more than 1,500 sales employees across Canada.

A spokesman for the 150-member Vancouver local said the vote there was 56 per cent against acceptance of the settlement terms.

The new contract, to remain in effect until July 31, 1968, provides for an eight-per-cent increase retroactive to June 1, with another increase of seven per cent in 12 months, effective for 14 months.

A retroactive settlement of $150 to $250, depending on seniority, is to be paid to cover the six-month period since the last working agreement expired.

Sales clerks currently are paid a minimum of $64.70 a week, rising to $109. 49 after five and one-half years service.

SLOOP DIDO RETURNS HOME

YARMOUTH, Isle of Wight (UPI) — Two young Britons, who sailed both ways across the Atlantic in a 21-foot sloop arrived here safely Monday.

The pair, both engineering draughtsmen for the Hawker Siddeley Engine Company at Bristol, left there last August in the sloop Dido. They sailed via Portugal to Barbados and then headed back. They estimated they would reach home again June 14.

John Bennett, 26, of Shorewell, Isle of Wight, and William Buzzard, 32, of Amonsbury near Bristol, sailed into the harbor during the night—six days behind their schedule.

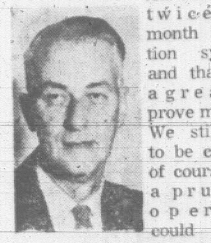
It used to be in Saanich that the garbage collectors came once a month, a circumstance that worked a considerable hardship on householders.

While we never reached Vancouver's unhappy condition, we did have to burn what we could, flatten all tin cans, and hope earnestly for a Boy Scout bottle drive.



In the course of time, Saanich went on a twice-a-month collection system, and that was a great improvement. We still had to be careful, of course, but a prudent operator could reach the end of the fortnight without serious disposal problems arising.

Yesterday morning, with a week still to go, we heard a familiar clanging and clattering in the drive, and learned that change has struck again.

For this summer at least, collection will be once a week—an innovation that puts us darn near in the metropolitan class.

It's all for the best, I suppose, but we still recall the monthly collection, which was a dramatic event. No marooned ship's crew ever greeted rescue more eagerly than we, and to be missed was an outright disaster.

Also, progress has its price. From an original $5, the annual cost of the service rose first to $8, and now stands at $10.

A car with Oregon plates pulled in to the road strip late Monday afternoon, and the driver poked his straw-hatted head out the window.

"I wonder if you could tell me," he asked, "how we get to Butchart Gardens?"

Directed, the visitors rolled on, and I went back to my driveway sweeping.

We scored a California car half an hour or so later, then took ourselves indoors, convinced that one of Victoria's pleasanter seasonal phenomena has commenced.

American children are getting out of school, and a host of American families are pushing off for a holiday among the friendly foreigners who inhabit the lands to the north.

That's us, chums. Another tourist season has begun, and if the ferries run and the weather plays along, it should be a good one.

My part in it consists mostly of telling strayed visitors how to reach those famous gardens, and for a reason which has nothing whatever to do with the economic significance of the tourist trade, I am glad to undertake it.

The many of us who have holidayed in their foreign country remember very well the courtesy, decency and downright kindness shown to Canadians on tour by Americans at home.

Surely, when they visit us here, they deserve as good.

There was a time when a high school student who wrote verse found it best to keep the fact to himself. But today's young crop takes poetry in stride.

These boys and girls give short shrift to rhyme, and theirs are not the easy rhythms of the past. At its worst, their work is pedestrian, but often they produce a fine, fractured music.

One of the best collections of young verse to come my way is titled 'The Vulgar Age.' It was produced by student editors of Mount Douglas Secondary and contains 42 poems.

Here is Steve Hume's 'Contemporary Primitive':

Boys in tennis shoes and leather stand daring sluffish traffic with their dark-Crusader eyes.
The girls, half-women, faces shrouded by the tangle,
hook, and dangle of their hair,
stand like strangely articulate flowers
criss-crossed in stark directions
by the metal-rigid forest of meters.
The harsh light of the neons glistens off dark leather,
transmuting shadows black to green,
and lending system-ragged eyes
a sea-lit, green, primaeval brightness.

FOR MORE THAN HALF A CENTURY this winding section of Fort Street has been a headache to 53 city councils. Today, after a long history of squabbles the narrow street is succumbing to progress. Before the year is out the Dardanelles will have disappeared to bring to a close a chapter of city history which started in 1913.—(Times Photo.)

53 YEARS OF BLOOD, FRET AND TEARS

By JIM HUME

In November, 1913, Victoria city council appointed an arbitrator to handle expropriation claims expected to arise from a plan to widen Fort Street.

That decision marked the start of a program which ends this year as the long notorious Dardanelles, described in the official record as that part of Fort "between Yates and Harrison to Oak Bay Junction," falls to the machinery of the modern road maker.

If 53 years seems a long time to complete a relatively simple road widening program, don't be hard on city council. The path was strewn with obstacles ranging from lack of money to stubborn home owners. And for measure two world wars were tossed across the path.

At that long ago city council meeting when the decision to widen Fort from Cook to Ormond—many blocks from the Dardanelles but still the start of the project—was taken other worries were pressing the city fathers.

Horse Problem

Nellie Christie was asking for an extension of time before disposing of a horse as ordered by the city's health and morals committee.

Windsor Grocery was in process of losing its contract to supply groceries to the Isolation Hospital because it was charging "first-class prices for second-class goods."

And the unemployed prowled Victoria's streets looking for work.

It was in 1913 that Mayor A. J. Morley and his entire council voted to give up their annual stipend so that the unemployed—a few of them, anyway—could eat that Christmas.

The Dardanelles (that name was to be born four years later in one of the fiercest battles Britain ever lost) was a problem.

Staggering Sum

But so was the city's water supply, the cost of living, Capt. S. H. Brown, and the president of the New Method Laundry.

For the water the city needed $450,000, a staggering sum in those days, for a dam and control building at Sooke Lake.

And Capt. Brown was again complaining that he was being assessed for a sewer connection when his home didn't have one.

As for the president of New Method, he asked city council for special low water rates for steam laundries "operated by white labor" and got his reduced rate.

In 1914 the plan to widen Fort picked up steam.

Mrs. Isabella Prior was paid $1,750 for a lot she owned. A month later James P. Laker, recognizing council's urgency, offered "a portion of his lot required for the widening of Fort" to the city for $2,100.

Inflation was on the way in.

So were civic votes for women (their first demand to council was made in 1914) and so was the First World War.

Had To Come

But council had a target and through suffragette movements and the war to end war it never lost sight of its aims.

Come hell or high water Fort Street was going to be widened.

In March of that fateful year council supported a motion by the mayor of Windsor urging the federal government to build a deep waterway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic.

It also had its finance committee study a "claim from J. P. Elford" regarding the widening of Fort.

Unfortunately the records contain no details of the claim nor the dispensation of it.

In May, 1914, the Rev. Dr. Campbell wrote to council urging them to get on with the Fort Street project.

"Let us have prompt action," he said.

Council would have been happy to oblige but they tabled the letter without comment and considered an application for cluster lights on Cormorant and a complaint regarding the smoke nuisance from the Union Club.

The letter may have sparked the next surge forward in the overall plan, however, for a month later J. P. Elford (of earlier claim) petitioned council to get on with at least part of the project under the Local Improvement regulations.

On June 29 council voted a $50 grant to the school board and passed a motion to widen Fort from Linden to Yates.

In July the laying of sidewalks in the already widened areas began and the city settled a claim by J. G. Brown that his property between Linden and Yates had been unduly affected by progress.

Second Look

J. H. Gray complained to council that month too. He said the city should take a second look at its plans before it destroyed already ancient trees lining the narrow street.

Council looked a second time and trees were removed.

Whether because of the long and tedious hassles continually blocking speedy progress on Fort, or whether for other reasons, Ald. Herbert Cuthbert resigned from council that month accompanying his resignation with a $50 cheque.

It made little difference to council for that same month of June the council passed its first formal bylaw authorizing the spending of money to make "Fort Street a uniform width of 76 feet from Linden to Yates."

The Dardanelles was starting to feel the hot breath of the grader.

But determined though council was to eliminate what was already being termed a death trap, it couldn't buck the conflagration touched off in Europe that sunny August.

Unfair Treatment

In November, 1914, there was one brief reference to the widening of Fort when Dr. W. E. Home complained of unfair treatment in the adjustment of his Fort Street property line.

It was the last serious reference to road building programs for quite a few years.

But Fort and the Dardanelles were not forgotten.

In 1922 D. H. Bale wrote to council warning them that homeowners would not go along with their plans unless council assured them of full and adequate compensation.

The same gentleman, while anxious that his pocketbook be protected, acknowledged that there was a problem in the narrow, winding Dardanelles.

Pressure BCE

He suggested in a second letter to council that they pressure B.C. Electric into removing its street car tracks and relocating them on Pandora. Such a move would, he said, remove much of the danger.

In July, 1922, council made its first formal move into the Dardanelles. Establishing a committee to study all facets of the problem it also gave the committee "the power to make any investigations they see fit."

But property owners, some of them pioneer families, were hard to convince. Each year as property became available the city snipped away at acquisition.

In the meantime they clamped severe police restrictions on traffic travelling the narrow street, ordered "certain poles removed and relocated" and drew to the attention of B.C. Electric the coroner's jury rider commenting on the dangerous condition of the Dardanelles.

Painful Progress

Still, after close to 10 years of trying, the city knew what it wanted. But as 1922 ended with the city fathers promising to clean up a $200,000 overdraft with the Bank of Montreal early in 1923, progress was painful.

Money was short, the depression but a cock-stride away and the city firemen wanted a raise in pay.

They got it, too, with every fireman on city staff able to tell his wife he now earned $113.50 a month before deductions.

For the next 42 years successive city fathers plugged away at the Dardanelles. Property was acquired, plans were laid, committees formed and disbanded, and in July, 1948, the street cars stopped running.

One problem remained: there was never enough money to get on with the job.

And so the sitaution remained until June, 1964, when Victoria voters went to the polls and approved a $3,387,000 money bylaw.

Capital Budget

That was the famous Capital Budget bylaw which included the dazzling beauty of Centennial Square, the revitalization of Bastion Square and $861,000 for road improvements.

Tucked in that road improvement program was all the money city engineer James Garnett needed to fulfill the program started 53 years ago.

That's why the men and the machines are in the Dardanelles today. They're wiping out a half-century headache.

GAGLARDI WANTS HOT JET FOR COLD WAR STAND BY

Flying Phil has a new reason for buying a twin-jet job he has his eye on.

Would you believe it's a Cold War necessity?

Earlier, Highways Minister Gaglardi said it was needed because at his age a pressurized aircraft is a health requirement but Monday he added it would speed cabinet ministers to an atomic war hideout.

The highways department now is testing the Lear jet, which has been offered for $480,000 instead of the usual retail price of about $700,000.

Mr. Gaglardi said he expects a decision on the aircraft will be made in about a month.

As part of the Civil Defence plan, Mr. Gaglardi's department is responsible for taking two cabinet ministers—he wouldn't say which ones—to a secret location in the Interior.

He said a new hangar already has been built at the secret location to house the aircraft.

"The forces of government are to be divided in case of conflagration—but I can't give details."

Layoff Hits 53 At Plywood Mill

Veneer Curtailed By Youbou Strike

Fifty-three workers were laid off today at the B.C. Forest Products plywood mill here because of a shortage of veneer caused by a strike at Youbou.

They are day and night shift workers with little seniority or those hired as summer replacements.

The cutback came on the graveyard shift, displacing 53 persons on to other shifts and "bumping" those with little or no seniority.

Members of the International Woodworkers of America are continuing to work in Greater Victoria, but those in the Duncan district local are on strike.

The Youbou mill, near Lake Cowichan, produces some of the veneer used in the production of plywood at the Gorge Road mill.

The layoff does not cover the entire graveyards shift, which numbers between 80 and 90. Not affected here is the production of local veneer.

"The jobs no longer required on graveyard were 53," said a mill spokesman.

"They were transferred to other shifts. All of the 53 are working in other departments but this has put other employees out."

Veneer is the fraction-of-an-inch result of peeling logs. Layers of veneer are put together to form plywood.

BACK TO WORK

At the Victoria Plywood mill on Hallowell Road, the 225 strikers returned to work on the night shift Monday after settling two internal differences with the company which sparked a walkout last Thursday night.

About 10,000 of the 26,000 coastal woodworkers continued their strike against the wishes of the regional negotiating committee which wanted them to wait until a mediator's recommendations are ready later this week.

On Vancouver Island, about 4,300 workers in the Duncan-Nanaimo-Lake Cowichan-Port Renfrew area remained on strike against 30 operations.

'SHOCKER' DRAWS 6 MONTHS

A Victoria man was jailed for six months today when convicted for the fifth time of driving while his licence was under suspension.

Keith Ford, 1661 Fell St., was also sentenced to an additional 14 days in jail when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

He was arrested at the Oak Bay Marina Monday night after police chased a speeding car on Beach Drive.

The court heard that Ford sped past a stop sign and mounted a curb at the marina parking lot, nearly hitting several pedestrians.

'SHOCKING RECORD'

"It's quite impossible for you to say anything in view of that shocking record," Magistrate Ostler told the accused.

The previous four convictions for driving while under suspension occurred over the past 3½ years and Ford served jail terms on three occasions and was fined $500 on the fourth. He had also been convicted of failing to remain at the scene of an accident in 1962 and was to the consecutive jail terms today, he was also barred from driving anywhere in the country for the next three years.

FERRY CREW LEADERS IN SESSION

Leaders of a newly-formed union of deck and catering workers on B.C. Ferries were to meet this afternoon.

The meeting was prompted by the employees' rejection of a report recommending various improvements in working conditions.

The workers said they want full collective bargaining, which would mean the right to negotiate with the ferry authority on all matters in the same way as in private industry.

There has been no comment from the government on the request for full collective bargaining, although similar requests from other civil servants in the past have not been approved.

A spokesman for the B.C. Ferry Authority Employees Association hoped talks will be possible with a special cabinet sub-committee on ferry problems.

ZONE ASKED

New Clinic Proposed At Solarium

A treatment clinic for cerebral palsy and allied diseases is planned for a three-acre site on property owned by the Queen Alexandra Solarium in Saanich.

The site is at the northwest corner of Arbutus and Haro and would be the new home for the Handicapped Children's Clinic, formerly the Cerebral Palsy Clinic, now located at the Lansdowne campus of the University of Victoria.

The clinic has applied to Saanich for a change of zoning to allow it to go ahead.

The administrator of the Solarium, J. S. Hodstock, said the Handicapped Children's Clinic was looking for a new home and the Hospitals Planning Council felt the best location was on grounds owned by the solarium.

OUT-PATIENT CARE

A single-storey building for out-patient care is planned, he said.

While there was no direct connection between the clinic and Solarium, except it would be on the Solarium's property, it is planned eventually to locate all facilities for the care and treatment of children in one place, he said.

Q. Was VE the same as VJ Day? M.P.L.

A. No. VE day, Victory in Europe Day, was May 8, 1945 while VJ day, Victory in Japan Day was, for Britain, Aug. 15, 1945 and for the United States, Sept. 2, 1945. Reference for these dates is the Oxford English Dictionary.

Q. Who wrote the line "Come back to Indiana—not too late" and what is the rest of the stanza? G.R.A.

A. That line is the first of the last quatrain of a section of Hart Crane's "The Bridge." The whole stanza is:

"Come back to Indiana—not too late!
(Or will you be a ranger to the end?)
Good-bye . . . Good-bye . . . oh, I shall always wait
You, Larry, traveller—stranger, son,—my friend"

SHE STAYS!

Happy End Written To Masako's Story

Masako Endo, who was grilled by officials, held and then ordered to be deported after her arrival in Vancouver Friday, is going to be allowed to stay in Canada after all.

"We are not a heartless bunch of red-tape-crazy bureaucrats," said regional director R. L. Hawkins in announcing the decision.

He denied the decision to let her stay was "a change of position."

Mr. Hawkins said officials had some doubt whether Masako was coming as a visitor or to be a domestic help for the Victoria family that invited her to Canada.

"Once we were satisfied she will be a visitor only we decided to recommend she be allowed to remain here."

APPEAL BOARD

The recommendation will go to an immigration appeal board in Ottawa that will consider the case.

A special inquiry officer had ordered Masako to be deported after she arrived in Vancouver Friday.

She was on her way to Victoria to spend four months with the J. H. Collins family at 1071 Gosper Crescent. She wanted to come here to learn about Canada and its people. Mr. Collins contacted her after reading her appeal in the Victoria Daily Times for a Canadian sponsor.

The reason given for the deportation order was that she did not have the visitor's visa required by Japanese who want to stay more than three months in Canada.

$500 BOND

Masako was released in custody of the Collins after she posted a $500 bond pending appeal of the deportation order.

The appeal board still has to consider her case but it is a foregone conclusion, now that authorities have recommended the visa requirement be waived, that she will be allowed to stay.

Mr. Collins said this morning he is delighted with the turnabout of events but he was highly critical of immigration authorities.

"Why did they have to put Masako through that ordeal? Why could it not have been settled there and then at Vancouver before this whole hassle got started?" he asked.

He said Masako is "delighted and relieved" at the news. He added, "The ordeal is over."

540 MILES FROM BARKERVILLE

Stagecoach Run to End in City

Victoria will be the end of the line for three major centennial journeys.

A 540-mile stage coach run from Barkerville in the Cariboo to Victoria was announced today as a centennial project of the Canadian Confederation Centennial Committee of B.C.

Already planned is a daring canoe race from the headwaters of the Fraser River to Victoria's Inner Harbor and a nostalgic vintage car run from New Westminister, through the interior, back to Vancouver Island and Victoria.

The stage coach and six horses will leave Barkerville at 10 a.m. July 4 for the two-month expedition.

They will be driven the entire distance from Barkerville to Vancouver, ferried across to Nanaimo and then to Victoria.

The coach and horses are due to arrive at Nanaimo Aug. 27. They will leave Nanaimo Aug. 29, arriving at Ladysmith at 2 p.m.

From Ladysmith they will travel over the Trans-Canada Highway to Duncan Aug. 30. The following day they will leave Duncan for Shawnigan Lake, leaving again the following day, Sept. 1, for the Malahat.

They are scheduled to arrive at Langford Sept. 2 and from there on to Victoria arriving at 2 p.m. Sept. 3. Two days later they will stop at Sidney.

PADDLERS NAMED

Meantime expert paddlers from Prince George and Kamloops have been selected to man the B.C. centennial canoe, Simon Fraser.

The team was chosen after time trials over a 50-mile course on the North Thompson River near Kamloops last weekend.

AUG. 6 START

The run from Fort St. James to Victoria will begin Aug. 6.

The teams competing are from seven provinces, the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Plans to welcome the vintage car buffs have been made at 21 communities in the interior and on Vancouver Island.

The cars are scheduled to arrive at Duncan July 9 for lunch and then to drive to Victoria completing the run about 5:30 p.m.

Beach Belles Rescued By Sea-Nymph Beauty

By PENNY SAVER

Do you feel all "washed-out" in last year's swim suit? This is the time to drown that old suit and come back to the beaches in bathing beauty style. After a good season, more than likely last summer's bathing suit has acquired that "natural look." So natural that perhaps it does nothing to enhance your loveliness. Don't hide in the water when you can be the belle of the beach in the suits that I found in one shop.

These wonders have added something new to the old built-in bra swim suits. The renovation takes the form of a tabbed bra insert, to make your figure perfect. It is self-adjusting so you can have the proportions just perfect for you.

The suits themselves are colorful prints featuring pale and bright toned flowers on an aqua background. Price is $29.95. To keep the brand-new loveliness throughout the season, wash the suit often in cold water and a mild soap. Never machine-wash or dry. Instead, let it dry naturally in the sun.

Flirtatious ruffles are the key note in fashion for every season. This summer, be a dazzler in cotton blouses that are almost hidden in wispy lace and ruffles. Colors are bold blue and greens, crisp whites and soft shades of pink. Styles feature shirtwaist collars with button-down front, or rounded necklines with bows and frills galore. Match your summer wardrobe colors with a blouse from this selection. Prices range from $7.98. They come in printed or plain patterns.

Even with the excitement that always accompanies summer, your lingerie wardrobe should not be neglected. This shop has the perfect supplement. Shadow-proof slips made of silk and linen blend in full or half length, sell for $4.50 and $3.50 respectively. These have layers of ribbon joined by faggoting at the hemline. Thus, if the slip is too long for the short woman, simply clip off the desired amount at the faggoting. Colors are white, black, blue and pink.

Be a knock-out instead of a wash-out this summer. Give Penny a call at 382-3131, and she'll tell you where she found these.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Swimming Is Big Help In Streamlining Figure

Lowman

Swimming is a great leveler of figures and personalities. A good figure is the only status symbol you need when on a beach. There is no more luxurious and pleasant way to improve your figure than to swim. It is less strenuous exercise (unless done at the competition level) than the usual kind, because your body weight is supported by the water.

Swimming will normalize your figure by rounding out curves where needed and working off bulges you don't need. In fact it will streamline your figure beautifully. It is too bad that so many women drop the habit of swimming in the mature years because it is a perfect sport for all ages. In fact you can begin at any age.

Besides its cosmetic value, swimming gives you such tremendous health benefits. It is blessing to the nervous person, the one who suffers from insomnia, the one who wishes to gain weight, loosen up stiff joints, strengthen the heart with minimum strain and increase pep and stamina.

If you are out of the habit of swimming why not take it up again this summer for a buildup in beauty and health? Perhaps it would add zest to your swimming to learn a new stroke. What about a back stroke?

Before starting to learn the two back strokes, sculling and the back crawl, you should learn how to float and how to tread water. All swimmers should know how to do these two things. They give the beginner confidence and are sometimes useful as safety measures.

Treading water is easy. When you first try, take hold of the end of a boat or a float or the edge of a pool. Take a deep breath and let go. It will surprise you that your head remains so near the top of the water.

Start kicking with your feet or pulling with your arms or both. You can take very small, quick little breast strokes while in the upright position or you can pull down with your hands as you give a strong kick with your feet. You will bob up before you know it.

Pretty soon you will find that it takes a very little motion to keep standing upright in the water. You will be able to do this using your feet only, by walking in the water.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Learn to Swim" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. You can literally teach yourself or your children how to swim by following this leaflet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

TODAY'S RECIPE

NEW LOOK POTATO SALAD

Four cups cubed cooked potatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, 2 tablespoons salad or olive oil, 2 to 3 tablespoons mayonnaise 1 tablespoon vinegar, 3 oranges, peeled, cut into bite-size pieces (1½ to 2 cups), 1-3 cup chopped green onion tops, ¼ cup chopped parsley, salad greens.

Sprinkle potatoes with salt and pepper; add oil and toss lightly to coat. Add mayonnaise and vinegar, tossing to blend. Mix in remaining ingredients. Refrigerate 1 hour to blend flavors. Serve on crisp salad greens. Makes four servings.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Don't Cast Son In Husband Role

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 37. My husband died three years ago, leaving me with a 14-year-old son I'll call Joel. I loved my husband dearly, but he had been incurably ill for a year and suffered terribly, so his death was a blessing. Joel took it hard as he and his father had been great pals. I made Joel "man-of-the-house." He became my "beau" and escorted me in place of his father. I let him handle the money when we went marketing. He took over surprisingly well.

About 6 months ago I started seeing a 44-year-old widower. Abby, I never thought I could be so happy again. He is kind and gentle, and he adores me. I asked Joel how he felt about my remarrying, and he is violently opposed to the idea. He enjoyed being the "man-of-the-house" and doesn't want to go back to being a little boy again. My son comes first, but I know I could never find a better man, and I don't want to spend the rest of my life alone. Yet how can I marry a man knowing it will break my son's heart?

DIFFICULT DECISION

DEAR DIFFICULT: Marry the man. It was a mistake to cast your son in the role of substitute husband. No wonder he regards another man in your life as a rival and a threat. Encourage Joel to make a social life of his own among his contemporaries. His attitude is understandably adolescent, but with maturity he will be less hurt and more realistic.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me if I am wrong for feeling the way I do? When I got married my aunt and uncle gave my husband and me a garbage pail for a wedding gift. I accepted it, but took it as an insult. I remain, very truly yours,

"INSULTED"

DEAR INSULTED: While it may not have been the most glamorous gift, it was certainly one of the most practical. I see nothing insulting about a useful gift given in good faith.

DEAR ABBY: I am so mad at my mother I could scream. I ordered 75 invitations to my high school graduation. (You have to order them in batches of 25.) My mother asked to see the list of people I intended to send them to, so I showed her the list and she crossed off 51 names! She said sending a graduation invitation was the same as asking for a present, and I should send them only to my very closest friends. Abby, all these people ARE my close friends. She also said I shouldn't send any to out-of-towners because they couldn't come anyway. I just wanted them to know that I was graduating. The exercises are going to be held in the park, and we were told we could invite as many people as we wanted. Do you think my mother had the right to cut down my list that way? After all, it's MY graduation, and if I want to send invitations to perfect strangers, it's MY business.

MAD

DEAR MAD: It may be your graduation, but it's your mother's duty as well as her right to guide you in matters of judgment and propriety. Simmer down, honey, and listen to your mother. She may have a point.

Round of Parties for Miss Ward Precedes Wedding This Saturday

June bride-elect Miss Penny Ward has been feted with a number of parties and gifts. Her marriage to Mr. Robert Scott will take place Saturday.

A large cup and saucer in pink and yellow tones contained gifts at a cup and saucer shower when Miss Karrie Rant entertained in the Manchester Street home of her mother, Mrs. L. E. Lange. The honor guest was presented with a corsage of white gardenias, and her mother, Mrs. A. S. Ward, the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. M. E. Scott, and the bride-elect's grandmother, Mrs. A. E. Ward, received similar corsages in yellow tones.

Guests included Mrs. E. Ward, Mrs. R. Knowles, Mrs. J. Amee, Mrs. A. Readman, Mrs. B. Osborne, the Misses Pennie Connor, Brenda Ward, Loraine Fleck and Sue Rant.

Mrs. A. Starkey and Mrs. R. Starkey were co-hostesses at a shower in the Orillia Street home of the former. Gifts were concealed in a laundry basket decorated in pink and turquoise tones. Miss Ward received white carnations en corsage. Her mother, and grandmother, and the groom-elect's mother were presented with corsages of red and white carnations, red roses and pink carnations respectively.

Invited guests included Mrs. H. Essler, Mrs. B. Jones, Mrs. N. Starkey, Mrs. W. Carroll, Mrs. A. Hicks, Mrs. L. Starkey, Mrs. B. Starkey and Mrs. E. Ward.

A pink watering can was suspended above a decorated umbrella containing gifts for the bride-elect when her sister-in-law, Mrs. E. A. Ward, entertained in the Asquith Street of the honor guest's parents. Miss Ward received a corsage of red carnations, and her mother and grandmother, and her fiance's mother received corsages of pink carnations.

Those attending were Mrs. T. Sibbald, Mrs. T. Marshall, Mrs. D. Wright, Mrs. B. Brown, Mrs. L. Kellow, Mrs. K. Cutler, Mrs. D. Payne, Mrs. G. Barnes, the Misses Karrie Rant, Pennie Connor, Dyane Rasmussen and Joanne Wooden.

When Skin Sags on Face and Neck

Even skin that sags and is no longer smooth, could be made firm and much younger looking. That "older look" usually appears first around the throat, but is comparatively easy to treat by very simple means that require no skill at all.

Get 2nd Debut with CEF 600 or CEF 1200 in double strength from your drug or dept. store and apply it gently to your throat and face each night before retiring. After just a few days, you will notice your skin becoming firmer again and smoother. That is because the 2nd Debut has revitalized your skin with a new supply of water from the surface clear into the inner skin.

good news

from the B.C. tree fruit growers

This season there will be ample supplies of all Okanagan tree fruits.

B.C. orchards have made a remarkable recovery from last year's damaging frost, and all your favourite B.C. fruits will be back in plentiful supply . . . Cherries, Apricots, Peaches, Pears, Crabapples and Prune Plums.

B.C. fruit arrives on the market a little later than fruit from farther south, but as always, it will be well worth waiting for. Grown closer to "home", B.C. fruit offers many advantages:

- The quality will be excellent
- Orchard fresh — rushed direct from the Okanagan to your favourite store
- B.C. fruit has high sugar content and fuller flavour because it can be left on the trees longer
- "Peak of the season" case-lot prices mean extra special savings

Once again you can plan a full program of home-preserving B.C. fruit. For the best fruit at the best prices . . . be sure to wait for, and insist on, "B.C." preserving fruit.

HONOR DELEGATES

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will entertain at a tea in Government House next Thursday. Their guests will be women attending the 75th anniversary convention of the Pharmaceutical Association of British Columbia.

Toronto Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Macdonald of Winnipeg announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Anne, to Mr. Robert Alexander Macgregor, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Macgregor, 1263 Oakmount Road, Victoria. The marriage will take place on Thursday, June 30 at 7:30 p.m. in Hart House Chapel of the University of Toronto. The bride-elect is a graduate of Manitoba Teachers College and her fiance is a graduate of the University of British Columbia. Both attended the University of Toronto.

At Convocation

Spending a month's holiday in Los Angeles, Calif., are Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hamilton, Ocean View Terrace. While there, they attended the convocation ceremonies at the University of Southern California when their son, Malcolm, received his doctor of musical arts degree. They also attended the special honors convocation when Dr. Hamilton was commended for outstanding achievement in the musical field. He is presently a member of the school of music faculty at the University of California, Los Angeles, where he established a harpsichord department.

Car of Gifts

A "honeymoon car," made and decorated in pink tones by hostess Mrs. G. Ham, contained the gifts presented by Miss Gail Chipper to bride-elect Miss Dorothy Watts when she was entertained at a shower. The affair was held in Mrs. Ham's Sooke Lake Road home. Pale pink feathered carnations en corsage were presented to the honor guest, and her mother, Mrs. L. E. Watts, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. E. Chipper, both received similar flowers in a deeper tone. An arrangement of Johanna Hill and Peace roses centred the lace-covered refreshment table, and presiding at the table were Mrs. R. Cuche and Mrs. J. Yule. Acting as serviteurs were the Misses Karen Ham, Denise Chipper, Margie Davison and Susan Barber. Invited guests included Mrs. B. Harford, Mrs. E. Dion, Mrs. L. Harrison, Mrs. T. Harford, Mrs. J. Morgan, Mrs. M. Orrick, Mrs. L. Scattergood, Mrs. A. Barber, Mrs. G. Cooper, Mrs. E. Glen, Mrs. D. Davison, Mrs. M. Dawkins, Mrs. B. Smyth, Mrs. J. Davison, Mrs. L. Mayo, Mrs. C. Murray, Mrs. J. E. Chipper, Mrs. T. Clevette, Mrs. R. Franklin, Mrs. D. Staples, Mrs. N. Horton, Mrs. B. Cowan and Mrs. E. Cushing.

To Marry

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Myers, 9005 East Saanich Road, have announced the forthcoming marriage of their youngest daughter, Lois Eileen, to Mr. Norman Stanley Watling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Watling, 2255 Weiler Avenue, Sidney. The wedding will take place on Saturday, July 9 at 7:30 p.m. in St. Paul's United Church, Sidney, with Rev. H. C. McDiarmid officiating.

Here for Wedding

Out-of-town guests travelling to Victoria to attend the recent wedding of Miss Patricia Lucas and Mr. Roland Blais included Mrs. E. Crisfield and Mrs. H. Hutchings, Kelowna; Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Murray, Brian and Janice, Chilliwack; Mr. and Mrs. George Crisfield, Port Alberni; Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Defty, Ellen and Donald, Cumberland, B.C.; Dr. and Mrs F. E. Murray, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. K. Dods and Lorraine, Mr. and Mrs. I. Girard and Mr. Art Thompson, Ganges; Mr. and Mrs. L. Trembley, Mr. and Mrs. R. Curle and Pat, Mr. and Mrs. G. Foucher and Miss Valerie Sumner of Ladysmith.

Lace Appliques Enhance Gown of Peau de Faille

Re-embroidered lace appliques enhanced the floor-length gown of peau de faille worn by Patricia Ellen Lucas recently when she became the bride of Roland Edmund Blais. Her sheath gown featured an empire-line bodice styled with a bateau neckline, highlighted by the same lace appliques, and elbow-length sleeves. A court train extended back from two bridal bows. Her veil of silk illusion misted from a floral rosette. The groom's gift of a single strand of pearls and pearl earrings formed her jewelry. She carried a bouquet of white glamelias and lily of the valley.

Rev. M. T. O'Connell and Fr. W. Kennedy officiated at the nuptial mass ceremony in St. Joseph's Church, uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Lucas, 3010 Earl Grey Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Blais of Ganges, Salt Spring Island. Mr. Lucas gave his daughter in marriage. Gary Lucas and Denis Blais, brothers of the principals, served the mass.

BLUE AND PINK

The bride's attendants wore floor-length gowns of blue crystalette taffeta with matching bows in their hair. They carried pink gladioli in their bouquets.

The attendants were maid of honor, Miss Joan Lucas, bridesmaid Miss Mary Lucas, junior bridesmaid Miss Susan Lucas and flowergirl, little Annette Blais, sisters of the principals.

Roger Blais was best man for his brother and guests were ushered to pews by Marcel Blais and John McCormick.

At the reception following in St. Joseph's Church hall, the bride and groom cut a wedding cake which was made by the bride's mother. L. Pearce was master of ceremonies and H. B. Gains proposed the toast to his niece's happiness.

For travelling on a honeymoon motoring trip to Qualicum Beach, Vancouver and Seattle, the new Mrs. Blais chose an Italian knit suit in mint green tones, complemented by a matching floral hat and white accessories. A corsage of white roses completed her ensemble.

The couple is now living at 355 Richmond Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Wood, 3943 Cumberland Road, announce the forthcoming marriage of their second daughter, Brenda-Joan, to Mr. Sean Madigan, Vancouver, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Madigan of Limerick, Eire. The wedding will take place on Saturday, July 2 at 1 p.m., in Sacred Heart Church. Fr. J. Planeta will officiate. The groom-elect received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Dublin, Eire, and is a 1963 graduate in law from the University of British Columbia. (Miss Wood's photo by Jus-Rite Portrait Studio; her fiance's by Campbell, Vancouver.)

GIRL GUIDES

Pemberton District—Mrs. G. Whiteaker, retiring badge secretary of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Pemberton Girl Guide Association, was presented with an overnight case when the group held a special meeting in her honor at the home of Mrs. J. Clark. The gift was in appreciation of her years as badge secretary, active member of the auxiliary and as a leader. Mrs. Clark, Mrs. J. Nicholson and Mrs. J. Ledger reported on the provincial convention they attended. Auxiliary pins were presented to Mrs. A. Oliver and Mrs. J. Ferguson who will be looking after badge work for the Guides and Brownies in the district. Mrs. G. Bentley reported on the June visit of a group of Girl Scouts from Olympia during which six Guides from the Third and Twenty-Ninth companies entertained them at tea in the Empress Hotel.

You'll see the world at Expo 67. Here's what the world will see of Canada.

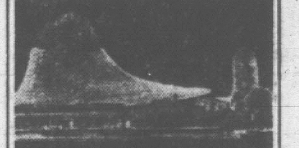
Next year, every town and village in Canada will be celebrating. But the biggest whoop-de-do of all, the great get-together for all Canadians from all the provinces (and half the world as well) will be . . . Expo 67, at Montreal. With over 70 foreign nations coming to help make Expo 67 the biggest, most imaginative exhibition ever staged here, obviously Canada couldn't be left behind. And it won't be. At Expo 67, the sweep, the flavour and the achievements of this vast country of ours will be on show for all the world to see. Our history, industries, culture, and our future, will come alive in a series of soaring pavilions, and a whole season of exciting events. You won't want to miss it, any more than you'd miss your own birthday. Plan now to visit Expo 67. Meet the world, and discover your own country. It will be a wonderful time to be a Canadian.

Your Expo 67 Passport will admit you to all the Provincial, National and Theme Pavilions, and is good for unlimited rides on the Expo Express. Save, by buying now at the reduced advance prices. A Daily Passport costs $1.80, a Weekly Passport (7 consecutive days) $6.50. There are also Season Passports, and Youth Passports for the 13-21 age group. Children 2-12, half price. (Ages as on April 28, 1967). Available at banks, travel agencies, department stores, or wherever you see the official Expo 67 sign.

The day Expo 67 opens, shipwrights from down East will lay the keel of a schooner. They'll go on building, clang-bang, until the ship slides into the water, six months later. That's just one of the fascinating features of the Atlantic Provinces exhibit.

The whirl of French Canada's colourful dance spectacle, les Feux Follets, will be seen throughout the six-month Expo 67 season. Other visitors will include the National Ballet, Winnipeg Ballet, and folk and ethnic dance groups from all over Canada.

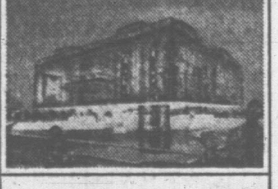
In a glade of giant Douglas firs (real ones), with the whirr of lumbermen's saws in the aromatic air, you could be in a B.C. rain forest. Instead, you'll be in the Western Provinces Pavilion, presenting a panorama of the great Canadian West.



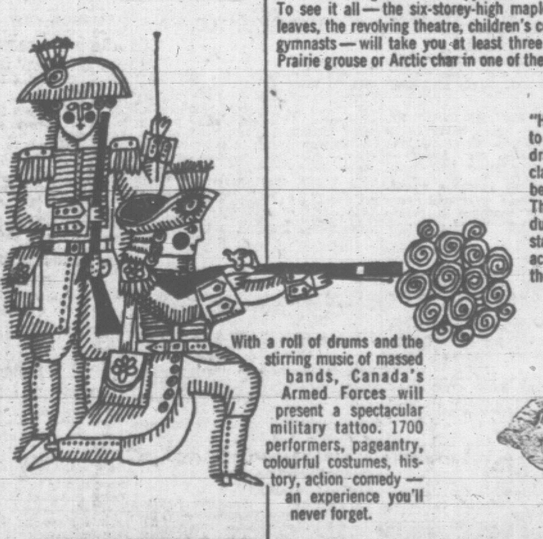
Centennial of Canadian Confederation

The Ontario Pavilion will take the form of multi-pyramids, covered in vinyl and fibreglass. It will include a 350-seat theatre, an outdoor cafe, a floating restaurant, and a nursery for children.

Quebec's Pavilion will be unique, in that it is to be constructed almost entirely of glass, and built over water. Amongst many exhibits will be a fascinating glimpse of Quebec in the year 2,000.



Covering 11¼ acres, the Canada Pavilion will be the biggest in all Expo 67. At its centre is a giant inverted pyramid — Katimavik, Eskimo for "meeting place". To see it all — the six-storey-high maple tree with 500 colour photographs as leaves, the revolving theatre, children's centre, art and sculpture, glee clubs and gymnasts — will take you at least three hours. After that, try a buffalo steak, Prairie grouse or Arctic char in one of the great restaurants.



With a roll of drums and the stirring music of massed bands, Canada's Armed Forces will present a spectacular military tattoo. 1700 performers, pageantry, colourful costumes, history, action comedy — an experience you'll never forget.

"Hubert, I implore you, take me to Expo 67"—the mecca for all drama lovers in 1967. Presenting classical and modern works will be Ontario's famous Stratford Theatre, Montreal's Théâtre du Nouveau Monde and outstanding companies from across Canada and around the world.

BRIDGE LESSON

By JACOBY AND SON

Way back in 1934 the late Walter Malowan was a youngster of only 49. He started an article in The Bridge World magazine as follows:

"I have been openly and surreptitiously accused of making more no-trump bids than any three good players together. I do not deny this statement, but I do claim that there is a method in my madness."

He pointed out that defence against no-trump is usually harder than against a suit contract and showed some hands that produced no-trump games for him.

His first example was a hand with which most players would have doubled two hearts and probably collected a 300-point penalty. Walter bid three no-trump and won a two-game rubber.

His explanation of the play was: "West led the king of clubs and continued with the queen. I allowed both to hold because I wanted to deprive West of any possible club exit card. West had to shift at trick three but he made it as hard for me as possible by leading his one diamond. I ran off my five diamonds after time out to collect dummy's ace of clubs and then played ace and a small spade. West cashed two spade tricks but had to lead to my ace-queen of hearts to give me my ninth trick."

While Walter could have taken the first club or the second club his method simplified the development of the eventual end play and made the whole hand almost routine.

GOODACRE TOWERS
TWIN HIGHRISE COMPLEX
350 and 360 DOUGLAS STREET
Unquestionably the finest location in Victoria for apartment dwelling, with Goodacre Lake in beautiful Beacon Hill Park right at your front door. Just a few short minutes walk from the heart of the business area.
Due to the response of people of discriminating taste our choice of 1- and 2-Bedroom Suites is rapidly diminishing. We are sorry to say that our Studio Suites have met with such approval that at the present time we have none available for occupancy.
If you are contemplating a change to this most modern form of living see Goodacre Towers, compare your dollar value. Join the many happy residents who have found that we make every effort to provide you with accommodation you are pleased to call "Home."

Stephen

The first production step into the color field was taken last week by CBU Vancouver, when a four-man crew captured on film the activities of Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes through a week-long tour of the Indian villages of the north coast.

Producer Len Lauk and his crew joined the Pearkes' party on board the destroyer-escort ICS Yukon at Prince Rupert.

Cameraman John eale ran off nearly 5,000 feet of color film as the official party visited Kincolith, Sylvester Bay, Alice Ar Port Simpson, Kitkakla, ort Hay and, lastly, Alert Bay.

In following the lieutenant-governor on his annual visit to the Indian people, the Vancouver-based station will give to British Columbians a permanent record of this avid student of native Indian history. Mr. Pearkes is one of the few servants of the people to go to the people who can't get to him.

A color print of the half-hour documentary will be donated to Government House for its permanent archives.

A black and white print of the program will be made available for telecast at a still to be announced time, but the color version of the half-hour will be one of the first programs when Channel 2 goes color in October.

Lauk was quite happy with the crew's progress. The Indian activities during the week were just what the doctor ordered for a color production. But there was the odd spot of difficulty encountered like a jammed camera.

Likely it was also an opportunity for the crew to experiment working with new color-fast film. Such experiments are being conducted across the country as television stations ready themselves for the tint onslaught on programming this coming fall.

The other members of Lauk's crew were Hugh Beard and Bert Skelton working sound and lighting, respectively.

Lauk has gained a good reputation for his work in the live production field. Two of his most recent were the visit of the Queen Mother to Victoria and the opening of the Legislature.

But he said he is through with live production work from now on. He wants to move permanently into the color film production field.

It's a good move for a man who works with the sense of an artist. The viewer will be the richer because of it.

They Agre[illegible] To Try A[illegible]ain To Agree

It's back to [illegible]he draw[illegible] board for another dr[illegible]ft agreement on the local librar[illegible].

Saanich Reeve Hug[illegible] Curtis, reporting on a [illegible]osed m[illegible]ting of heads of area m[illegible]nicipal[illegible]es and the city, said it was agreed there should be a new [illegible]raft — the fourth in th[illegible] curre[illegible] series.

"This is an it[illegible]m of [illegible]nsiderable historical [illegible]alue," [illegible]e said jokingly.

"It's been g[illegible]ng on for 12 years," added Coun. Harold Todd.

ATTACKS FEE

Saanich's obs[illegible]rver [illegible] the library board, C[illegible]n. Al[illegible] Newberry, said "the most [illegible]nsatisfactory" item i[illegible] the former draft was the cit[illegible] administrative fee.

It had been re[illegible]ced [illegible]om 10 per cent to 6 per [illegible]ent, [illegible]ut the new 6 per cent is [illegible] per[illegible]ent of larger sum than th[illegible] 10 [illegible] cent would have been.

It also wasn't clea[illegible] how membership of the [illegible]ew [illegible]ntrolling board would b[illegible] co[illegible]posed. It had been thoug[illegible]t [illegible]anich would have an equ[illegible] v[illegible] with the city, but no[illegible] [illegible]ictoria wanted more votes th[illegible] surrounding municipali[illegible]es.

FINED $25

Vintage Car Plates Misused

A man who used his antique auto for carting furniture was fined $25 in traffic court Monday.

John D. Adams, 2750 Fifth St., was convicted of violating the use of the special licence plates he had been issued for his vintage automobile, a 1931 Model A Ford truck.

The vintage plates are perennial markers issued for antique cars and allow such vehicles to take part in parades and rallies only.

Police testified Adam's truck was stopped on Bay Street May 27 while carrying a load of furniture. He had a previous conviction for a similar offence.

In addition to the fine, Magistrate Byers will recommend to the Superintendent of Motor-Vehicles that Adams lose the special plates.

POLUTION TRIAL

Capital Iron and Metals Ltd., 1832 Store St., will face trial on a charge of air pollution July 12.

Counsel for the firm said the company was pleading not guilty when the case was called in central court Monday and asked for the trial at the later date.

A man begging handouts in front of the Government Street liquor store last Friday was jailed for 30 days when he pleaded guilty to vagrancy.

Elmer Forrest offered to take the first bus out of town if he was not imprisoned.

But Magistrate William Ostler imposed the jail term after the accused's lengthy record of theft and vagrancy convictions was read out.

SIX MINORS

Six youths were fined from $25 to $50 when they pleaded guilty to being minors in possession of liquor.

Lawrence Hamm, 20, of 419 Parry, was fined $40 after admitting ownership of three bottles of beer in a Blanshard Street apartment June 7.

Danny Headdy, 18, of 1233 Oscar, was fined $25 after police found a part bottle of rum in his car which they stopped on Douglas June 6.

Steven Hendry, 18, of 1882 Taylor, was fined $40 after a police search of his car on the Oak Bay Esplanade June 4 turned up four bottles of beer.

William Martin, 18, of 647 Ralph, admitted ownership of beer found in his parked car June 4 and was fined $40.

Paul Tucker, 19, of 2601 Burdick, was fined $35 after police found a dozen bottles of beer when they stopped his car on Brighton June 4.

Fined $50 was Ronald Woods, 18, of 1256 Oliver. He was found on Willows Beach June 4 with a paper cup full of wine. Woods had a conviction for intoxication in a public place last month.

Fined for careless driving were:

Thomas Gibson, 1947 Mayfair, after his brother was injured when he fell off the rear bumper of the car Gibson was driving around the University of Victoria parking lot on Saturday, fined $40.

Ethel Webster, 1190 May, after she was involved in a car accident June 5 at South Turner and Niagara, fined $40.

Michael Kingses, 1160 North Park, after he was seen driving erratically on Fernwood Road May 30, fined $40.

Florence Anatooskin, 9270 Lochside, after she was involved in a car accident at Douglas and Topaz May 17, fined $40.

Awards Given At Esquimalt Junior High

Top students at Esquimalt Junior Secondary School received awards at a closing assembly last week.

Grade 10 student Judith Harold won the major academic award for her grade, also received subject awards for Latin and French, and won an academic scroll for proficiency in math, science, English and social studies.

The IODE award went to David Palmer-Stone who was also named top student in grade eight and winner of an academic scroll.

Elizabeth Bray headed grade nine students. Runners-up were Valerie Dickson, grade eight; Wendy Smith, grade nine; and Bruce McKinnon, grade 10. All received academic scrolls.

The major athletic awards went to Cecil Ferguson and Lyn Polson, and Susan Alexander won the school's citizenship award.

Other winners were:

Occupational classes — David Gray, Robert Revoy, Eirlys George; industrial education 10, Ron Jewula; home economics 10, Dawn Humberstone; band 10, Michael Donison; art 10, Arthur Finnerty; typing 10, Glenda Underwood; physical education 10, Rodney Sluggett and Wendy Moser.

Academic scrolls—Grade 10: Michael Donison, Robert Garden, David Green, Brian Wade, Kathy Brynjolfson, Lynn Grossman, Marilyn Smith, Doreen Dye.

"THEM DUMMIES is pretty dumb," quips Chuckles Jr. Compared to the talkative Chuckles, Hans and Gretel and the big, bad witch at Royal London Wax Museum are as dumb as they come. But then Chuckles has the aid of ventriloquist John Fader. (Times photo.)

THIS FACE CAN STOP A KID'S WARD CLOCK

His name is John Facer.

Children call him "Funny Face" — an he loves it.

For John Facer's face is his main asset.

As a clown and ventriloquist for Rudy Brothers Shrine Circus, the bouncy little man from Fairfield, Iowa, couldn't be more appropriately named.

Monday he arrived in Victoria in preparation for the Shrine Circus Friday and Saturday.

And before you could laugh he was off on a tour of local hospitals entertaining the kiddies.

With him was "Chuckles Jr.," the world's first rubber dummy.

Unlike most dummies, Chuckles isn't a wooden head.

But he can lay claim to a rubber neck.

RUBBER DUMMY

Explained Chuckles Sr.: "I decided to make a rubber dummy to give the little fellow more movement.

"He can make more animated faces than a conventional dummy and the children love him."

Today, as part of the Shriners' drive to raise funds for crippled and handicapped children, he was off on another tour of hospitals and children's institutions.

On Friday the circus comes to town with first-day shows at 4 and 8 p.m.

Saturday will feature three shows at 10 a.m., 3 p.m. and 8 p.m.

ESQUIMALT PAINTING CONTEST

Beauty Shop Window Best

A 22-year-old owner of a beauty shop painted one of his store windows "between customers" last Wednesday and Thursday and won $50.

Edward Williams, who operates Gail's Beauty Salon on Esquimalt Road, is winner of the store window-painting contest organized by the Imperial Tobacco Company as part of the Esquimalt Buccaneer Day celebrations.

There were 20 entries in the unusual competition.

Mr. Williams' window depicted a galleon in full sail, making her way along a rocky shore through a lively sea. His art training is restricted to two years at Mt. View Senior Secondary School.

A busy mother of four young children took time out from household chores to paint two windows, each of which won her an honorable mention.

Mrs. Elmay Crow, 740 Newbury Street, had just completed painting an interest-packed scene of a South Seas lauau on a window at the Royal Bank of Canada when:

"A woman from the Marshall Wells store came over to watch and talked me into doing one at their store. I didn't have much to draw on for inspiration so I used my imagination and did a portrait of Long John Silver, complete with parrot."

Mrs. Crow comes by her talent honestly. Her mother won a gold medal from the Glasgow School of Fine Arts. Mrs. Crow's training includes an extension course at the University of British Columbia and study at two San Francisco schools, the San Francisco School of Fine Arts and the Art League School.

But the elated painter attributes most of her success in the weekend contest to her training as a mother:

"You learn to work fast . . . you have to!"

The third honrable mention went to Leonard Richard. He painted two realistic parchment scrolls on the windows of the Esquimalt Plaza Coin-Op Dry Cleaning and Laundry store.

Judges were Arthur Mayse and Pat Dufour of The Times and Julie Clark, The Daily Colonist.

'Consumer Caught In Mish-Mash'

NANAIMO—The present collective bargaining system is "out of date," Chamber of Commerce members were told here.

"I'm convinced they'll have to set up committees or commissions to see justice is done on both sides of the fence," said Rev. William Hills of Qualicum Beach.

"While a settlement may satisfy the demands of labor and management, it is the poor consumer and citizen who is caught in the mish-mash."

Mr. Hills favored a policy of the worker having a share in the company.

Accused Explains All But Fails to Convince

A man who ran from police while carrying a pair of wire-cutters and a magnet and wearing rubber gloves was convicted in central court Monday for possession of burglary tools.

Walter Hanaka, 50, of 810 Esquimalt Road, had his case remanded to June 27. He will be sentenced then after Magistrate Ostler has studied a pre-sentence report.

The accused claimed he was on his way to Victoria West Park looking for discarded beer bottles around 5 a.m. May 29 and cut through a lumber yard off Tyee Road as a shortcut.

He hid when he saw a figure ahead of him because he was afraid he might be accused of trespassing, he said.

CONSTABLE TESTIFIES

Constable Arthur Riske testified earlier in the trial he found the accused crouched under a log after he spotted a man running at a crouch through the lumber yard.

Hanaka said he wore the rubberized gloves because any bottles he found would be wet from the dew and "chilly."

The wire-cutters he had slipped into his pocket after repairing a tail-light earlier that morning on one of several cars he owned.

Questioned about the magnet, he said it was handy for retrieving nuts and bolts dropped in awkward spots while repairing his cars.

Earlier police had testified how these tools could be used by a burglar.

Hanaka, who said he was a laborer and always rose about 5 a.m., claimed he regularly recovered between three and four cases of empty bottles when he toured the park area.

Russ Seaman Fairly Good

Russian seaman George Frolov, who was rushed to Veterans' Hospital from a Soviet fishing vessel on Friday is in fairly good condition today.

The 35-year-old fisherman is suffering from head injuries received in a fall aboard ship April 25.

It is not yet known if he will require surgery before returning to Russia.

YMCA Camp Will Live Up to Its Name This Year

YMCA Camp Thunderbird counsellors this summer will be practising what they were preached.

Having studied West Coast Indian lore with provincial museum anthropologist Peter McNair over the past year, counsellors will pass along their savvy to their young charges.

Camp director Wayne Elliot, says the boys, aged nine to 14, will learn Indian dances and ceremonies.

STUDY PROGRAM

In keeping with the Indian study program, campers will be given Indian names and assigned to cabins named after coast tribes.

The camp at Glinz Lake near Sooke will be held July 4 to 15, 18 to 29 and Aug. 1 to 12.

A camp for girls will be held Aug. 15 to 26.

Campers need not be Y members.

Studio Offers Piano Bursaries

The Hilda King Studio of Music will award three bursaries to winners in the 1967 Victoria music festival, the Rev. Dr. Kenneth King has announced.

The studio will sponsor a single bursary for piano sight-reading and a double bursary for a two-piano or piano duo team.

No bursaries are at present open to winners in these classes.

Studio pupils granted four special cash awards for further study are: Jim Furmston, Ian Franklin, Mark Butler and Paulette Howard.

Night Schools Hire Phys-Ed Man

A man who had a big part in creating the physical fitness program of the Canadian armed services has joined the adult education staff of Greater Victoria school board.

Lieut.-Cmdr. R. P. Mylrea will co-ordinate non-academic night school courses. Now resident at 3912 Woodhaven, he has been involved with physical fitness training since he joined the navy at the age of 15.

QUEEN PROLIFIC

Queen Anne, who reigned over England from 1702 to 1714, gave birth to 17 children, none of whom survived her.

PLANNER EXPLAINS URBAN RENEWAL

An Easy, No-Losers Game

By GORDON RITCHIE

A game where everybody wins was explained to the Victoria Gyro Club Monday by city planner Geoff Greenhalgh.

The name of the game is uban renewal.

"For $100,000, a city can generate $1,200,000 worth of renewal," Mr. Greenhalgh said.

Increased tax revenues from the developed property will more than repay the initial municipal investment.

The rules of the game, though little known, are quite simple.

The municipality, which alone can obtain large central packages of land, develops the land and then sells it to private industry at less than cost.

Private industry gains. But so does the city, said Mr. Greenhalgh.

The city is only obliged to pay for one-quarter of the program's cost. The rest comes from the two senior governments.

BORROW TWO-THIRDS

The municipality can borrow two-thirds of its share from the federal government on an instalment basis under 1964 ammendments to the National Housing Act.

Of a $1.2 million urban renewal scheme, the municipality only has to put up $100,000 in cash. It borrows $200,000 and repays it at a rate of about $20,00 a year, the planner explained.

Meanwhile, the increased tax revenue from the valuable new properties is pouring in.

"If the municipality chooses wisely, and the proposals are economically viable, the enhanced tax revenues will more than pay for it," Mr. Greenhalgh said.

As a bonus, the city is able to direct actively the development of the city.

The scheme depends on the active informed participation of private enterprise in the area.

"Before we get into it, we should understand just what it is we're playing," the planner said.

He challenged private industry to inform themselves of the advantages of the program, and join in the "exciting and radical possibilities" of urban renewal.

He forcast Victoria's early entry into the field. Once the Rose-Blanshard housing development is near completion, the city would be ready.

"The only question now is whether private capital is prepared to respond," he concluded.

HOME GARDEN

Flower Show Proves Beefs Out of Order

By JACK BEASTALL

Generally speaking home gardeners have a poor opinion of this season's weather.

Jack

It is true the hot season plants are not making the progress they should, but there is always the question whether we should attempt to grow plants that normally need higher temperatures than are common to this area. It is a challenge we cannot resist, and we have to take the chances.

When we take a serious look at the temperate plants we have to admit that complaints are out of order. I think this was borne out beyond question at the week-end flower show.

The first notable feature was the color of the blooms. The colors were deep and true, not sun faded and washed out.

The next was the texture of the blooms; this was a quality remarked on by all the judges.

Thirdly, the flowers had made slower and sturdier growth and therefore lasted much better than in a warmer season.

This last point was especially noticeable when the exhibitor had conditioned the flowers properly before placing them on the show bench.

Plants make a good growth in a cool season with ample foliage therefore it is not wise to use any nitrogenous fertilizers.

These should be saved for the hot seasons when growth is inhibited. This year there is a greater need for superphosphate which encourages the formation of flowers and fruit.

It is quite important to understand fertilizers and their effects on plants in different kinds of weather, and by using them judiciously we can maintain steady and sturdy growth no matter what the season may offer.

Framework Ready For Lab Addition

A $200,000 extension to the Pacific Naval Laboratory at HMC Dockyard will get off the ground in the next few weeks.

Concrete foundations have already been poured for the three-storey building and the framework is set to go up.

When complete, early next year, the steel and concrete extension will add 10,000 square feet of office and laboratory space to the existing premises.

Extending 72 feet to the north of the existing building, the new block will provide extra storage space on the ground floor.

CONFERENCE ROOM

Second floor will be devoted mostly to a spacious conference room for the 30 scientists and 50 technicians serving at the laboratory. At present, conferences are held in the library.

Third floor will house offices and laboratories.

With more space available in the old building, one of the present storage rooms will be converted into a non-destructive testing lab.

This is the lab in which scientists carry out tests on diesel engines and other heavy machinery.

At present, testing is carried out in another block.

COMPUTER ROOM

Another storage room in the old building will be used to house the laboratory's digital computer which now shares a room with other equipment.

Architect for the job is the Vancouver firm of Thompson Berwick Pratt and Partners, which designed the present laboratory in 1954.

The laboratory came into existence in 1948, at which time it was housed in old army huts at Dockyard.

NDP CALLS NOMINATIONS

Former Saanich CCF MLA Frank Snowsell will be guest speaker at the Esquimalt New Democratic Party nominating meeting Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Congress Hall, 715 Johnson.

The public is invited but only members in good standing can vote for the candidate in the provincial constituency.

Mr. Snowsell, who now lives in Vancouver, is a past president of the provincial NDP.

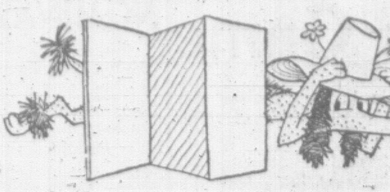
The Wonderful World of Animals



By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: My husband gave me a pair of electric clippers so I could clip our poodle, Hondo, and save money. Well, I botched up the job. He looked simply terrible. Then my husband took over to "show me how easy it is." Now Hondo is completely unrecognizable as a poodle. In fact, he doesn't even look much like a dog! What we'd like to know is, what is the best thing to make his hair grow in so we can take him back and have him trimmed right?

DEAR D. S.: Tincture of time is perhaps the best method of assuring hair growth. (Assuming, of course, your clipping efforts left the hair follicles intact.) Hair tonics, restorers and the like are more effective in raising hopes (temporarily) than they are hair.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Is it harmful to feed young rabbits fat? And we would also like to know how much protein they need. Thank you.—P. D.

DEAR P. D.: In large quantities, fat causes digestive upset, though commercial feeds may contain as high as 5 per cent. The more recent rapid rabbit-raising rations contain 20 per cent to 22 per cent protein.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My cat Pedro gets one cold after another. Somebody said to feed him oranges to build up his resistance. I tried them out and he loves them if I skin the sections. Do they really help? Is there anything else? He still sniffles a lot.—F. N.

DEAR F. N.: If the oranges are employed for their specific "anti-sniffle" effect, better try him on tangerines instead. They contain much more decongestant per section. Vitamin C won't hurt him either, but Vitamin A is the more important to felines in maintaining resistance of the mucous membranes in throat and nose areas. Because the drippy nose may be a symptom of anything from a pollen allergy to a pneumonitis (or other) virus, better have Pedro's problem accurately diagnosed by the doctor. Even in those cases not complicated by pneumonia, long-term neglect of the "sniffling syndrome" may lead to severe, perhaps incurable, sinus infection.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Chipper is a bottle-fed baby we raised going on six years ago. Can you tell us just how long a chipmunk can be expected to live?—I. L.

DEAR I. L.: Not this long, usually. Chipper has already outlived his free-ranging relatives, though the record for a chipmunk with all the comforts of home is about nine years.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Since my husband started raising guppies two years ago, he has been very successful. Pretty soon he was setting up new tanks to hold the expanding population. I had to put my foot down when he tried to sell me on the idea of a 40-gallon tank as a centrepiece for the dining room table. He has cornered all our friends, neighbours and business acquaintances, and now has the guppies down to a reasonable number. (He was too soft hearted ever to flush away any of the babies or to split up the parents. To prevent another population explosion, I was wondering if it is possible to do hysterectomies on female guppies? Or could we give them pills or something?—G. W.

DEAR G.W.: While it's possible to spay a guppie, the pill approach is a considerably more practical method of birth control. Actually pills, per se, aren't too practical either, but merely mixing a hormone solution into the guppies' drinking water will facilitate small-fry control.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Last year I had a pair of Lovebirds that laid infertile eggs. They both stayed in the nest box during the whole period they were trying to incubate the eggs. What can I do do improve their performance?—V. J.

DEAR V. J.: This duo was doing the best it could under the circumstances. Even Lovebirds are ineffective unless properly paired. You can remedy the situation by trading one of these females or purchasing at least one—preferably two—males.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Does a dog ever need spaying more than once? I have been thinking about having my dog spayed. Then someone said that sometimes the organs grow back and it has to be done over again. I wouldn't want to have my dog operated on twice.—D. D.

DEAR D. D.: Once is enough. The ovaries and uterus cannot "grow back." (The occasional case in which there is stray ovarian tissue capable of inducing estrus is too rare to merit consideration.)

4-Year-Old Buccaneer Wins $50

The buccaneer walking with the biggest swagger today in Esquimalt is four-year-old David Jones, 1015 Gosper, who won the $50 prize at the Buccaneer Day treasure hunt.

David plunked his X on the right spot at the booth run by Sixth Arbutus Cubs and Scouts, and is today so excited he can hardly shake a cutlass.

Other winners for best costumes at the Saturday celebrations were Geraldine Watling and Marc Durrant, best buccaneers 11 and under. Karen Larsen, Ian Walmsley and Barrie Brillinger were judged best in the 12 and over class.

California Heading For Disaster: Expert

WASHINGTON (AP) — California was pictured as headed for disaster unless its fantastic rate of population growth is checked.

If the present net gain of about 1,500 new residents daily continues there will be California in 100 years, about half the present population of the entire planet.

Congestion of such magnitude was described as "intolerable and impossible" by Robert C. Cook, president of the Population Conference Bureau, Inc. He said the problem presents an unprecedented challenge to human ingenuity.

The bureau is a private non-profit educational organization publishing information on population trends and their economic and social effects.

Writing in the June issue of the bureau's bulletin, Cook said California's current 19,000,000 people are already faced with urgent housekeeping problems centring on "the basic essentials of existence: Pure air and pure water for residential, industrial and agricultural use; sufficient land for living space; and the production of adequate energy to keep the whole complex operative."

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Randy D. Vallier age 15, of Tulsa, Okla., for his question:

How is marble formed in the earth?

The formation of marble begins with busy littls animals of the sea and ends with a waxy stone. Almost every deposit has its own subtle shadings and colors caused by various impurities. But its basic minerals are calciums and its basic formation is a step-by-step crystallization of molecules.

The ancient seas swarmed with shell-building creatures, most of them too small to be seen without a microscope. Many of them built their shells from calcium carbonate and magnesium carbonate extracted from the salty water. As their generations lived and died, the tough shells sank to the bottom and deposited thick carpets of calcium chemicals on the bed of the ocean.

Some of these deposits finally became waxy layers of handsome marble, and since marble originally was made by living animals it is a true fossil mineral. The first stage of the transformation began when the oozy deposits of calcium were deserted by the seas and left high and dry to become rocky layers of land. They became layers of limestone and many of them have endured as limestone through millions of years.

However, some limestone deposits were later covered with newer layers of rock and some were crushed by growing mountains and other upheavals in the earth's crust. Their molecules were rearranged in tight crystalling formations. The crumbly limestone was transformed into waxy marble. This transformation is called metamorphosis, and marble is a metamorphic rock. Its special crystalling formation makes it soft enough to carve and gives a shiny gloss to its polished surface.

Rain Dissolves Marble

Pure marble is as white as a summer cloud — but it is rare. Almost always traces of various minerals were mixed with the original calciums in the oozy mud or added later from the earth's crust. Traces of chlorite add red streaks and the marble looks like frozen bouquets of pink petals. Traces of chlorite add green tints and the marble seems to be permeated with ferny foliage. Other impurities from marbles blended with blues and pansy purples or mottled with golds and candy colors.

Most marbles are white with traces of black or charcoal grey. Their dark streaks, veins and blotches are caused by carbon impurities that were added by fragments of decaying plants.

In the dry Mediterranean countries marble statues have stood outdoors for centuries. But the handsome stone does not endure in the moist climate of North America. It tends to dissolve in rain water, and for this reason we do not leave marble statues outdoors or use marble on the outsides of our buildings. As a building stone we use it on walls and floors and we go indoors to admire our marble statuary.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Darlene Casey, age 12, of Fredericton, N.B., for her question:

What is bone marrow?

The outside of a big bone is stiff and strong, but its inside is soft and spongy. The outside is made of calcium and phosphorus and combinations of other sturdy minerals. The inside is stuffed with softer spongy material and bone marrow. This red or yellow marrow is a mass of living cells filled with networks of nerves and blood vessels.

The rope of red marrow inside a big bone is a factory where red blood cells are manufactured. One by one these vital cells seep out into the blood stream to replace tired old red cells on their way to be broken up by the liver. Down the centre of a long leg bone there is a core of soft yellow marrow. Its soft cells contain fatty materials, and, as in the red marrow, its tissues are supplied with nerves, lymph and blood.

Many a Snap in Alligator Picture-Taking

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN—It's a disconcerting experience backing up in someone's kitchen trying to snap a picture of an alligator which is trying to take a snap at you.

The alligator is only two feet long.

But this nameless pet of the DeLeeuw family in Duncan is a lively one.

And even though Valentine, 17, was holding him by the tail, I was still nervous.

An alligator would be a strange pet to find in almost any household, except that of the DeLeeuws.

Mrs. Joanne DeLeeuw said of her husband Adrian: "Reptiles are his whole life."

He used to be in the reptile importing business in his native Holland.

Since coming to Canada seven years ago he has not been able to use his world-wide contacts.

Neither Canadian railroad company will handle reptiles as freight, and using the airlines is prohibitive because of cost.

Instead Mr. DeLeeuw is in the humdrum business of selling for a Swiss-based investment company.

The pet alligator arrived in Duncan by air four years ago. It came from the swamps of Louisiana.

Now it lives in a glass tank.

Alligators in zoos always look dead but this critter really performs.

Let one of the family's six cats stray nearby and there's a rumpus.

The alligator once broke the tank glass trying to get some cat meat.

Mr. DeLeeuw plans to keep the alligator in the family till it's four feet long, which will take about seven years more.

The DeLeeuws are a fascinating family. They have made their mark in the cultural life of Duncan.

Mrs. DeLeeuw is an accomplished drama director who has produced a number of plays for the local drama club. Besides this she has costumed many of the productions.

Mr. DeLeeuw often plays the bass violin in local orchestra groups.

And elder son, Dionys, 19, plays the classic guitar.

Dionys shares the biological interests of his father, but instead of alligators collects butterflies.

He spent last summer collecting moths in Mexico.

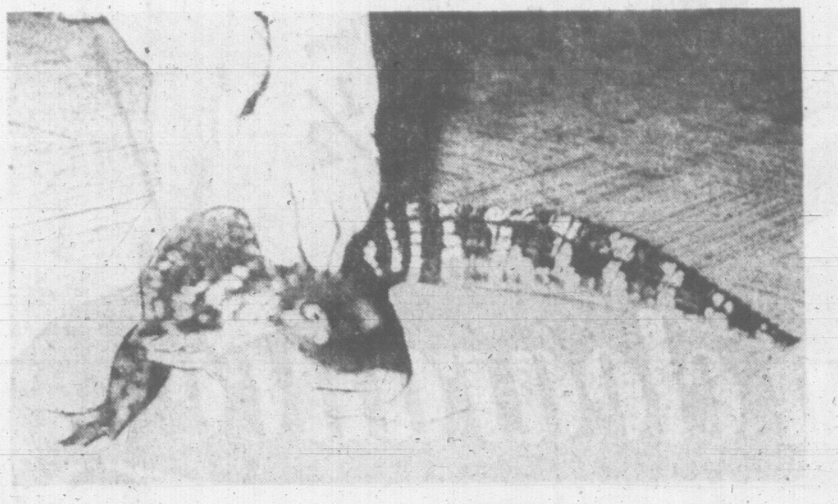
Dionys has a collection of over 5,000 and hopes to become a biologist specializing in entomology—the study of insects.

Dionys, hoping to complete Grade 12 this year, has been awarded a $100 scholarship in art.

But he isn't just a long-haired scientist and musician. Dionys last week won two school trophies for winning the 880 and 440-yard sprints.

Completing this distinctive family is Jolande who is taking a history correspondence course through London University. She hopes to become a history professor.

That's if the family survive the alligator in the kitchen.



IT'S NOT EASY to keep a camera in focus when a young alligator is in a biting mood. The two-foot pet is usually confined in a thick glass tank, much against his wishes. (Don Dingwall photo.)

Woman Runs For Seat On Council

NORTH COWICHAN — Mrs. Ray Turney, Crofton, will run for municipal council.

She will contest the Aug. 20 byelection caused by the resignation of Mrs. Elaine Dobbyn.

Mrs. Turney said: 'Mrs. Dobbyn has proved without doubt there is a place for a woman in local municipal life.

"I'm pleased she has asked me to carry on the job she has been forced through ill-health to resign."

Mrs. Turney is active in a number of organizations. She is secretary of the Cowichan Valley Athletic Club, and a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Chemainus Hospital.

She is a past member of Chemainus Hospital Board; was secretary of the Cowichan Valley Forest Museum opening committee; and is interested in educational affairs.

She and her husband came to the district nine years ago from Cornwall, Ontario. Mr. Turney is employed at Crofton mill.

They have one son and two daughters.

DISTURBED CAMPERS

Cursing Youths Fined $50 Each

Four youths who disturbed campers at Goldstream Park over the weekend by cursing, shouting and breaking beer bottles have each been fined $50.

Larry Mitchell, 611 Fernhill; Edward Wills, 2290 Woodlawn; Marshall Farquhar, 2516 Eastdowne, and Warren Walls, 1548 Montgomery, all pleaded guilty to disturbing the peace when they appeared in central court Monday.

RCMP Constable Albert Barnes, who is also an assistant scoutmaster, said he was camping at the park with a group of Canadian and American Scouts when the group was awakened by the accused boys about 2 a.m. Sunday.

The officer told them to keep quiet but had to return again at 6 a.m. when the noise and a radio blaring awakened the campers again.

When he turned his back to leave, said the officer, the radio was turned up again so he returned and identified himself as a police officer.

When the accused refused to give him their names, he arrested all four on the spot.

Constable Barnes said he then had to tell Walls three times to stop cursing and when the youth continued, he "forcibly stopped him."

OTHER CHARGES

Walls also appeared in court on three other charges including two charges of being a minor in possession of liquor, both of which were laid the same day.

He was fined $75 when he pleaded guilty to being a minor in a liquor store June 18 and being a minor in possession of liquor brought another $50 fine after a guilty plea.

While he had been granted two weeks to pay the fine for disturbing the peace, Magistrate Ostler said the latter two fines, which each carry alternate 14-day jail terms, had to be paid right away.

SEVEN DAYS

When Walls appeared again later in the day and pleaded guilty to being a minor in possession of liquor again on June 18, he was sentenced to seven days in jail.

"I find it very hard to understand you," said the magistrate.

In the latter case, police testified that 11 bottles of beer were found in Walls' car when it was checked at the Oak Bay A and W Drive-In shortly after midnight.

NANAIMO FEATURED

NANAIMO—This city is in show biz.

The Nanaimo area as a holiday mecca will be on television July 1 at 2:15 p.m. on channels six and eight.

The program is one of a "Holiday in B.C." series which is scheduled to begin June 27.

The photographs and story have already been taped.

Specialist In Music Hired

DUNCAN — A music specialist will be hired by Cowichan School Board.

Mrs. R. A. Cox will teach the 1,000 students of Duncan Elementary and Alexander schools.

Trustee Wilf Peck said Monday: "If the appointment proves beneficial we might well consider a second person to cover the other half of the elementary enrolement."

Mrs. Cox's appointment is beyond budget entitlement.

She is already on the staff of Duncan Elementary. Her work will be chiefly vocal and choral teaching.

Trustees were told the educational television facilities in the district will be expanded.

Mount Prevost and Quamichan Junior Secondary schools and Alexander Elementary will be hooked up to the closed circuit TV from Cowichan Senior Secondary.

Gibbins Road Elementary annex will experiment for a year with picking up CBC educational broadcasts.

There is a power that surpasses all human might. This power is capable of helping man on each step of his journey to eternity. It can calm a troubled heart and lift a weary spirit. For centuries, unbelieving men have denied this power exists ... but they have passed on, and the power remains. It is still the hope of a meaningful life for every man.

This power is found in a life of service in Christ ... a power for today! Tonight, Dr. Carl Spain will discuss one part of this power. You will want to hear his timely lesson on:

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

'Rich' Uncle Died Destitute Court Told

A Victoria woman borrowed thousands of dollars from various people on the ground she was expecting an inheritance of $750,000 from her uncle's estate, it was alleged in County Court here Monday afternoon.

But the uncle, Wallace Ricketts, was distitute when he died in a burnt-out camp in northern British Columbia.

Mrs. Gladys Naylor, 914 Sioux Place, was said to have obtained loans totalling $12,214—some of them from total strangers — and to have repaid $178.

She pleaded not guilty to four charges of obtaining loans by deceit and falsehood from Victoria residents.

$250,000 CHEQUE

Detective John J. Stone told of arresting Mrs. Naylor at her home about 2 p.m. Nov. 2, 1965. At Saanich police station she was shown cheques bearing her signature and amounts ranging from $100 to $250,000.

"She told us she was expecting an inheritance from her uncle in Montana," Detective Stone said. "She estimated it would be about $750,000.

Asked how much she expected to inherit from him, Mrs. Naylor allegedly replied:

"I thought it would be about $750,000, but I know now that he was destitute when he died."

To the question "How long have you known this?" Mrs. Naylor was quoted as saying:

"About 10 weeks."

BORROWED MORE

"You have borrowed cheques since then?"

"Yes, I know it was wrong. I know I have done wrong and I want to pay these people back."

Detective Stone said Mrs. Naylor began to cry at the close of the investigation. Then she said "Thanks."

Det. Sgt. Robert A. Peterson gave corroborative evidence of the arrest. He supported Detective Stone's evidence that Mrs. Naylor was not coerced in any way during the interview.

PROTECTED HUSBAND

At the time of her arrest, Mrs. Naylor told police she did not want her husband to know about it.

"I want to keep him from being involved," she said. "It is not his fault."

When asked how much she had in the bank, Mrs. Naylor was alleged to have replied:

"I have no money in the banks. My accounts are closed."

To the question, "What did you do with the money?" she was quoted as saying:

"It was a case of one debt to pay another."

ESTIMATES VARIED

Crown prosecutor Louis Lindholm said Mrs. Naylor's estimate of the value of her uncle's estate ranged from $250,000 to nearly $1,000,000 when she asked for loans.

In many cases, he said, she gave her lenders cheques for much larger amounts than she borrowed. They were always post-dated and she asked that they be held until her uncle's inheritance came through.

"On the day appointed she would tell them the money from the estate had not come through. Then she would ask for further loans and these were usually given."

LENDERS

Mr. Lindholm said Mrs. Naylor borrowed $9,973 from Reginald Graves, 2200 Quadra Street. She borrowed various other sums from Mrs. Doreen Finn, 386 Quadra, Mrs. Diane Pilotte, 504 Selkirk and Jacob Spelt, 870 Royal Oak.

On the witness stand, Mr. Spelt said he made Mrs. Naylor a loan of $500 and in return was given a post-dated cheque for $1,000.

When he asked her for repayment, she said she would swear on "a whole stack of Bibles" that she was waiting for the settlement of her uncle's estate.

Dermod Owen Flood, who is defending Mrs. Naylor, asked Mr. Spelt why he accepted cheques for extravagant amounts from her.

WANTED TO BELIEVE

"If I hadn't accepted them, I would have shown distrust — and I wanted to believe her," Mr. Spelt replied.

Further questioned, Mr. Spelt said he hoped Mrs. Naylor would repay the loans.

"I couldn't afford to donate them to her."

Mr. Flood: "But you were influenced by the belief that here was a woman in desperate need of money?"

Mr. Spelt: "That at least was the impression she gave me."

The hearing continued today.

House Damaged By Burglar

A radio worth $100 was stolen from Jim Armstrong, 808 Mann, police were told Saturday.

The complainant also said the thieves sprayed cupboards in the house with paint and damaged thermostats.

Police suspect entry was gained through a basement window.

De Gaulle In Kremlin

MOSCOW (Reuters) — President Charles de Gaulle discussed European security and the German problem for three hours today at the start of talks in the Kremlin.

Leonid Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, swept diplomatic protocol aside to talk to the general face-to-face. Normally, as party leader, he does not take part in detailed negotiations with Western visitors.

A French spokesman said the first negotiating session since de Gaulle arrived Monday for an 11-day visit began with an opening statement by Brezhnev, followed by a statement from the French leader.

As they broke up, both de Gaulle and Brezhnev stressed the considerable importance of close consultation between France and Russia, the spokesman said.

The spokesman said de Gaulle told the Russians that his journey to Moscow, his first for 22 years, was in itself a tangible manifestation of France's desire for East - West consultations.

SET EXAMPLE

De Gaulle was quoted as saying that negotiations between countries of West and East were a good thing and that the example should be followed by other European nations, namely that West Germany should have such talks with the Soviet Union.

Russia's leaders were reported to have stressed the desirability of contacts between European nations and France.

Few details of the discussions were released, but the French delegation said the entire morning was taken up by European security and the German problem.

Normally talks with Western visitors are conducted by Premier Alexei Kosygin or President Nikolai Podgorny. Today both took back seats to Brezhnev.

The party leader took complete charge as soon as he strode in at the head of the Soviet delegation to greet the

Shotgun Blast Wounds Australian Labor Chief

. . . surprise attack

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Opposition Leader Arthur Calwell had his chin cut by glass splinters tonight after a youth fired a shotgun at him through a closed car window.

The Labor party chief, who had just finished speaking at an anti-Viet Nam meeting at a suburban town hall, was reported in satisfactory condition in the hospital after the incident.

A doctor said the 69-year-old Calwell had not been hit by any of the shotgun pellets.

The Labor leader told a reporter as he was placed in the ambulance going to the hospital:

"I'm all right . . . I'm all right. I must get word to my wife that I'm all right."

Calwell was taken on a stretcher into the hospital's casualty reception area for immediate attention.

His chin was heavily bandaged, he looked pale and his eyes were closed.

Peter Westaway, a television station official who arrived on the scene seconds after the incident, said:

"Mr. Calwell, holding a bloodstained handkerchief to his face, called out 'I've been shot, I've been shot'."

Westaway said Labor party supporters who attended the meeting chased and caught a young man.

The windshield of Calwell's car was shattered, Westaway said.

"Most of the crowd had dispersed from the meeting when the incident occurred," Westaway said.

Police who were at the meeting had also left.

"I was in the foyer of the hall when I heard an explosion.

"I raced outside and saw Calwell standing on the footpath."

Police were questioning a man about the shooting.

Calwell has been leader of Australia's federal Labor party since 1960, after being deputy leader for nine years.

As a member of the Labor government after the Second World War, he served in the posts of minister for information and for immigration.

His leadership of the party has been under attack and only recently, he had to fight hard to retain the position against a strong bid led by the party's deputy leader, Gough Whitlam.

NEW VIET WAR PEACE DRIVE

MANSFIELD BACKS U THANT

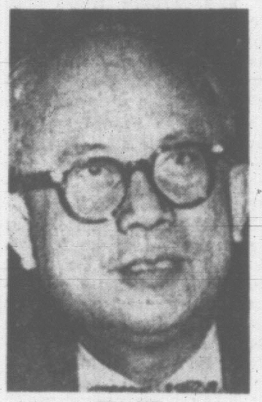
MANSFIELD
. . . . 3-point plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called on UN Secretary-General U Thant today to take the lead in a new effort to arrange Viet Nam peace talks.

Mansfield said he believes a three-point plan renewed by U Thant at a United Nations press conference Monday would get "every consideration from President Johnson" if there was some sign the Communists might accept it.

Thant proposed a cessation of U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam, scaling down of military operations by both sides and a willingness on the part of all concerned to enter discussions with all participants in the fighting. However, Senator Gale W. McGee (Dem., Wyo.), a strong supporter of Johnson's Viet Nam course, said in a separate interview he thinks Than'ts proposal has "a hollow ring to it."

"We've tried stopping the bombing before and it didn't invite any response," McGee said. "On the contrary, the enemy used the lull to intnestify their efforts."



THANT

Wilson Charges Reds Prolonging Strike

By JIM ANDERSON

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson rocked Parliament and the striking seamen's union Monday with the charge that Britain's shipping strike is being prolonged by Communists who want to damage the nation.

He didn't use the word "Communist" but there could be no mistake about the meaning of the carefully-chosen words in his statement to Parliament on the shipping strike, now in its fifth week.

He said a tightly-knit group of "politically-motivated men" had put pressure on "a select few" of the 48-member national executive of the seamen's union, who "in turn have been able to dominate the majority of that otherwise sturdy union."

Sources said later that the government did not believe any of the executive were Communists, but that a Communist group was meeting regularly and dictating strike policy to the executive with the threat that any show of weakness would mean defeat in union elections.

PLANS AIRLIFT

Wilson told Parliament: "This group holds views which failed to secure any representation in this House at the last election, but their backstage views have had effect."

He also said plans were being made for a Royal Air Force airlift to deliver important exports and carry backed-up mail to Northern Ireland. The Royal Navy would be used to get supplies to outlying islands.

. . . in critical mood

The prime minister, who has been rebuffed by the seamen in his personal attempts to win a settlement, called William Hogarth, general secretary of the union, to a meeting at 10 Downing St.

Hogarth is believed to be a moderate, and Wilson is said to have urged him to take a stronger lead in the union executive.

Hogarth's only comment on the meeting and Wilson's statement was that it indicated a toughening attitude by the Labor government.

Militants among the seamen quickly rejected the charges and said it was the prime minister who was turning a strike over economic issues into a political struggle.

RED REPLIES

John Gollan, general secretary of the British Communist party, accused Wilson of "McCarthyite smears and innuendos" against leaders of the seamen's union.

In a statement after Wilson made his Commons speech, Gollan said the 36,000 - member Communist party opposes the government's wage - restraint policy as "a barefaced fraud" and blames Britain's economic difficulties on "crippling military expenditures at home and abroad."

The rest of Britain's trade union movement has largely sided with the government in calling on the seamen for a settlement. But chances of a serious split in the sailors' ranks seemed slight after votes Monday at six major ports supported the executive.

A secret ballot among the seamen has been suggested, but Wilson said it would be difficult. More than half the union's 63,000 members are still at sea in ships that won't be laid up until they reach British ports.

UN Chief Will Visit Moscow

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—UN Secretary-General U Thant plans to visit Moscow later this summer, diplomatic sources reported today. The Viet Nam conflict, which he described Monday as "one of the most barbarous in history," is expected to be a major topic in his talks with Soviet leaders.

Informed quarters said Thant received an invitation some time ago to visit Moscow and he has recently accepted it. The time of the visit is understood to be under discussion.

Thant was asked at a UN correspondents' luncheon Monday whether he believed a visit by him to Moscow would be useful. He replied that "a visit by the secretary - general to any capital of any member state at any time is sure to be useful."

He mentioned no plans to go to Moscow, but word began to circulate later that such a visit is being arranged.

KY MOVES IN

Fasting Buddhist Seized

SAIGON (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's South Vietnamese soldiers seized the extremist Buddhist leader Thich Tri Quang in his hospital room in Hue today. The slight, robed monk walked out of the building on the 14th day of his hunger strike.

With the four-month Buddhist uprising crumbling under the military junta's firmness, Tri Quang's chief rival, the moderate Thich Tam Chau, appealed to Ky to "assure the life and liberty of the Venerable Tri Quang and all other monks who led the strugle" against the regime.

A police officer in Hue said that Try Quang, 42, had been put in protective custody to shield him from the Viet Cong.

The government's action against the chief of the Buddhist struggle movement showed its confidence that it had all but smashed the militant Buddhist minority's campaign for an immediate restoration of civilian rule.

In Saigon, troops and police kept several hundred monks and their followers bottled up inside the Buddhist Institute for the fourth day despite their plea to the International Red Cross that they faced epidemic and starvation.

SEES VICTORY

After four days of talks with Ky and other government leaders, Lord Walston, Britain's undersecretary for foreign affairs, told newspaper men he foresaw a military victory for the allies within 12 months.

Lord Walston's prediction echoed one made by Ky on the first anniversary of his rule Sunday, but Walston added: "I cannot see a real building up of a peaceful democracy here for a very long time indeed."

He said the shooting and bombing "will slowly fade away" and the number of terrorist incidents gradualy decline. He said North Viet Nam had become convinced it could not win a military victory but he saw no imediate prospect that Hanoi would sue for peace.

On a strip of beach along the Mekong Delta south of Saigon, U.S. seamen unloaded 250 tons of Chinese-made arms and ammunition from a gun - running trawler intercepted Monday as Viet Cong sampans were about to pick up the cargo. U.S. military authorities said it was probably the biggest arms prize of the war.

The trawler, which bore no markings, was believed to have come from the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong. The crew fled with the guerrillas after a battle with U.S. Coast Guard cutters, planes and helicoters.

LED REBELION

Tri Quang had led the Buddhist rebellion in the northern provinces and was a leader in agitation against previous governments, including the regime of the late president Ngo Dinh Diem. Some American officials think his ultimate objective is establishment of a Buddhist state that could make a deal with the Communists and expel the Americans.

He began the hunger strike June 8, when the rebellion began faltering, vowing to take only liquids until the United States withdrew its support of

WIRE BRIEFS

Guerrilla Hangs Self

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI)—Fabricio Ojeda, Communist guerrilla leader captured June 18, committed suicide by hanging in his cell at San Carlos military prison early today.

Canadian Killed

CARLISLE, Eng. (CP) — One Canadian was killed and two others seriously injured today when their car collided with another on a main highway near this city a few miles from the border with Scotland. Two persons died in the collision, but neither was immediately identified.

Copper Cleared

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Rhodesia railways today gave the all-clear for some 16,000 tons of Zambian copper exports, held up for weeks in Rhodesia by a payments dispute, to move on to Mozanbique ports. The copper is worth about $28,000,000.

Strike Call Flops

ROME (Reuters)—A three-day Italian engineering strike, expected to affect nearly 1,000,000 workers, met only partial success on its first day today. The Fiat auto plant in Turin, Italy's biggest private employer, announced that 98.3 per cent of its staff reported for duty.

Two Die From Gas

CALGARY (CP)—Police today blamed lack of oxygen in a small basement apartment where a gas stove was burning for the deaths of two Vancouver teen-agers. The victims, found dead Monday afternoon, were identified as James William Owenn, 17, and Lynn Furssedonn, 16. The couple came here from Vancouver Thursday.

Welfare Head

VANCOUVER (CP) — B. M. Alexandor, QC, Ottawa, today was elected to a fourth term as president of the Canadian Welfare Council. F. K. Venables, Ottawa, was elected treasurer, succeeding Denis M. C. Wolican, Toronto.

BITTER BATTLE RAGES FOR JUNGLE HIDEOUT

SAIGON (AP)—American paratroops smashed today into a jungle hideout in South Viet Nam where 500 Viet Cong guerrillas threw up a bitter defence from log bunkers and criss-cross tunnels.

At last report a pitched battle had been raging for 36 hours and 69 guerrillas were known killed.

Some 2,000 or more men of the 101st Airborne Division and the helicopter-borne 1st Cavalry Division were battling the Viet Cong in the jungle highlands of Phu Yen province, about 15 miles north of the American coastal enclave at Tuy Hoa.

It was the second major action for the 101st Airborne in two weeks. From June 7 to June 14 the paratroops battled North Viet Nam's 24th Regiment on the Kontum plateau, 120 miles northwest of Tuy Hoa, and estimated they killed more than 1,000 of the 1,400 to 2,000 troops opposing them.

UNCOVERED FOR SECOND TIME IN 342 YEARS

Nun's Body Preserved by Legendary 'Miracle'?

By ROY FERGUSON

MADRID (Reuters) — The body of a Roman Catholic nun who died 342 years ago is being medically examined here because of a legend that says it has remained undecayed through the centuries by a miracle.

The body, about four feet, six inches tall, has been on public display in a chapel since Friday—the face covered by a thin veil and only the shrivelled, dark brown hands and feet showing from beneath a white shroud

Thousands of persons have filed into the chapel to view the body of the Blessed Mariana of Jesus, who was mother superior of the convent of Don Juan de Alarcon in central Madrid.

An official medical report, expected to be made public sometime this week, was being prepared to find out whether a miracle has occurred.

According to local legend, the nun's body gave off a sweet fragrance when she died and she was said to have had visions of the Virgin Mary during her later years in the convent.

Centuries ago, Spanish church officials asked the Vatican to have her named a saint but there was no decision.

Now a new petition is to be made to the Vatican if the medical report indicates that a miracle has taken place, church officials said.

The body was removed from its sealed coffin above a side altar at the convent Friday

Thant was asked at a UN contained.

It had been removed from the coffin once before—in 1924. Two nuns who were present then attended the removal last week.

They told doctors the body was in the same state as when they saw it at its first removal.

A spokesman for the convent said the body's eyes were intact but the face was badly distorted.

When the report has been completed, the body will be transferred to Madrid Cathedral for veneration and by the end of this week will be sealed back in the coffin.

Whether it has decomposed will be weighed in the church's official acceptance of the existence of a miracle, a determining factor in cases of canonization.

PATHFINDERS LOST

Wrong-Way Cyclists Climb Mount Newton

An eager party of 32 young Portland cyclists went on a wild mountain goat chase when they misunderstood directions for their Thetis Lake park tenting grounds and pumped up Mount Newton.

"It must have been a mile high," said one 16-year-old member of the Portland Pathfinders, a church group which landed here Sunday for its fifth annual camping and bicycling holiday in Victoria.

But the 1,000-foot Mount Newton is just a bump in the road compared to their plans for the 2,400-foot Mount Constitution on Orcas Island on Wednesday.

The Pathfinders, most of them under 20, brought their bikes in trailers as far as Anacortes and have used pedal-power since.

SMALLER WAISTS

Outing leaders Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Montgomery explain the youngsters have been eating heartily so far.

"They put on weight but their waists get smaller," said Mrs. Montgomery.

Seventh Day Adventists, they eat no meat, depend on fresh fruit and vegetables for mountain-climbing a la two-wheeler.

Which is about as good a testimonial for lettuce and bananas as there is.

Encouragement, Subsidy Offered School Pageant

DUNCAN—Cowichan School Board will offer "encouragement and subsidy" to local schools to present a centennial pageant.

Trustee Wilf Peck suggested Monday this might be better than students "tapping Dad," for contributions to a province-wide scheme.

However, the board decided to investigate both ideas.

Mr. Peck said the provincial suggestion is for B.C. students to present one of the sister Commonwealth countries with a tangible centennial gift—such as a vocational school.

School principals will be asked to find out student reaction.

Elected with her were Mrs. Sharon Bertoia, vice-president; Miss Jean Carmichael, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Nancy Black, recording secretary; Miss Yvonne Banning, treasurer; Mrs. Andrea Lindsay, public relations; Mrs. Juanita Garden, membership.

. . . AND A TIGER FOR NAPOLEON BONAPARTE

MOSCOW (UPI)—President Charles de Gaulle took time out from his rounds of political talks today to cheer the Russians in Russian.

During a visit to Moscow's city hall where he was received by Mayor Vladimir Promyslov, De Gaulle stepped to a balcony on the front of the building and hailed the crowd below.

There was a cloudburst but De Gaulle ignored it as he stood on the balcony hatless and coatless and shouted:

"Da Zdravstvuyet Moskva!" (Long Live Moscow).
"Da Zdravstvuet Moskvichi!" (Long Live Muscovites).
"Da Zdravstvuyet Rossiya!" (Long Live Russia).
"Da Zdravstvuyet Druzhba!" (Long Live Friendship).

The crowd cheered each phrase.

De Gaulle then waved farewell and dashed back into city hall.

WOULD-BE-WEDS

Would You Belive Hempseed at Midnight

By TERRY IZZARD

Girls!

Looking for a husband?

Men!

Want to get rid of your mother-in-law?

If so, tonight could be your lucky night.

The would-be-weds should go down to the churchyard around midnight and scatter hempseed along the ground (corn won't do).

CHANT-ALONG

While doing this the prospective bride must chant:

Hempseed I sow, hempseed
I mow,
He that will my true love be Come rake this hempseed
after me.

All being well, the future husband will be seen following her, mowing or eating the seed.

The mother-in-law haters must sit on the porch of the parish church and watch the ghosts of all the parishioners filing in.

If ma-in-law's among them and she fails to come out, it means she's going to die in the next year.

Nonsense?

Not at all.

Anything can happen on the first day of summer.

EUROPEAN CUSTOMS

These are just two of the ancient European customs connected with the longest day of the year (which was today for the benefit of Victorians who never saw the sun).

For those who don't want a spouse, there's plenty of other customs for passing away the long day.

A great favorite is witch burning and dragon hunting (somehow mother-in-law can't keep out of this).

Your neighbors won't appreciate this but the fires should preferably be built of old bones and rotting vegetation.

EVIL SMELL TOO

That way, the stink will keep the evil spirits away.

If your vegetable garden's been sadly lacking recently, try jumping through the flames. The higher you jump, the higher your crops will grow.

Local dairy farmers should try passing their cows through the flames—the sun will be very pleased with that.

Not to forget loggers, who, if they follow the example of their Finnish brothers, will assemble along the Sooke River for all-night logging sports.

Most obvious custom of all is sunbathing.

But what man in his right mind would try that in Victoria in June?

BROAD POWERS to run the country until general elections restore democracy to Indonesia were conferred on army chief Lt.-Gen. Suharto today. But the Provisional Peoples Consultative Congress did not set a deadline for the elections. President Sukarno retains his title and little else under the change.

YOUTHS SWIM TO FREEDOM

BERLIN (Reuters) — Three East German youths, 14 to 16 years old, swam unnoticed past East German border guards into the British sector Monday night, West Berlin police said today.

. . . RUSS TIE

French leader in the Kremlin's Catherine Hall.

De Gaulle's theme of one Europe from Atlantic to the Urals was echoed today by Moscow radio. A French-language broadcast said:

'NEED NO BLOCS'

"There is only one Europe in the world. For centuries in the history of mankind its lands have been ravaged and devastated. Latins, Scandinavians, Germans, Slavs have no need of military blocs. They need peace to work, to help each other and live in friendship."

In talks with his Russian hosts de Gaulle was expected to expound his theories on how France and the Soviet Union could work together for European unity and security.

In a Kremlin banquet speech Monday night, de Gaulle set the tone for his talks by calling on Russia to join France in breaking the "harmful spell" of confrontation between East and West.

"Without ignoring the essential role that the United States has to play" in the world, he said, France thinks that the first condition for world progress "is the re-establishment in Europe of fertile unity instead of having Europe paralysed by sterile division."

It is up to France and the Soviet Union to start trying to solve European problems, particularly the problem of Germany, he said.

Podgorny, also speaking at the banquet, said he is convinced France and the Soviet Union can agree on the situation in Europe and other areas "especially those where the flames of war are raging today." He obviously meant Viet Nam.

Walk Proves Uneventful

LOUISE, Miss. (AP) — The Mississippi marchers ended their most uneventful and longest day's trek—17 miles—late Monday and pitched their three tents on the hardpacked ground of a big hog lot on H. L. Montgomery's farm outside this community of 481 persons.

The New York Committee for the James H. Meredith March said 43 persons had registered to fly to Mississippi Friday night to join the final two days of the march to Jackson. The committee said it expected 100 more.

GUERRILLA SMALL

Ky and Roman Catholic Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and both resigned. He has lost 24 pounds.

Thich Tam Chau, the relatively moderate chairman of the Buddhist Institute, has tried to cool off Tri Quang and his extremist followers. He fled the institute compound on the outskirts of Saigon last week when the monks there rejected his appeals for a truce with the government and an end to such tactics as Buddhist family altars in the streets to obstruct traffic.

In a telegram to Ky, Tam Chau asked the premier to remove the troops from the institute area "in order to create an atmosphere of unity and understanding."

Informed sources said Tam Chau has been meeting privately with Ky to work out a solution between the government and the Unified Buddhist Church, an organization of about 1,50,000 Buddhists which conducts its secular activities through the Buddhist Institute.

Brilliant Student Awarded Degree Posthumously

A former Shawnigan Lake student, who died after a traffic accident in Vancouver in April, will receive his bachelor's degree posthumously from the University of British Columbia.

James Ruggles Macdonell, 21, would have been given his degree at a convocation ceremony next week.

Accounted brilliant by his professors at the university, Macdonell had been nominated for a $2,500 Woodrow Wilson fellowship before his death.

He was the grandson of the former manager of the Victoria branch of the Huron and Erie Mortgage Company, Joseph W. Ruggles, who died in 1959, and the son of a former Victoria Times' staff writer, Elizabeth Ruggles.

Macdonell was an honors graduate at Shawnigan Lake School in 1961. He had been in an honors philosophy program at UBC.

His friends at the university have started a memorial fund to establish a scholarship in his name to be awarded to a UBC philosophy student.

B.C. Treatment Centre Needed Says Saanich

Sanich will press the provincial government to establish a treatment centre locally for emotionally-disturbed children.

Other area municipalities are also considering such a resolution brought forward by the Greater Victoria juvenile detention home committee. The city has already given its backing.

Coun. Edith Guning said the committee is "alarmed" at the number of emotionaly-disturbed children coming to the juvenile detention home.

"We feel there should be more of an attempt to rehabilitate some of these children," she said.

OBVIOUS NEED

"There is an obvious need for long-term residential treatment."

Lack of such facilities had forced authorities in some cases to send children to Eastern Canada or the United States "at the greatest expense."

Reeve Hugh Curtis suggested it might be incorporated with the proposed retarded children's hospital in Saanich.

Coun. Gunning replied that Woodlands School for the Retarded in New Westminster already has a waiting list.

Billboard On Safety Rejected

Saanich said no Monday to a proposed safety sign measuring 28-by-eight feet suggested by the Kiwanis Club of Saanich.

"Billboards are a nuisance and do nothing to enhance the beauty of any municipality," said Coun. Leslie Passmore.

"If we allow one we will have to allow others. I'm not criticizing their efforts but I do criticize the billboard."

Council suggested the Kiwanis work with the police department in its safety program.

The big billboard would have shown a life-size policeman holding a child with the words: Safety is in your hands. Accident figures would be posted on the sign.

Book Prizes for Leading Students

Local students who ranked top in their grade 11 social studies classes have been awarded book prizes by the Ss Beaver Kiwanis Club.

The books are on Canadian history, also the subject of the grade 11 course.

Winners, one from each senior secondary school are Catherine Reiner, Victoria; Gilbert Chew, Oak Bay; Robert Partridge, Mount Douglas; Peter Lawrie, Mount View, and Pamela King, Esquimalt.

The students will be treated to breakfast Thursday morning with their school principals at the club's regular meeting.

The book prizes are part of the Ss Beaver Kiwanis Club's centennial project.

Windows They Clean, Carpets They Dirty

They have clean windows at Victoria City Hall these days.

They also have dirty water-stained carpets in the second-storey offices fronting on Douglas Street.

Officials said a firm hired to clean the windows on a "one-shot" deal used a high-pressure gadget to wash the dirt of six months from the panes.

On new windows, sealed tight against the weather, the jet worked fine. But on the ancient frames in the older section of the building the power proved too much.

Several department heads entered their inner sanctums Monday to find soggy puddles on the carpets and many a window-ledge-filed report a saturated mess.

City manager Dennis Young said the firm would be asked to make a financial adjustment to cover the as yet unestimated damage.

Six months ago it was suggested that city staffers take over the window-cleaning chore. The suggestion was rejected by council.

Since then private firms have shown a reluctance to meet normal City Hall specifications for the cleaning contract.

Last week, after public criticism, a private firm was hired to spruce up the windows on the one-wash basis.

The long-term problem as to who gets the permanent job remains unsettled.

Zoning Keeps Council Busy

Saanich council rejected six proposed zoning changes Monday night.

At the same time, it approved a meeting hall and administration centre zone for the Saanich New Democratic Party after an assurance by the solicitor it could not be used for dances.

Rejected by council were:

- Hairdressing operation, 2620 Killarney;
- Boarding and breeding kennels, 5087 Del Monte;
- Kindergarten, 305 Cadillac;
- Three-storey apartment, 1711-1731 Cedar Hill Cross Road;
- Three-storey apartment, 1753 Blair;
- Truck depot for Farmer Construction, Oak Street;

HEARINGS

Council called for public hearings into applications for a commercial swimming pool, southeast corner of McKenzie and Glanford, and office use by the Saanich Peninsula Credit Union at the old Royal Oak municipal hall.

Referred to lands and planning committee was an application for a trailer campsite at the northwest corner of Sayward and Lochside.

Among new applications received by Saanich were ones for a swimming pool on the west side of Shelbourne between Derby and Knight and a handicapped children's clinic at the northwest corner of Arbutus and Haro.

One-Year Agreement On Library

Central Saanich should approve the new intermunicipal library agreement on a one-year basis, Reeve Gordon Lee said today.

But the agreement should be amended next year to allow Central Saanich to have a representative on the library board, he stated.

He also wants the board to provide the municipality with a small library as soon as possible.

Approval of a new library agreement has been delayed because municipalities have disagreed on voting powers on the board.

Central Saanich earlier this month threatened to pull out of the Victoria library system over the issue.

OUT-OF-DATE

"The voting system on the board is out of date," said the reeve. "Some changes should be made in 1967."

Central Saanich, he said, should be allowed a representative on the board with the power to vote on all policy matters. Municipalities with larger populations would vote on both policy and financial matters.

"This is the way library boards operate on the mainland," said the reeve. "Voting on financial matters is based on a population basis, but all representatives vote on policy matters."

U of O Degrees For 2 Victorians

Two Victorians received post-graduate degrees recently at commencement exercises at the University of Oregon, Eugene, Ore.

Bryan James Wain Gray received a master of science degree. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Gray, 523 Oliver.

A doctor of philosophy degree was awarded at the same time to Stanley Arthur Perkins, also of Victoria.

CAMPBELL WHACKED AGAIN

Letter Called 'Incredible'

A letter from Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell to all B.C. municipalities was termed "incredible" Monday night by Esquimalt Reeve Ray Bryant.

The letter instructed the municipalities to accept the lowest bid on contracts, Reeve Bryant told council members.

"It's just an incredible letter. There's no other way of putting it.

"Obviously we have to judge for quality; the lowest tender is not always the lowest in fact," the reeve said.

Greater Victoria municipalities have for years stipulated that the lowest tender is not necessarily accepted when calling tenders, he said.

It was incredible that Mr. Campbell wasn't aware of this practice, "carried out by everyone, including his own department," Reeve Bryant stated later.

"We've been trying through the usual diplomatic channels to find out the reason for the letter, "but haven't yet been able to discover it, he told council.

A Tide of Wheat

THE RECORD $800-MILLION wheat sale to Russia announced yesterday has major significance on both sides of the Pacific.

For Canada it will mean a solid marketing base for all the wheat we can produce over the next three years — with all that this implies for the prosperity of the prairies and of the industries that quickly reflect the wellbeing of the farmers. For Russia it is recognition, even before the results of this year's spring crop are known, that large importations of grain will be necessary to maintain domestic needs and commitments to Communist allies.

Eventually the effects of the sale will be felt throughout most of the economy of Canada. They will be still more widely felt if we permit the natural interflow of trade to take place, for exports in any normal economy mean corresponding imports. We cannot indefinitely sell to Russia without increasing our purchases from that country — and so far our purchases have been relatively small.

The Soviet wheat buying admittedly is on an emergency basis: the country will face stringency without extra grain. But this situation does not preclude any need for Canada to keep the trade equation at least within sight of a balance. The fact is, that although Canada appears to be the favorite place for massive purchases of wheat, we are not the only source. We may not retain our position if we persist in closing our doors to Russian products.

In Russia, it is plain that the Communist system has so far failed to organize agricultural production adequately. The great farm program of Mr. Khrushchev has failed to meet the need; and his successors have not yet mastered the problem. The increasing Soviet population and Russia's promised supplies for Cuba and Eastern Europe create a greater demand than the inadequately mechanized and inefficiently organized production complex can meet.

The public admission of this is no doubt a much harder burden for Russia to bear than the $800 million cost of food imports. A nuclear world power with insufficient bread to feed its people is a paradox, to say the least. Apparently Russia foresees at least three years of shortage ahead, and those years will call for striking changes in the Communist system of farm operation.

This important association in trade carries other benefits, not only for Canada but for the West. The closer the trade contacts with the Soviet Union the greater the opportunities for co-operation in other fields leading to better understanding and peaceful purposes.

But the trade agreement poses a challenge for Canada. Our farm production can fill the bill, granted reasonable weather and crop conditions. But our transportation and handling facilities will have to be properly organized to prevent bottlenecks, as has happened before in the case of large shipments. And Canadian labor should interpret our nation's commitments to the purchasers as an opportunity to contribute greatly to the general prosperity, not as a club to use in wage negotiations.

The Rumpled Welcome Mat

THE CASE OF THE VISITING Japanese girl who ran into unforeseen difficulty in entering this country in which she was to be a guest for four months is another illustration of the sterile rigidity of our immigration laws and their lack of adaptibility to individual problems.

To be detained and threatened with expulsion as an undesirable alien is a poor reception for a visitor whose only purpose in coming was to foster friendly relations with another country. By the strict letter of the regulations the Vancouver officials no doubt were carrying out their duty perfectly. But the juggernaut of laws made 3,000 miles away is not likely to spare the tender feelings of little girls who get in its way through no fault of their own.

Admittedly newcomers to our country must be protected against exploitation of their labor. But surely this protection could be in the form of follow-up action, particularly when the sponsors of the visitor are reputable citizens obviously acting from the best of motives.

More independence of judgment should be granted to federal authorities on the spot, so that embarrassment and hardship will not result from blind imposition of overall legislation designed for much more serious cases. It should be easy enough to guarantee the whereabouts of a temporary immigrant without placing her in detention, while the red tape is unsnarled and the obvious, simple corrections made.

How Big Is Jumbo?

IN SUPERMARKETS HERE AND throughout Canada, the housewife can wander through aisles of produce packaged in a way to suggest to prospective purchasers that they are receiving particular bargains. One may be "jumbo," another "giant" another "family sized." Only if she has time, or inclination, will she find in less prominent print a statement of the contents by weight or volume. And these may be in amounts difficult to compare.

Twenty young college-trained women investigated the packaging and labeling in an American supermarket and reached the conclusion that the average family in that country wastes about $81 a year on packaged food because of evasive or confusing labels. In the United States that figure has been projected to a loss or overcharge of $4.5 billions for the whole nation.

To reduce the waste, loss or overcharge, as the case may be, two senators have sponsored a bill to simplify and standardize package labels in a way to make economical shopping easy for the average housewife.

The bill, winning wide support among American legislators, would require the package to carry the name of the commodity, its manufacturer, a separate statement of net quantity of contents in standardized measures and insist that the quantity statement be printed in conspicuous and legible type "undiluted" by qualifying words such as "six jumbo ounces of detergent."

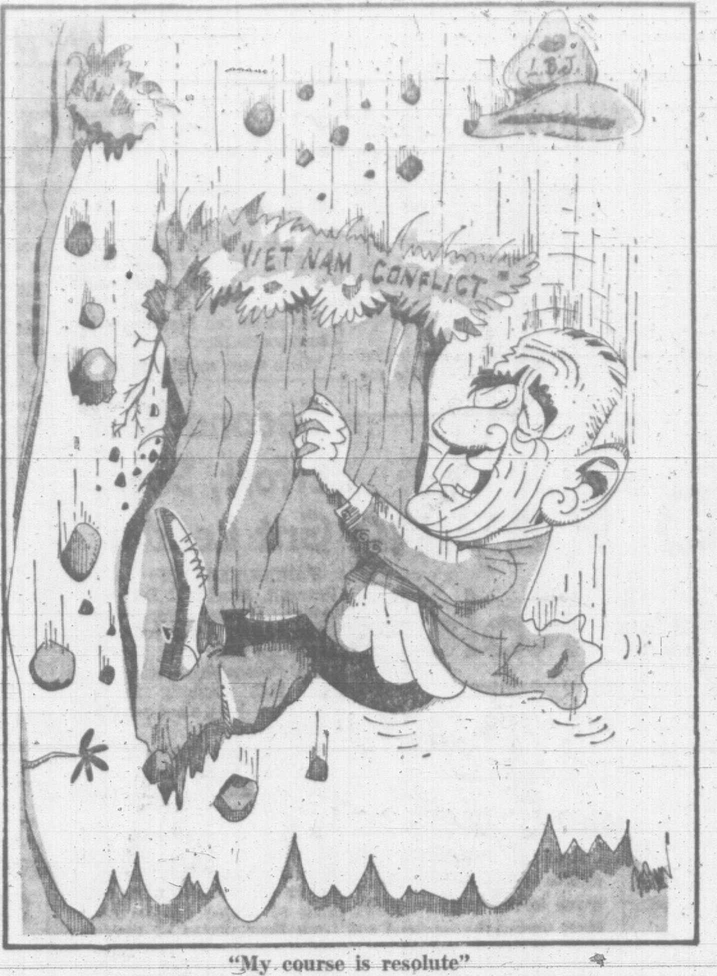
No similar legislation is currently being considered in Canada, despite the efforts of private members to find backing for bills covering the point. Why not? Clarity and integrity in marketing must be basic to our system of distribution. If industry itself cannot maintain standards then the consumer will have to turn to government control to obtain protection.

Educate the Litter Bug

CIVIC AND CHAMBER OF COMmerce leaders are agreed on the principle that Victorians should do more to keep their city tidy. They have promised a study of means whereby the litter which so frequently disfigures the streets and public places on weekends might be eliminated.

The work presumably can be done effectively if costs of cleaning gangs are paid. But litter, surely, is not solely a civic and Chamber of Commerce concern. It is a problem which can, and should, be corrected by the citizens themselves.

Our streets become dirty and unattractive because too many of our people are careless in the disposal of waste materials. The cure for the situation lies not so much in the clean-up job that has to be done, but in the training of people, whatever their age, to avoid causing the mess in the first place.



"My course is resolute"

FROM WASHINGTON By WALTER LIPPMANN

L.B.J. Betting on Victory

FROM the President's press conference last week, it is now clear that he still hopes for a solution in Viet Nam by military victory. He has not quite said what General Ky said over the weekend — that the Viet Cong would be defeated in a year. But he did say that he expects to defeat the fighting forces of the enemy and compel him to negotiate a peace on our terms. For the time being, until the test of battle has been gone through, he will make none of the concessions which are the essential ingredients of a negotiated peace.

Lippmann

The President has not yet committed himself completely to the militarist solution which calls for the destruction the industrial and administrative structure of North Viet Nam, and contemplates years of warfare to occupy and pacify all of South Viet Nam. All that now stands in the way of this militarist solution is a wishful and hopeful prediction that Hanoi will give up the struggle if its elite troops have been defeated and decimated in the battles which are now beginning.

It is, of course, a gamble, not the first in a series of optimistic estimates and predictions which have proved to be false. Yet it may be, as some impartial and informed Asians think, that while Ho Chi Minh still has a large uncommitted army, he may be in sight of the end of his reserves of elite troops, and that he might come to be in the mood to negotiate a compromise.

That is the best that can be said for the President's current policy. It rests on a thin hope, for it is more likely that the destruction of the hard core elite of the enemy will reduce the level of the fighting to a protracted guerrilla war and that a solution by military victory will continue to elude us. What makes this most probable is that General Ky's government, composed almost entirely of generals who were on the wrong side of the Vietnamese war of independence from imperial France, is certain to confront Ho Chi Minh with terms which he can never accept.

China Factor

There remains the probability that China will not accept an American military victory over North Viet Nam and that in one way or another, if necessary, she will find ways to reinforce Ho Chi Minh's troops.

Nevertheless, the die is cast, the President's mind is no longer open to argument. He is determined to place at least one more big wager on military victory before he considers seriously the problems of a negotiated settlement.

Letters to the Editor

Letters will be considered for publication only if the writer is clearly identified to the editor, who may permit pen names at his discretion. Submissions will be edited and may be condensed. Short letters are favored. None will be returned.

Proud of Uniform

As the mother of an ex-Scout, who was very proud to wear the Scout uniform for all occasions, I hope it will never be changed and I am glad that the chief Scout executive, Jack Scrivener, has the good sense to want to keep it the distinctive uniform it is, respected the world over.

Stick to your guns Jack and be glad that many of the boys are with you.—J. McA.

Shrinking Pensions

The people and the various governments should never forget in this period of affluence in this country that fundamentally our prosperity is due to our pioneers who sweated and toiled to clear the forests and break the land, to build the first bridges, and to make the roadbeds.

It seems to me in this squabble between management and labour they are tackling it from the wrong angle. Let both sides put their cards on the table, also the various governments and the consumer and figure out how all the people have an interest in the outcome, not necessarily their own union.

I remember vividly a conversation I had on the bus with a woman dressed in black who looked very sad. She told me her husband had been an engineer before he died, that she was getting a very small pension. She said that every time after a strike settlement things went up and "that it was just as if they had put a hand into my purse and had taken out some of my much-needed pennies."

It seems that those getting higher wages owing to the strike are cheating themselves in the long run. Perhaps they may soon be out of work and struggling with the righ cost of food, etc.—M. M. Pugh, R.N., 711 Pemberton.

For Dear Old Dad

Once again, due to the observance of Father's Day, we see the antics of "Maddison Ave." are well and truly to the fore. Consumers are being urged to buy certain very exclusive or "prestige" toiletries for dear old Dad, most of which seem to be priced out of all proportion. I think it is a sad reflection on our society especially when so many people are struggling to make ends meet each week on incomes which in some cases are about comparable with the cost of these commodities.

Surely this type of thing only plays into the hands of those who oppose the profit making capitalistic system. A profit system is fine, providing it does not "run wild." In my opinion this latest piece of gimmickry could justifiably be classified as amoral.—Doreen C. Bunn.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"SMILE, MR. WILSON! PRETEND DENNIS IS GOING AWAY TO CAMP FOR THE SUMMER."

Looking Back

From the Times of June 21, 1906:

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company is presently taking up the question of cheap weekend trips for autoists from Seattle. At present the rates are too high to warrant bringing automobiles from the Sound for a day or two. There are hundreds of machines in Seattle but no roads suitable for touring, while Victoria and vicinity have the best roads on the continent. The trip from Victoria to Cumberland, for instance, would make an excellent week-long expedition.

CANADIAN POLITICS By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Hodge-Podge of Conflicts

MR. PEARSON'S loyal cabinet colleagues have rallied around their chief, denounced his critics and invited him to remain in office as long as he pleases. So, no doubt, they should. Loyalty is a fine virtue in politics and in other more important aspects of life. But men as wise and experienced as Messrs. Pickersgill, Sharp and Martin must know that loyalty, under present conditions, cannot be enough. For the difficulties now afflicting him and the nation will outlast Mr. Pearson (and even Mr. Diefenbaker, who is practically immortal).

Hutchison

The Liberal government and party have been painfully split and live in almost perpetual crisis, but not merely because Mr. Pearson cannot manage them. The Conservative opposition is in the same state of disorder, but not merely because it cannot find a way of unloading Mr. Diefenbaker. All the miseries of these two men in their troubled twilight are only passing ripples on the current of the nation's life.

Double Process

Our real concern is with that current, not with a bitter personal feud which must soon end in the course of nature. No man can yet guess where the current is running, or what sort of nation will greet its hundredth birthday only a year from now. It seems to me, however, that a double process is in flow, much deeper and more complex than we suspected even a month ago.

With the arrival of Mr. Daniel Johnson in Quebec we confront our oldest Canadian problem in a new, acute and frightening form, if he actually means what he says. Unless we can solve that problem all the brave solutions we are planning for other problems will be irrelevant.

Leaving French Canada aside for the moment, not because it is unimportant but because its leader's true intentions are unknown, we must realize at last that the whole political system is taking a new shape as yet unforeseeable. The party lines that guided us since 1867, with remarkable success on the whole, are breaking down. This is not a sudden apocalypse as some excited headline writers imagine but a natural evolution. Our politics, in short, are struggling to keep up with our society.

So far, they have fallen behind. The result is bewildering confusion on both sides, right and left. No one expects, of course, that any political party will be consistently on one side or the other and such clarity would soon wreck the system. Given one party standing against social change of any sort and another standing for total change overnight, every election would be a revolution, perhaps a civil war, as has happened in so many nations which have not learned the virtues of inconsistency.

Citizen's Due

But the citizen surely is entitled to know, in a general way, that one party stands for a policy of change, along certain lines, that the other party stands for the consolidation of changes already made before the next advance is attempted.

That is a rough working definition between a liberal and a conservative party in any nation or age, whatever labels they wear. In contemporary Canada the historic definition has collapsed. Our major parties have been unable to re-define their attitudes toward our rapidly changing society. Both suffer similar agonies of soul-searching and neither knows where it stands on the basic issues of these times.

The Liberal party thought it knew where it stood when it came to office but Mr. Walter Gordon and his friends have lately undertaken to shift its centre of gravity drastically leftwards into more radical liberalism, though oddly enough they want a conservative policy of protectionism and national self-containment. The reaction to this pressure was instantaneous. Throughout the West, and doubtless in many parts of the East as well, many Liberals are determined to crush the Gordon revolt at the October convention.

More Confused

The Conservative party is still more confused. After the six years of the Diefenbaker government it could not pretend to know where it stood in policy. It knew only that it stood in the wilderness, led by a man who was never a conservative by any definition but a lonely agrarian rebel, with his own private revelation, a strange mixture of reform and nostalgia. For the time being conservatism as a doctrine has lost its way, all its energies concentrated on the choice of a new leader, with few to spare for ideas.

Thus we have no Liberal party with an understandable position, since the position depends on the outcome of the present inward power struggle, and no Conservative party since its future depends on Mr. Diefenbaker's struggle to survive. In consequence, a section of the Liberal party is closer to Mr. Douglas than it is to the ruling men of the cabinet. A section of the Conservative party is closer to these men than it is to Mr. Diefenbaker.

The facts have become so obvious that Mr. Douglas counts on a realignment of politics, the emergence of a coherent right-wing and a coherent left-wing party, while some university professors recommend a grand coalition of all parties, without any policy at all, except goodwill, honesty and a rejection of sin.

Mr. Douglas may be right, though a little premature. He is right anyhow in sensing that the current chaos of men and ideas cannot last indefinitely. One way or another it will be clarified, either within the major parties or by a new combination of parties.

As if their family quarrels were not sufficiently distracting, an extra element enters the political chemistry with Mr. Johnson. Whatever else his election may mean it unquestionably means that a large part of French Canada is alarmed by the Quiet Revolution. It cannot repeal such a profound and necessary movement but wishes to slow the pace. Mr. Johnson evidently will slow it.

While that is Quebec's own business, it raises a large question in the rest of the country, apart from the ancient racial question: How many English-speaking Canadians agree that the pace of the nation-wide leftward movement should be slowed, temporarily at any rate, until the huge commitments already made are digested?

Central Issue

There is the central issue facing and dividing the major parties and it comprehends all others. Both parties have evaded it up to now and Mr. Douglas simply ignores it under the impression that Canada can do everything at once, regardless of its growing but still limited means.

The central issue cannot be evaded much longer because the means are now stretched to the limit, or beyond it, as proved by every economic index and the prices in every shop. Around this question of means and timing, not the question of social reform, which almost everybody desires, the parties must clarify their thinking to the point where the people have at least some broad alternatives to vote for. The system will remain disordered and unworkable so long as such alternatives are lacking and each major party is a hodgepodge of contradictions, both in personalities and in policies.

OBSESRVER OF SOCIETY

Balzac was the observer or secretary of society. What modern zoologists were doing to explain animal species in relation to their environment, he was doing for modern man. Social behavior and social environment were inseparable; he was recording both. The Human Comedy is essentially a kind of zoo in which all the animals can be observed in their natural environment.

—A. G. Lehmann, professor of French studies at Reading University.

Never Too Late

New York Times

SOCIALISTS used to argue that a state-owned economy would quickly do away with the damage to the common welfare inflicted by those who could not see beyond their private interest.

For almost a half-century now the Soviet Union has had to learn the hard lesson that the bureaucratic factory manager intent only upon achieving his production plan can be at least as indifferent to the general welfare as the most narrow-minded capitalist, and consequently just as guilty of polluting the environment. The Soviet record of outrages against that country's air, water and other natural resources is fully as shameful as the American, and has aroused the same alarm among thoughtful Soviet citizens as conservationists express here.

A crucial battle is now being fought by those who wish to stop the ruin of the Soviet natural environment. A band of leading Moscow intellectuals seeks to prevent the poisoning of one of the world's natural wonders — Lake Baikal — by Soviet pulp and paper plants now almost ready to go into production. The importance of their effort arises from the fact that Baikal is the world's largest and deepest fresh-water lake. The protesters are demanding that the economic planners recognize their mistake, write off the capital investment and prevent these plants from ever operating in their present location.

Yes But . . . Ugh!

Ottawa Citizen

CONCERNING long hair on young men, we are not dogmatic. By long hair we mean, of course, locks that reeach to the shoulders, or thereabouts. The Beatle style of haystack haircut is no longer strange. The longer hair is still sufficiently unusual to cause raised eyebrows and, in the Yorkville section of Toronto the other day, a near-riot.

There are some who say that shoulder length hair on a youth is a sign of effeminacy. We are not so sure. After all, it was only after he got a haircut that Samson was so weakened that his enemies could overcome him. Old pictures of Walt Whitman, the 19th century American poet, indicate long hair, yet he was the most virile and masculine of writers. Pictures of the 17th and 18th century explorers of North America reveal not a single crew-cut; these adventurous men almost invariably wore long hair. And many an 18th century sportsman and fighter wore his in a short pigtail.

This is not to say we favor long hair. It's just that we don't think there's anything to worry about, and that the style in which a person wears his hair is his own business. The trouble is, of course, that long hair is not the general fashion, and therefore creates antipathy. No doubt if it were the contemporary style, the non-conformists would have crew-cuts. The way we see it, nonconformity is no crime as long as it hurts no one, and the world would be a poor, dull place without it.

Historic Example

The Gazette, Montreal

THERE is only one lasting benefit that could come from the longshoremen's strike: it could become the historic example of something that should never be allowed to happen again. The terms of the settlement are costly. But no one can possibly estimate the total cost that the breakdown of transportation in the St. Lawrence has inflicted on the country.

What price tag is to be placed on the delay in shipping exports of Canadian grain? What is the price of the disruptions in the import trade? Who shall estimate the added costs the delay has placed upon Expo? What is the total bill for the damage the strke has done to the reputation of the Port of Montreal? What will be the final loss of revenues for this port, and for the ports of Trois Rivieres and Quebec?

Who will recompense all those who have suffered as the result of the policy of the federal Government in allowing the strike to go on for nearly 40 days? Obviously, they will receive no recompense. Everyone who has suffered loss will have to make good that loss on his own, as best he may.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices showed considerable irregularity in active trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today, with broad advances and aggressive demand in early activity.

Some buying on U.S. markets helped the upswing, but there was considerable profit-taking on American markets and early broad advances were reduced or erased. This resulted in some broad gains in Winnipeg being reduced.

A heavy volume of barley trading was noted with shipping interests preparing for domestic and international trade.

UNLISTED, BONDS, PIPELINES

MARKET SUMMARIES

Vancouver Mines Slump

Nine mining issues hit lows for the year in sluggish trade on the Vancouver Stock Exchange today.

Trading on Wall Street picked up today and the price picture brightened slightly. Prices edged higher at Toronto.

AT NEW YORK in a technical rally with no particular news behind it, the list moved ahead following an irregular start. Such glamor stocks as airlines, aerospace issues, color televisions, other electronics, office equipments and photographic issues took their accustomed positions of market leadership.

Sperry Rand loomed again as the most active stock, but this time it was unable to post any gain.

Taft Broadcasting, up nearly 2, also was active, helped by a big block.

Fairchild Camera was up about 7 points while gains of 3 points or so were made by Johnson and Johnson, Gulf and Western Industries, Delta Airlines, Chicago and North Western Common and its preferred. Northwest Airlines spurted about 4.

AT VANCOUVER the losses were marginal but widespread across the board.

Among mines slumping were Bornite, down .01 to .35; Copper Ridge, off .01 to .30; Endako, down .12 to $10.50; Midwest, off .01 to .45; Nadina, down .10 to $1.80; Northwest Ventures, off ½ to .12; Rodstrom, down .03 to .40; Silver Titan, down .10 to $2, and Ventures, off .08 to .52.

Northlode was an exception in the trading, gaining .14 to a high for the year of .97.

In the industrials, CPR added $4 to $65.75, presumably reflecting the new grain deal signed between Canada and Russia.

MacMillan, Bloedel was off .25 to $25.87 and Massey lost .12 to $34.37.

AT TORONTO bank issues were big winners. Bank of Montreal gained 1¼ to 60, Royal Bank 1¼ to 74½ and Bank of Nova Scotia and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce 1 each to 70 and 64¼.

Transportation and grain issues also gained, on news of three-year, $800,000,000 wheat and flour deal with the Soviet Union. CPR climbed 1⅝ to 65½ and Canada Steamship lines ¾ to 35¼.

Maple Leaf Mills gained 1 to 16½, and Ogilvie Flour Mills ½ to 14 among grain issues.

In senior base metals, gains of ⅜ each went to Falconbridge, at 90 and Inco, at 96⅞. Rio Algom gained ¼ to 25.

AT MONTREAL banks led most sections fractionally higher in moderate trading.

Industrial volume was 105,000 and mines and oils 334,800. Among the banks Royal jumped 1⅜ to 74½ and Montreal one point to 60.

AT LONDON the stock market wavered uncertainly today with a market impression gathering force that Britain's seamen's strike is as far as ever from any settlement.

Demand was small, selective and usually related to company news.

Canada Firm To Open Chine Mine

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — John C. Doyle, a director and former president of Canadian Javelin, said Monday the company will open a copper mine in Northern Chile under a revised corporate setup affecting many Caadian holdings of the Doyle interests.

He gave no date for the opening.

In a telephone interview from Montreal with radio station CJON, Mr. Doyle said a new formula will lay out "spheres of influence" for the Jubilee Iron Corp. and the Newfoundland and Labrador Corp., both Javelin subsidiaries.

The changes mean the former firm, under the new name Jubilee Mining Corp., will handle much of the mining and mine exploration and development of Javelin. NALCO will concentrate on timber concessions. The changes also will give Bison Petroleum, another Javelin subsidiary, rights to oil exploration off Newfoundland now held by Jubilee.

GET 50 PER CENT

Jubilee Iron Corp. had acquired "50 per cent interest in approximately 80 square miles of copper concessions in the immediate vicinity of ... a coastal port in northern Chile."

"It is planned to immediately begin construction of an operating mine on the property. The location permits profits to be exported as it is in the northern free zone of Chile.

Engineers have estimated on an initial basis that profits should equal approximately $1,000,000 a year, based on a price of only two-thirds of the current market quotations for Chilean copper."

The ore was three and one-half per cent copper, he said.

Park To Get Mine Airstrip

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial parks authorities confirmed Monday that an American-owned mining company looking for minerals in Tweedsmuir provincial park has been given permission to build an airstrip in the park.

Ashfork Mines Ltd., Canadian subsidiary of Phelps Dodge Corp. of the U.S., has staked about 270 claims near the western boundary of the park, about 320 miles northwest of here.

Some mineral claims are within the park, said authorities.

A spokesman said a permit to build and operate an airstrip in the park was granted because otherwise the company would have wanted an access road which would have caused more damage.

The mineral claims were staked by the company from 1959 to 1966. Under new legislation approval is necessary from the recreation minister for further prospecting in such Class B parks.

Tweedsmuir is a 2,400,000-acre park, largely undeveloped.

The parks branch spokesman said the company was told that if and when a mine comes into production inside the park, new road access must be provided from the coast.

Arthur Mayse

It used to be in Saanich that the garbage collectors came once a month, a circumstance that worked a considerable hardship on householders.

While we never reached Vancouver's unhappy condition, we did have to burn what we could, flatten all tin cans, and hope earnestly for a Boy Scout bottle drive.

In the course of time, Saanich went on a twice-a-month collection system, and that was a great improvement. We still had to be careful, of course, but a prudent operator could reach the end of the fortnight without serious disposal problems arising.

Yesterday morning, with a week still to go, we heard a familiar clanging and clattering in the drive, and learned that change has struck again.

For this summer at least, collection will be twice a week—an innovation that puts us darn near in the metropolitan class.

It's all for the best, I suppose, but we still recall the monthly collection, which was a dramatic event. No marooned ship's crew ever greeted rescue more eagerly than we, and to be missed was an outright disaster.

Also, progress has its price. From an original $5, the annual cost of the service rose first to $8, and now stands at $10.

A car with Oregon plates pulled in to the road strip late Monday afternoon, and the driver poked his straw-hatted head out the window.

"I wonder if you could tell me," he asked, "how we get to Butchart Gardens?"

Directed, the visitors rolled on, and I went back to my driveway sweeping.

We scored a California car half an hour or so later, then took ourselves indoors, convinced that one of Victoria's pleasanter seasonal phenomena has commenced.

American children are getting out of school, and a host of American families are pushing off for a holiday among the friendly foreigners who inhabit the lands to the north.

That's us, chums. Another tourist season has begun, and if the ferries run and the weather plays along, it should be a good one.

My part in it consists mostly of telling strayed visitors how to reach those famous gardens, and for a reason which has nothing whatever to do with the economic significance of the tourist trade, I am glad to undertake it.

The many of us who have holidayed in their foreign country remember very well the courtesy, decency and downright kindness shown to Canadians on tour by Americans at home.

Surely, when they visit us here, they deserve as good.

There was a time when a high school student who wrote verse found it best to keep the fact to himself. But today's young crop takes poetry in stride.

These boys and girls give short shrift to rhyme, and theirs are not the easy rhythms of the past. At its worst, their work is pedestrian, but often they produce a fine, fractured music.

One of the best collections of young verse to come my way is titled 'The Vulgar Age.' It was produced by student editors of Mount Douglas Secondary and contains 42 poems.

Here is Steve Hume's 'Contemporary Primitive':

Boys in tennis shoes and leather stand daring sluffish traffic with their dark-Crusader eyes.
The girls, half-women, faces shrouded by the tangle,
hook, and dangle of their hair,
stand like strangely articulate flowers
criss-crossed in stark directions
by the metal-rigid forest of meters.
The harsh light of the neons glistens off dark leather,
transmuting shadows black to green,
and lending system-ragged eyes
a sea-lit, green, primaeval brightness.

53 YEARS OF BLOOD, FRET AND TEARS

By JIM HUME

In November, 1913, Victoria city council appointed an arbitrator to handle expropriation claims expected to arise from a plan to widen Fort Street.

That decision marked the start of a program which ends this year as the long notorious Dardanelles, described in the official record as that part of Fort "between Yates and Harrison to Oak Bay Junction," falls to the machinery of the modern road maker.

If 53 years seems a long time to complete a relatively simple road widening program, don't be hard on city council. The path was strewn with obstacles ranging from lack of money to stubborn home owners. And for measure two world wars were tossed across the path.

At that long ago city council meeting when the decision to widen Fort from Cook to Ormond—many blocks from the Dardanelles but still the start of the project—was taken other worries were pressing the city fathers.

Horse Problem

Nellie Christie was asking for an extension of time before disposing of a horse as ordered by the city's health and morals committee.

Windsor Grocery was in process of losing its contract to supply groceries to the Isolation Hospital because it was charging "first-class prices for second-class goods."

And the unemployed prowled Victoria's streets looking for work.

It was in 1913 that Mayor A. J. Morley and his entire council voted to give up their annual stipend so that the unemployed—a few of them, anyway—could eat that Christmas.

The Dardanelles (that name was to be born four years later in one of the fiercest battles Britain ever lost) was a problem.

Staggering Sum

But so was the city's water supply, the cost of living, Capt. S. H. Brown, and the president of the New Method Laundry.

For the water the city needed $450,000, a staggering sum in those days, for a dam and control building at Sooke Lake.

And Capt. Brown was again complaining that he was being assessed for a sewer connection when his home didn't have one.

As for the president of New Method, he asked city council for special low water rates for steam laundries "operated by white labor" and got his reduced rate.

In 1914 the plan to widen Fort picked up steam.

Mrs. Isabella Prior was paid $1,750 for a lot she owned. A month later James P. Laker, recognizing council's urgency, offered "a portion of his lot required for the widening of Fort" to the city for $2,100.

Inflation was on the way in.

So were civic votes for women (their first demand to council was made in 1914) and so was the First World War.

Had To Come

But council had a target and through suffragette movements and the war to end war it never lost sight of its aims.

Come hell or high water Fort Street was going to be widened.

In March of that fateful year council supported a motion by the mayor of Windsor urging the federal government to build a deep waterway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic.

FOR MORE THAN HALF A CENTURY this winding section of Fort Street has been a headache to 53 city councils. Today, after a long history of squabbles the narrow street is succumbing to progress. Before the year is out the Dardanelles will have disappeared to bring to a close a chapter of city history which started in 1913.—(Times Photo.)

It also had its finance committee study a "claim from J. P. Elford" regarding the widening of Fort.

Unfortunately the records contain no details of the claim nor the dispensation of it.

In May, 1914, the Rev. Dr. Campbell wrote to council urging them to get on with the Fort Street project.

"Let us have prompt action," he said.

Council would have been happy oblige but they tabled the letter without comment and considered an application for cluster lights on Cormorant and a complaint regarding the smoke nuisance from the Union Club.

The letter may have sparked the next surge forward in the overall plan, however, for a month later J. P. Elford (of earlier claim) petitioned council to get on with at least part of the project under the Local Improvement regulations.

On June 29 council voted a $50 grant to the school board and passed a motion to widen Fort from Linden to Yates.

In July the laying of sidewalks in the already widened areas began and the city settled a claim by J. G. Brown that his property between Linden and Yates had been unduly affected by progress.

Second Look

J. H. Gray complained to council that month too. He said the city should take a second look at its plans before it destroyed already ancient trees lining the narrow street.

Council looked a second time and trees were removed.

Whether because of the long and tedious hassles continually blocking speedy progress on Fort, or whether for other reasons, Ald. Herbert Cuthbert resigned from council that month accompanying his resignation with a $50 cheque.

It made little difference to council for that same month of June the council passed its first formal bylaw authorizing the spending of money to make "Fort Street a uniform width of 76 feet from Linden to Yates."

The Dardanelles was starting to feel the hot breath of the grader.

But determined though council was to eliminate what was already being termed a death trap, it couldn't buck the conflagration touched off in Europe that sunny August.

Unfair Treatment

In November, 1914, there was one brief reference to the widening of Fort when Dr. W. E. Home complained of unfair treatment in the adjustment of his Fort Street property line.

It was the last serious reference to road building programs for quite a few years.

But Fort and the Dardanelles were not forgotten.

In 1922 D. H. Bale wrote to council warning them that homeowners would not go along with their plans unless council assured them of full and adequate compensation.

The same gentleman, while anxious that his pocketbook be protected, acknowledged that there was a problem in the narrow, winding Dardanelles.

Pressure BCE

He suggested in a second letter to council that they pressure B.C. Electric into removing its street car tracks and relocating them on Pandora. Such a move would, he said, remove much of the danger.

In July, 1922, council made its first formal move into the Dardanelles. Establishing a committee to study all facets of the problem it also gave the committee "the power to make any investigations they see fit."

But property owners, some of them pioneer families, were hard to convince. Each year as property became available the city snipped away at acquisition.

In the meantime they clamped severe police restrictions on traffic travelling the narrow street, ordered "certain poles removed and relocated" and drew attention of B.C. Electric the coroner's jury rider commenting on the dangerous condition of the Dardanelles.

Painful Progress

Still, after close to 10 years of trying, the city knew what it wanted. But as 1922 ended with the city fathers promising to clean up a $200,000 overdraft with the Bank of Montreal early in 1923, progress was painful.

Money was short, the depression but a cock-stride away and the city firemen wanted a raise in pay.

They got it, too, with every fireman on city staff able to tell his wife he now earned $113.50 a month before deductions.

For the next 42 years successive city fathers plugged away at the Dardanelles. Property was acquired, plans were laid, committees formed and disbanded, and in July, 1948, the street cars stopped running.

One problem remained: there was never enough money to get on with the job.

And so the sitaution remained until June, 1964, when Victoria voters went to the polls and approved a $3,387,000 money bylaw.

Capital Budget

That was the famous Capital Budget bylaw which included the dazzling beauty of Centennial Square, the revitalization of Bastion Square and $861,000 for road improvements.

Tucked in that road improvement program was all the money city engineer James Garnett needed to fulfill the program started 53 years ago.

That's why the men and the machines are in the Dardanelles today. They're wiping out a half-century headache.

540 MILES FROM BARKERVILLE

Stagecoach Run to End in City

Victoria will be the end of the line for three major centennial journeys.

A 540-mile stage coach run from Barkerville in the Cariboo to Victoria was announced today as a centennial project of the Canadian Confederation Centennial Committee of B.C.

Already planned is a daring canoe race from the headwaters of the Fraser River to Victoria's Inner Harbor and a nostalgic vintage car run from New Westminster, through the interior, back to Vancouver Island and Victoria.

The stage coach and six horses will leave Barkerville at 10 a.m. July 4 for the two-month expedition.

They will be driven the entire distance from Barkerville to Vancouver, ferried across to Nanaimo and then to Victoria.

The coach and horses are due to arrive at Nanaimo Aug. 27. They will leave Nanaimo Aug. 29, arriving at Ladysmith at 2 p.m.

From Ladysmith they will travel over the Trans-Canada Highway to Duncan Aug. 30. The following day they will leave Duncan for Shawnigan Lake, leaving again the following day, Sept. 1, for the Malahat.

They are scheduled to arrive at Langford Sept. 2 and from there on to Victoria arriving at 2 p.m. Sept. 3. Two days later they will stop at Sidney.

PADDLERS NAMED

Meantime expert paddlers from Prince George and Kamloops have been selected to man the B.C. centennial canoe, Simon Fraser.

The team was chosen after time trials over a 50-mile course on the North Thompson River near Kamloops last weekend.

AUG. 6 START

The run from Fort St. James to Victoria will begin Aug. 6.

The teams competing are from seven provinces, the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Plans to welcome the vintage car buffs have been made at 21 communities in the interior and on Vancouver Island.

The cars are scheduled to arrive at Duncan July 9 for lunch and then to drive to Victoria completing the run about 5:30 p.m.

GAGLARDI WANTS HOT JET FOR COLD WAR STAND BY

Flying Phil has a new reason for buying a twin-jet job he has his eye on.

Would you believe it's a Cold War necessity?

Earlier, Highways Minister Gaglardi said it was needed because at his age a pressurized aircraft is a health requirement but Monday he added it would speed cabinet ministers to an atomic war hideout.

The highways department now is testing the Lear jet, which has been offered for $480,000 instead of the usual retail price of about $700,000.

Mr. Gaglardi said he expects a decision on the aircraft will be made in about a month.

As part of the Civil Defence plan, Mr. Gaglardi's department is responsible for taking two cabinet ministers—he wouldn't say which ones—to a secret location in the Interior.

He said a new hangar already has been built at the secret location to house the aircraft.

"The forces of government are to be divided in case of conflagration—but I can't give details."

Layoff Hits 53 At Plywood Mill

Veneer Curtailed By Youbou Strike

Fifty-three workers were laid off today at the B.C. Forest Products plywood mill here because of a shortage of veneer caused by a strike at Youbou.

They are day and night shift workers with little seniority or those hired as summer replacements.

The cutback came on the graveyard shift, displacing 53 persons on to other shifts and "bumping" those with little or no seniority.

Members of the International Woodworkers of America are continuing to work in Greater Victoria, but those in the Duncan district local are on strike.

The Youbou mill, near Lake Cowichan, produces some of the veneer used in the production of plywood at the Gorge Road mill.

They layoff does not cover the entire graveyards shift, which numbers between 80 and 90. Not affected here is the production of local veneer.

"The jobs no longer required on graveyard were 53," said a mill spokesman.

"They were transferred to other shifts. All of the 53 are working in other departments but this has put other employees out."

Veneer is the fraction-of-an-inch result of peeling logs. Layers of veneer are put together to form plywood.

BACK TO WORK

At the Victoria Plywood mill on Hallowell Road, the 225 strikers returned to work on the night shift Monday after settling two internal differences with the company which sparked a walkout last Thursday night.

About 10,000 of the 26,000 coastal woodworkers continued their strike against the wishes of the regional negotiating committee which wanted them to wait until a mediator's recommendations are ready later this week.

On Vancouver Island, about 4,300 workers in the Duncan-Nanaimo-Lake Cowichan-Port Renfrew area remained on strike against 30 operations.

'SHOCKER' DRAWS 6 MONTHS

A Victoria man was jailed for six months today when convicted for the fifth time of driving while his licence was under suspension.

Keith Ford, 1661 Fell St., was also sentenced to an additional 14 days in jail when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

He was arrested at the Oak Bay Marina Monday night after police chased a speeding car on Beach Drive.

The court heard that Ford sped past a stop sign and mounted a curb at the marina parking lot, nearly hitting several pedestrians.

'SHOCKING RECORD'

"It's quite impossible for you to say anything in view of that shocking record," Magistrate Ostler told the accused.

The previous four convictions for driving while under suspension occurred over the past 3½ years and Ford served jail terms on three occasions and was fined $500 on the fourth. He had also been convicted of failing to remain at the scene of an accident in 1962 and was fined $200.

In addition to being sentenced to the consecutive jail terms today, he was also barred from driving anywhere in the country for the next three years.

SHE STAYS!

Happy End Written To Masako's Story

Masako Endo, who was grilled by officials, held and then ordered to be deported after her arrival in Vancouver Friday, is going to be allowed to stay in Canada after all.

"We are not a heartless bunch of red-tape-crazy bureaucrats," said regional director R. L. Hawkins in announcing the decision.

He denied the decision to let her stay was "a change of position."

Mr. Hawkins said officials had some doubt whether Masako was coming as a visitor or to be a domestic help for the Victoria family that invited her to Canada.

"Once we were satisfied she will be a visitor only we decided to recommend she be allowed to remain here."

APPEAL BOARD

The recommendation will go to an immigration appeal board in Ottawa that will consider the case.

A special inquiry officer had ordered Masako to be deported after she arrived in Vancouver Friday.

She was on her way to Victoria to spend four months with the J. H. Collins family at 1071 Gosper Crescent. She wanted to come here to learn about Canada and its people. Mr. Collins contacted her after reading her appeal in the Victoria Daily Times for a Canadian sponsor.

The reason given for the deportation order was that she did not have the visitor's visa required by Japanese who want to stay more than three months in Canada.

$500 BOND

Masako was released in custody of the Collins after she posted a $500 bond pending appeal of the deportation order.

The appeal board still has to consider her case but it is a foregone conclusion, now that authorities have recommended the visa requirement be waived, that she will be allowed to stay.

Mr. Collins said this morning he is delighted with the turnabout of events but he was highly critical of immigration authorities.

"Why did they have to put Masako through that ordeal? Why could it not have been settled there and then at Vancouver before this whole hassle got started?" he asked.

He said Masako is "delighted and relieved" at the news. He added, "The ordeal is over."

Ferry Crew Leaders In Session

Leaders of a newly-formed union of deck and catering workers on B.C. Ferries were to met this afternoon.

The meeting was prompted by the employees' rejection of a report recommending various improvements in working conditions.

The workers said they want full collective bargaining, which would mean the right to negotiate with the ferry authority on all matters in the same way as in private industry.

There has been no comment from the government on the request for full collective bargaining, although similar requests from other civil servants in the past have not been approved.

A spokesman for the B.C. Ferry Authority Employees Association hoped talks will be possible with a special cabinet sub-committee on ferry problems.

ZONE ASKED

New Clinic Proposed At Solarium

A treatment clinic for cerebral palsy and allied diseases is planned for a three-acre site on property owned by the Queen Alexandra Solarium in Saanich.

The site is at the northwest corner of Arbutus and Haro and would be the new home for the Handicapped Children's Clinic, formerly the Cerebral Palsy Clinic, now located at the Lansdowne campus of the University of Victoria.

The clinic has applied to Saanich for a change of zoning to allow it to go ahead.

The administrator of the Solarium, J. S. Holdstock, said the Handicapped Children's Clinic was looking for a new home and the Hospitals Planning Council felt the best location was on grounds owned by the solarium.

OUT-PATIENT CARE

A single-storey building for out-patient care is planned, he said.

While there was no direct connection between the clinic and Solarium, except it would be on the Solarium's property, it is planned eventually to locate all facilities for the care and treatment of children in one place, he said.

Ask The Times

Q. Was VE the same as VJ Day? M.P.L.

A. No. VE day, Victory in Europe Day, was May 8, 1945 while VJ day, Victory in Japan Day was, for Britain, Aug. 15, 1945 and for the United States, Sept. 2, 1945. Reference for these dates is the Oxford English Dictionary.

Q. Who wrote the line "Come back to Indiana—not too late" and what is the rest of the stanza? G.R.A.

A. That line is the first of the last quatrain of a section of Hart Crane's "The Bridge." The whole stanza is:

"Come back to Indiana—not too late!
(Or will you be a ranger to the end?)
Good-bye . . . Good-bye . . . oh, I shall always wait
You, Larry, traveller—stranger, son—my friend"

De Gaulle In Kremlin

MOSCOW (Reuters) — President Charles de Gaulle discussed European security and the German problem for three hours today at the start of talks in the Kremlin.

Leonid Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, swept diplomatic protocol aside to talk to the general face-to-face. Normally, as party leader, he does not take part in detailed negotiations with Western visitors.

A French spokesman said the first negotiating session since de Gaulle arrived Monday for an 11-day visit began with an opening statement by Brezhnev, followed by a statement from the French leader.

As they broke up, both de Gaulle and Brezhnev stressed the considerable importance of close consultation between France and Russia, the spokesman said.

The spokesman said de Gaulle told the Russians that his journey to Moscow, his first for 22 years, was in itself a tangible manifestation of France's desire for East - West consultations.

SET EXAMPLE

De Gaulle was quoted as saying that negotiations between countries of West and East were a good thing and that the example should be followed by other European nations, namely that West Germany should have such talks with the Soviet Union.

Russia's leaders were reported to have stressed the desirability of contacts between European nations and France.

Few details of the discussions were released, but the French delegation said the entire morning was taken up by European security and the German problem.

Normally talks with Western visitors are conducted by Premier Alexei Kosygin or President Nikolai Podgorny. Today both took back seats to Brezhnev.

The party leader took complete charge as soon as he strode in at the head of the Soviet delegation to greet the

Shotgun Blast Wounds Australian Labor Chief

CALWELL

Follows Anti-War Meeting

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Opposition Leader Arthur Calwell had his chin cut by glass splinters tonight after a youth fired a shotgun at him through a closed car window.

The Labor party chief, who had just finished speaking at an anti-Viet Nam meeting at a suburban town hall, was reported in satisfactory condition in the hospital after the incident.

A doctor said the 69-year-old Calwell had not been hit by any of the shotgun pellets.

The Labor leader told a reporter as he was placed in the ambulance going to the hospital:

"I'm all right . . . I'm all right. I must get word to my wife that I'm all right."

Calwell was taken on a stretcher into the hospital's casualty reception area for immediate attention.

His chin was heavily bandaged, he looked pale and his eyes were closed.

Peter Westaway, a television station official who arrived on the scene seconds after the incident, said:

"Mr. Calwell, holding a blood-stained handkerchief to his face, called out 'I've been shot, I've been shot'."

Westaway said Labor party supporters who attended the meeting chased and caught a young man.

The windshield of Calwell's car was shattered, Westaway said.

"Most of the crowd had dispersed from the meeting when the incident occurred," Westaway said.

Police who were at the meeting had also left.

"I was in the foyer of the hall when I heard an explosion.

"I raced outside and saw Calwell standing on the footpath."

Police were questioning a man about the shooting.

Calwell has been leader of Australia's federal Labor party since 1960, after being deputy leader for nine years.

As a member of the Labor government after the Second World War, he served in the posts of minister for information and for immigration.

His leadership of the party has been under attack and only recently, he had to fight hard to retain the position against a strong bid led by the party's deputy leader, Gough Whitlam.

NEW VIET WAR PEACE DRIVE

MANSFIELD BACKS U THANT

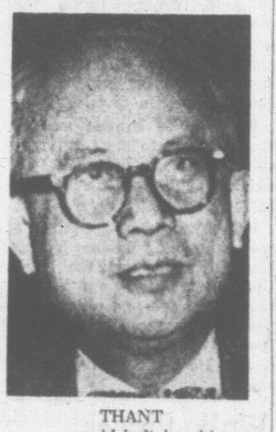
MANSFIELD
. . . 3-point plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called on UN Secretary-General U Thant today to take the lead in a new effort to arrange Viet Nam peace talks.

Mansfield said he believes a three-point plan renewed by U Thant at a United Nations press conference Monday would get "every consideration from President Johnson" if there was some sign the Communists might accept it.

Thant proposed a cessation of U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam, scaling down of military operations by both sides and a willingness on the part of all concerned to enter discussions with all participants in the fighting. However, Senator Gale W. McGee (Dem., Wyo.), a strong supporter of Johnson's Viet Nam course, said in a separate interview he thinks Thant's proposal has "a hollow ring to it."

"We've tried stopping the bombing before and it didn't invite any response," McGee said. "On the contrary, the enemy used the lull to intnestify their efforts."



THANT

KY MOVES IN

Fasting Buddhist Seized

SAIGON (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's South Vietnamese soldiers seized the extremist Buddhist leader Thich Tri Quang in his hospital room in Hue today. The slight, robed monk walked out of the building on the 14th day of his hunger strike.

With the four-month Buddhist uprising crumbling under the military junta's firmness, Tri Quang's chief rival, the moderate Thich Tam Chau, appealed to Ky to "assure the life and liberty of the Venerable Tri Quang and all other monks who led the struggle" against the regime.

A police officer in Hue said that Tri Quang, 42, had been put in protective custody to shield him from the Viet Cong.

The government's action against the chief of the Buddhist struggle movement showed its confidence that it had all but smashed the militant Buddhist minority's campaign for an immediate restoration of civilian rule.

In Saigon, troops and police kept several hundred monks and their followers bottled up inside the Buddhist Institute for the fourth day despite their plea to the International Red Cross that they faced epidemic and starvation.

SEES VICTORY

After four days of talks with Ky and other government leaders, Lord Walston, Britain's under secretary for foreign affairs, told newspapermen he foresaw a military victory for the allies within 12 months.

Lord Walston's prediction echoed one made by Ky on the first anniversary of his rule Sunday, but Walston added: "I cannot see a real building up of a peaceful democracy here for a very long time indeed."

He said the shooting and bombing "will slowly fade away" and the number of terrorist incidents gradualy decline. He said North Viet Nam had become convinced it could not win a military victory but he saw no imediate prospect that Hanoi would sue for peace.

On a strip of beach along the Mekong Delta south of Saigon, U.S. seamen unloaded 250 tons of Chinese-made arms and ammunition from a gun - running trawler intercepted Monday as Viet Cong sampans were about to pick up the cargo. U.S. military authorities said it was probably the biggest arms prize of the war.

The trawler, which bore no markings, was believed to have come from the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong. The crew fled with the guerrillas after a battle with U.S. Coast Guard cutters, planes and helicoters.

LED REBELLION

Tri Quang had led the Buddhist rebellion in the northern provinces and was a leader in agitation against previous governments, including the regime of the late president Ngo Dinh Diem. Some American officials think his ultimate objective is establishment of a Buddhist state that could make a deal with the Communists and expel the Americans.

He began the hunger strike June 8, when the rebellion began faltering, vowing to take only liquids until the United States withdrew its support of

Wilson Charges Reds Prolonging Ship Strike

By JIM ANDERSON

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson rocked Parliament and the striking seamen's union Monday with the charge that Britain's shipping strike is being prolonged by Communists who want to damage the nation.

He didn't use the word "Communist" but there could be no mistake about the meaning of the carefully-chosen words in his statement to Parliament on the shipping strike, now in its fifth week.

He said a tightly-knit group of "politically-motivated men" had put pressure on "a select few" of the 48-member national executive of the seamen's union, who "in turn have been able to dominate the majority of that otherwise sturdy union."

Sources said later that the government did not believe any of the executive were Communists, but that a Communist group was meeting regularly and dictating strike policy to the executive with the threat that any show of weakness would mean defeat in union elections.

PLANS AIRLIFT

Wilson told Parliament: "This group holds views which failed to secure any representation in this House at the last election, but their backstage views have had effect."

He also said plans were being made for a Royal Air Force airlift to deliver important exports and carry backed-up mail to Northern Ireland. The Royal Navy would be used to get supplies to outlying islands.

. . . in critical mood

The prime minister, who has been rebuffed by the seamen in his personal attempts to win a settlement, called William Hogarth, general secretary of the union, to a meeting at 10 Downing St.

Hogarth is believed to be a moderate, and Wilson is said to have urged him to take a stronger lead in the union executive.

Hogarth's only comment on the meeting and Wilson's statement was that it indicated a toughening attitude by the Labor government.

Militants among the seamen quickly rejected the charges and said it was the prime minister who was turning a strike over economic issues into a political struggle.

RED REPLIES

John Gollan, general secretary of the British Communist party, accused Wilson of "McCarthyite smears and innuendos" against leaders of the seamen's union.

In a statement after Wilson made his Commons speech, Gollan said the 36,000 - member Communist party opposes the government's wage - restraint policy as "a barefaced fraud" and blames Britain's economic difficulties on "crippling military expenditures at home and abroad."

The rest of Britain's trade union movement has largely sided with the government in calling on the seamen for a settlement. But chances of a serious split in the sailors' ranks seemed slight after votes Monday at six major ports supported the executive.

A secret ballot among the seamen has been suggested, but Wilson said it would be difficult. More than half the union's 63,000 members are still at sea in ships that won't be laid up until they reach British ports.

UN Chief Will Visit Moscow

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—UN Secretary-General U Thant plans to visit Moscow later this summer, diplomatic sources reported today. The Viet Nam conflict, which he described Monday as "one of the most barbarous in history," is expected to be a major topic in his talks with Soviet leaders.

Informed quarters said Thant received an invitation some time ago to visit Moscow and he has recently accepted it. The time of the visit is understood to be under discussion.

Thant was asked at a UN correspondents' luncheon Monday whether he believed a visit by him to Moscow would be useful. He replied that "a visit by the secretary - general to any capital of any member state at any time is sure to be useful."

He mentioned no plans to go to Moscow, but word began to circulate later that such a visit is being arranged.

BITTER BATTLE RAGES FOR JUNGLE HIDEOUT

SAIGON (AP)—American paratroops smashed today into a jungle hideout in South Viet Nam where 500 Viet Cong guerrillas threw up a bitter defence from log bunkers and criss-cross tunnels.

At last report a pitched battle had been raging for 36 hours and 69 guerrillas were known killed.

Some 2,000 or more men of the 101st Airborne Division and the helicopter-borne 1st Cavalry Division were battling the Viet Cong in the jungle highlands of Phu Yen province, about 15 miles north of the American coastal enclave at Tuy Hoa.

It was the second major action for the 101st Airborne in two weeks. From June 7 to June 14 the paratroops battled North Viet Nam's 24th Regiment on the Kontum plateau, 120 miles northwest of Tuy Hoa, and estimated they killed more than 1,000 of the 1,400 to 2,000 troops opposing them.

Nun's Body Preserved by Legendary 'Miracle'?

By ROY FERGUSON

MADRID (Reuters) — The body of a Roman Catholic nun who died 342 years ago is being medically examined here because of a legend that says it has remained undecayed through the centuries by a miracle.

The body, about four feet, six inches tall, has been on public display in a chapel since Friday—the face covered by a thin veil and only the shrivelled, dark brown hands and feet showing from beneath a white shroud

Thousands of persons have filed into the chapel to view the body of the Blessed Mariana of Jesus, who was mother superior of the convent of Don Juan de Alarcon in central Madrid.

An official medical report, expected to be made public sometime this week, was being prepared to find out whether a miracle has occurred.

According to local legend, the nun's body gave off a sweet fragrance when she died and she was said to have had visions of the Virgin Mary during her later years in the convent.

Centuries ago, Spanish church officials asked the Vatican to have her named a saint but there was no decision.

Now a new petition is to be made to the Vatican if the medical report indicates that a miracle has taken place, church officials said.

The body was removed from its sealed coffin above a side altar at the convent Friday

It had been removed from the coffin once before—in 1924. Two nuns who were present then attended the removal last week.

They told doctors the body was in the same state as when they saw it at its first removal.

A spokesman for the convent said the body's eyes were intact but the face was badly distorted.

When the report has been completed, the body will be transferred to Madrid Cathedral for veneration and by the end of this week will be sealed back in the coffin.

Whether it has decomposed will be weighed in the church's official acceptance of the existence of a miracle, a determining factor in cases of canonization.

'Much More, Now!' New Cry From Unions

By GERALD WARING

Waring

OTTAWA — The government won some battles last week to keep water traffic moving and Air Canada flying, but it lost a major campaign in its war against inflation.

After the 85 cents an hour increase to seaway workers, approaching tacit recognition of these workers' right to wage parity with U.S. seaway workers, and after a generous settlement with the dockers that the government forced on the shipping federation, it is not realistic to expect other unions to exercise any restraint or forbearance in their wage demands.

The cry of the unions has been "More, now!" The new cry will be "Much more, now!"

And the loudest cry, and one which the government will find impossible to deny, will come from the CBRT, which is moving inexorably towards a strike against the CNR to back up its demand of a 90 cents an hour wage increase from both major railways. This is the same union that the government allowed to raid the federal treasury last week to keep the seaway open and the export wheat shipments moving.

Prime Minister Pearson's explanation of why the government agreed to the very large increase needed to get the seaway workers to call off their strike is that it "is in the national interest."

But is it?

Unquestionably it is in the national interest to prevent the seaway from being closed with consequences of huge economic disruption, including a serious shortfall in our contracted wheat deliveries to Russia and other overseas customers.

It would be naive to fail to realize CBRT timed its crunch for the season when a strike would do the maximum damage to the economy, and therefore the government would be forced to prevent a strike. In my book, this comes pretty close to blackmail.

And if trade unionist readers snort at this, I would suggest that they consider that the CBRT was not dealing with some sweatshop operator trying to screw the last ounce of work out of employees who were paid niggardly wages. It was dealing with a public agency, a creature of their country's government, a government that assiduously tries to pay wages equal to those prevailing in comparable private industry, on top of fringe benefits, including security of employment, that are unmatched in the private sector.

Is it then in the national interest to capitulate to demands that make a mockery of the government's appeal to the Canadian Labor Congress to act with responsibility, restraint and moderation because of the danger of inflation?

The government did not have to capitulate. It could have brought forward legislation to forbid a strike, and to require the workers to stay on their jobs pending compulsory arbitration of the issue.

However, this action would have been unpopular with organized labor.

So the government retreated from compulsory arbitration and from any pretense at a hold-the-line policy in these inflationary times. It is politically afraid to cross the unions. It chooses instead to sow the wind.

CHINA DIARY

The Inevitable Imbalance

By FRANCOIS SULLY

(Diary of an extensive trip through China recently by a Newsweek magazine correspondent.)

HANGCHOW TO CANTON — I spent three days on Chinese trains travelling through Chekiang, Kiangsi, Hunan and Kwangtung provinces. It was a fascinating lesson in geography — and much else.

Some peasants in remote areas of Chekiang still live in squat, windowless huts with thatched roofs where one family shares a single room. A Chinese passenger tells me that his government "is aware of the imbalance between cities and countryside, tries to reduce it but is meeting many difficulties."

In 1927, Kiangsi was the cradle of Chinese Communism. The revolution has not brought many changes. It is still a land of small villages of brown bricks; many children in the fields doing light work; red clay hills covered by plantations of tangerine trees.

Kiangsi peasants wear raincoats made of grass against the chilly drizzle. Two men push a crude wheelbarrow with handcarved wooden wheels. Some carts carry a small wind sail. Three men harnessed like oxen pull a harrow through the grey ooze of their paddy field.

Grass Raincoats

Hunan is the native province of Mao, and it is poor. Peasants do not take pride in their dark, dilapidated homes. Old revolutionary slogans painted on the ochre walls are slowly erased by the rain. In South Hunan, however, Hengyang is a large industrial city echoing with the wailing of locomotives hauling trainloads of coal dust to humming factories.

Kwangtung province shows less signs of poverty. Peasants are better dressed, ride bicycles to their field. Flotillas of brown ducks cruise fish ponds fertilized by overhanging communal latrines.

Thirty miles south of Canton is the 14,000-acre commune of Sinh Tan. With 13,500 households, it is one of the largest of China's 80,000 communes. The commune leaders told me that the community today owns 3,400 bicycles against 33 before 1958 and 1,000 radio sets against 22.

Said the commune chief: "We eat well, but we still wear our old clothes and the houses obviously need some improvement. Farm mechanization remains at a low level although 90 per cent of the fields are now irrigated."

$400,000 Gross

Last year, the commune grossed the equivalent of $400,000. Sixty per cent of that was distributed among commune members and three per cent went to a welfare fund providing needy commune members with some social benefits. The commune owns two trucks and two tractors.

Added commune leader Lieu Wo Yeh while rolling a cigarette between his calloused fingers: "Like other communes in China, we are on our own. We have to generate our own capital. We cannot go every time to the state for support. The state needs the money elsewhere."

In a remote corner of the commune I discovered a kibbutz where some 100 young boys and girls live in barracks like dormitories. Strong and healthy, they are among the several million city youngsters sent by the regime to the countryside after completion of "middle school." Their task is to transform some steep hills of Kwangtung into plantations of pineapples.

More Food

The regime is doing its utmost to wrest more food from the land. At the same time, it is trying equally hard to curb the high birth rate, which outstrips all production gains. Although these boys and girls live together, chastity is strongly recommended. Nevertheless, a pharmacy that I visited offered a wide variety of crude contraceptive devices and illustrated pamphlets on how to use them.

Little Food, Eating In the Latest Novels

By STANLEY REYNOLDS
Manchester Guardian Weekly

Everybody does it. Turns his back on selling used cars and bangs out "The Pot Boilers," a fraught memory of a grimy adolescence in a Glasgow suburb and the rewards! £10,000 advanced to Capote for "In Cold Blood"; £52,000 for Harold Robbins' "Carpet Baggers"; £50,000 to Le Carre; £53,000 for "Tropic of Cancer"; and £25,000 for Frank Harris' "My Life and Love."

And in America, according to the Daily Mail the other day, publishers are going mad. They give thousands to authors who haven't yet finished their books, tens of thousands to authors who haven't started, and hundreds of thousands to authors who aren't authors.

One result of this I've noticed is that you don't get so much food and eating in first novels any more.

At one time first novels were always filled with people eating themselves silly because novelists in those days never got much of the real stuff for themselves.

In fact, I've got a pretty good book in me about that winter I almost starved to death but every time I start working the sentences up I remember it and get so hungry that I gorge myself full of lip-smacking good nostalgic jam butties and go to sleep.

I moved to London that year because somebody told me once that if you published a novel it's good for a year of dining out. I used to telephone these literary loving London hostesses and say; "Say, baby, I'm writing a book. Do you think I could have a ham sandwich on account?" But they never would.

Like Three Rs

People used to say that when we started giving young writers a lot of money they could stop writing about food things like soul and inspira- and write about high-toned affairs like war and peace.

Of course, it hasn't worked out like that. Now the young writers all write about ulcers and servant problems and about rich young men who are having trouble with their mistresses and all those problems that a decaying aristocracy have. And this is because young writers have become as rich as decaying aristocrats.

Of course, the public likes its three Rs — riches, ruffians, and rape. But the public don't read the books. They buy them all right or else how would you get the advances? But they don't read them.

"Have you read 'The Solid Mandala?'" Someone will ask someone at a dinner party.

"No," they will say, "but I bought it five times."

Subsidize Them

And what else can they do? They are too busy earning enough money to buy all those books — you can't expect them to read them.

But where will it all end? Some day the bottom will have to fall out of the book market. There won't be enough room for all the books.

Then the government will have to step in. They'll have to subsidize the publishers.

But not in the ordinary way. They'll subsidize them like the American government subsidizes alfalfa growers. They'll pay them for not publishing books, and the more books they don't publish the more they'll pay them.

And authors will get paid for not writing books.

Publishers will issue lists saying: "This spring we are not publishing 'The Pot Boilers' which was not written by Sean Shenanigans."

Diplomats: In or Out Of Rhythm?

WASHINGTON—The mounting speed of jet travel is putting such a strain on diplomats that sometimes an envoy can hardly tell what day it is.

This difficulty is discussed in the new issue of the U.S. state departmen'ts monthly magazine, News Letter, by Assistant Medical Director Donald K. McIntyre, who wants to keep Secretary Dean Rusk and his globe-flying aides in top shape.

"Serious errors of judgment," wrote Dr. McIntyre, "are conceivable if a diplomat reaches decisions when plagued by fatigue compounded by physiological upsets."

The state department doctor spoke of the upset to the circadian rhythm—the body's daily physiological timetable—on a jet flight such as the 26½-hour run from New York to Thailand. Noon in New York is midnight in Bangkok and vice versa.

On arriving at the Thai capital at noon "your circadian rhythms believe it is midnight because of the 12-hour difference," he said. "You might even be thinking clearly and yet be thinking in the wrong day."

And thinking clearly would be difficult too, he indicated. He said Federal Aviation Agency investigations showed long-distance jet travellers suffered "diminished mental acuity for about 24 hours" afterward and needed a four-day rest to get back to normal.

Ho Chi Minh Trail a Puzzler

ROUTE CHANGES, DIRECTION SAME

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

SAIGON—Communist soldiers from the north infiltrate into South Viet Nam at a rate of 5,500 or more every month on a a route called the Ho Chi Minh Trail, named for the aging (76) president of North Viet Nam.

It is not a trail. Rather it is many trails, roads and jungle paths, running from North Viet Nam first westward into Laos, then south through Laos into Cambodia and then eastward into South Viet Nam at a half dozen places.

Its most-used starting point is the Mu Gia Pass in North Viet Nam. Its southern "terminal" consists of a series of fingers from Cambodia into Viet Nam. The Ho Trail changes its route, but not its general direction, with the seasons. During the dry period, it follows low ground. In the current monsoon rains from May to August, it goes to the high ground.

Recent intelligence reports indicate that 200 miles of the trail have been newly surfaced with crushed stone and the road concealed from air strikes by overhead foliage.

In a drive to choke off Hanoi's southward flow of men and supplies, American air power has repeatedly pummelled the Ho Trail. Guam-based B-52 bombers have hammered the Mu Gia Pass starting point. Navy and Air Force fighter-bombers have hit at the approaches to the pass and have plastered the southern outlets in Southern Viet Nam's "War Zone C" on the Cambodian border. American planes from other bases, including Thailand, have hit at various segments of the Ho Trail.

Possibly because of this heavy interdiction, the Communists have taken to using a supplementary trail running across northern Cambodia from west to east into South Viet Nam, named the Sihanouk Trail ofter Cambodia's Prince Norodom Sihanouk. Like the Ho Trail it is a network of truck roads, and jungle paths.

PROBATION SERVICES FOR ALL

An Ontario magistrate says the day is coming when probation services will be available to every court and a pre-sentence report on first offenders will be mandatory.

Magistrate E. W. Kenrick, president of the Canadian Corrections Association, says where such courts are not now available justice is dragging its feet.

He was addressing the closing sessions of a meeting of the B.C. branch of the association in Burnaby.

He said probation services are what opens the door of the court to clinical, hospital, welfare or social treatment instead of jail or prison.

It was becoming widely recognized that the clinical approach to the offender is best. The court was fortunate that it could refer offenders to such places as alcohol clinics, mental hospitals or narcotic adiction centres.

"It is the case history or pre-sentence report which permits the court to assess an individual need and — in effect — to diagnose on an objective basis and through sentence prescribe adquate treatment."

Famous Last Words

Benjamin Thorpe
(1782-1870)

"Fuller's Earth," the self-written epitaph of Thomas Fuller (1608-1661) is certainly one of the shortest on record, although Thorpe, a distinguished British philologist, almost matched it in brevity with the epitaph he requested to be carved on his tomb: "Thorpe's Corpse."

Can Universities Be 'Court of Last Resort'?

By BENJAMIN R. BARBER

In a recent issue of The New Republic, a liberal American weekly magazine, distinguished commentator Walter Lippmann wrote of the need in contemporary life for a "universal company of scholars" to be provided by the universities to fill the "spiritual and intellectual vacuum" of modern times in which man has been "deprived of traditional and customary authority."

A Harvard University graduate student, Benjamin R. Barber, has filed a dissent to Mr. Lippmann's thesis which provides an interesting comment on the state of the university today. Mr. Barber's comments are in the letters column of the magazine.

. . . I must confess to Mr. Lippmann that after ten years of spiritually debilitating preparation for entry into the "community of scholars" which is to become the nation's saviour, I have gained a rather different picture.

It has been my impression that scholars spend most of their time pursuing not "truth," but contracts and grants, not "wisdom," but publication and professional renown.

How Many Read?

The universities are indeed "depositories" but of orthodoxy and cant, not wisdom . . . How many books are turned out by the university presses that are read by Lippmann's common man in need of spiritual guidance? Why not even the professionals try to read most of the barely grammatical prose churned out by the learned journals.

I wonder if Mr. Lippmann had in mind the training of police cadres in Viet Nam under CIA contract when he spoke if the university's role in educating the "rulers of the state." And does the "royal science" refer to the determination of class standings which are then provided, free of charge, to a government bent on shipping out the less fit (as determined by grades) to kill or be killed in an undeclared war?

Independence?

. . . Can the universities, ever more dependent upon federal contracts, federal grants, federal contacts, and state patronage, play anything like an independent role?

Can the new generation of scholars (any generation), having spent the best years of their youth being dessicated, compartmentalized and rendered safely sterile and irrelevant by the ennervating and petty tasks of graduate life in order to meet what Lippmann thinks are the sacrosanct standards of the academic priesthood, be expected to provide religious inspiration and disciplined guidance to a world "lost and adrift"?

But let us assume that the universities are, or can become, the centres of scholarship and wisdom that Lippmann presumes them to be. Ought we then to make them the "court of last resort" in all matters of "truth and error"?

None Would Agree

Are they to become the sole "possessors and guardians of true knowledge"? No thinking man — least of all a true scholar — would assent to such a role for the institution in which he worked.

The truth is not, as Mr. Lippmann seems to think it is, an elusive but real substance invisible to most of us, but perceivable to an initiated elect established in self-perpetuating ivory towers. Nor does knowledge of facts, processes, or physical laws (which, it can be conceded, the universities have in abundance) provide a basis for making ethical or religious decisions.

The judgment that American policy in Viet Nam (for example) is good or bad has an entirely different basis than the one that two and two make four, and authority in the latter is no guarantee of authority in the former.

The total capitulation of German academicians to the Nazi regime should prove this even to those unwilling to take the word of Hume or Kent or G. E. Moore.

If, as Lippmann tells us, "modern man in his search for truth . . . is left, for better or for worse, with the professors," then let us make no mistake: it is for worse.

Bureaucrats and commissars, priests and even kings would make kinder masters than the present denizens of America's tradition-bound universities.

I myself would be content with transforming them back into relatively independent cases of thoughtfulness and reflection where students can once again learn and scholars can think and teach.

McNamara Knows Does Often Tell

WASHINGTON — In Lyndon Johnson's Washington, Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara wields awesome power. And if you would like a candid evaluation of the extent of that power, the way to get it is to visit the treasury department, the budget bureau, the commerce department, or the council of economic advisers.

There, in the agenices responsible for the direction of the U.S. economy, you will hear the wistful statement:

"Of course, everything depends on Viet Nam spending, but we can't get a damn word out of McNamara."

Among the top-most officials in these agencies, there is little resentment over the Iron Curtain McNamara has clamped over Pentagon plans and estimates. There is instead a sort of grudging admiration for the unique and dominant role that the president allows him to play.

Okay With LBJ

The president appears to have almost a reverential attitude toward his defence secretary's decision-making ability, and if McNamara wants to keep defence budget data secret, even from other cabinet officers, that is okay with Mr. Johnson.

Down the line in the departments, lesser officials are more snappish than their bosses.

"I wonder," one waspish critic mumbled, "Does McNamara give the numbers to the president?"

A few weeks ago at the American bankers' meeting in Madrid, federal reserve chairman William McChesney Martin said pointedly that the whole future course of the economy is hitched to Viet Nam.

But, Martin added, neither he nor the treasury secretary nor other officials knew "where we go from here."

Will appropriations for the new fiscal year need to be raised? By how much? Will a tax increase be needed in 1967?

Only McNamara knows the answers at this point. Yet, the president's team of economic advisers can hardly make intelligent plans, even on a contingency basis, unless they know the course of the military budget for next year.

Top government officials fall back in their speeches on the suggestion that there are a lot of "uncertainties" in the picture. On Capitol Hill, Democrats and Republicans alike are more blunt on what they consider an "information gap" at the Pentagon.

Plans Withheld

Many cynical politicians are sure that the Pentagon's spending plans are well developed, but are being withheld so that any unpleasant consequences can be postponed until after the congressional elections.

In the congressional cloakrooms, the common gossip is that McNamara will be ready with a supplemental request for some 5 to 6 billion dollars once the election is out of the way.

These same sources in the fall of 1965 predicted that the Viet Nam war would cost upwards of 10 billion dollars a year — a figure that was ridiculed by the Johnson administration — but turned out to be "on the button." Treasury secretary Fowler, as a matter of fact, said in a Chicago speech that if he knew of such a program, he would be back in his office working out a tax increase to pay for it.

Today, governmental and business decisions must be keyed closely to the Viet Nam program. Will it stay much the same? Will it go up, or down? What will be the impact on tax and money policy

The Johnson administration isn't noted for its full disclosure policies. Unhappily, the tight-lipped attitude prevails even within.

If you think you don't need disability insurance, you haven't seen the statistics.

Of 1000 persons aged 35, 33% will be disabled by illness or injury—for three months or more—before they reach age 65. That's what the statistics show.

What kind of a statistic will you be?

It makes sense to look into a Manufacturers Life Personal Income Protector Plan. Nothing can give you such peace of mind as the sure knowledge that if you are disabled and cannot work, a guaranteed income will come your way.

Our Plan has many advantages. It offers you a wide flexibility in amount of income and the length of time it will be paid. For example; you may be able to arrange for income benefits right through to age 65 for total disability due to sickness or for life when an accident is the cause. Accidental death and dismemberment benefits to age 65 are also offered. You can co-ordinate the plan with your other resources; tailor it to your needs and your pocketbook. Manufacturers Life cannot cancel the policy nor can your premium rate be raised—ever. The plan can be adjusted to correct the inadequacy of any short-term coverage you already have.

If you are interested, call the Man from Manufacturers. When advising you on disability income he offers you the same competent counsel available to you when you are planning your life insurance security.

Esquimalt to War on Weeds?

Noxious or obnoxious, Esquimalt weeds are spreading.

So much so they're going to be surveyed, just to see what can be done about them.

A weed survey was ordered by council Monday night after complaints were received.

Weeds are springing up beside the railway track through the municipality, and growing so high they obscure vision at intersections, council was told.

One councillor said he nearly collided with a railway handcar because the weeds obstructed the view.

Another said weeds are spreading from vacant lots into gardens.

A tow-away by-law for Esquimalt Road is being prepared for consideration by council.

The municipality's chief traffic channel at rush hour, it will become a four-lane road with "no stopping" regulation from 4 to 5 p.m. weekdays.

A two-hour parking limit was also ordered for Lyall Street.

Joan Patrick and Richard Warren Lewis hear wedding bells.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Example of how one thing can lead to another: Writer Richard Warren Lewis accepted a magazine assignment and found himself a wife, Joan Patrick of Windsor, Ont., a former Miss Canada.

It all started last month when Lewis was delegated by TV Guide to write an article on The Dating Game, a daytime show on ABC television. The gimmick of the show is to present a single man or woman with three possibilities for dates. By interrogation — but without seeing the three prospects—the contestant picks the likeliest date.

Lewis selected Joan, an actress. Twelve days later they were engaged. They plan to marry Aug. 27.

Still stunned by the sequence of events, they explained how it all happened. Miss Patrick, 27, in recent times has appeared in television and plays. Warren, 33, a New Yorker born in Bellow's Falls, Vt., has been a successful magazine writer.

"When I was assigned the story on The Dating Game, I thought I might get a different approach by appearing on the show itself," he said.

ARRIVES FOR FILM

Meanwhile Miss Patrick had come to Hollywood from her New York home for a television film.

"I didn't want to do the show but my agent said I would be barred from the studio for life if I didn't take the role," she recalled. "So I flew out here, arriving at 4:30 a.m. At 10 that same morning, ABC called with an offer to appear on The Dating Game. It had to be fate."

Her fellow contestants for a date with Warren were a Playboy Club bunny and Italian actress Luciana Paluzzi.

"I figured the way to a man's heart was through his stomach," she said. "He asked us if we could cook, and I told him I had a special recipe for rock cornish game hen stuffed with wild rice and cooked in white wine."

"She has since cooked it for me, and it is excellent," added Warren.

They were to spend the evening together two weeks after the show, but Warren operated more swiftly. He asked for a date that night.

Twelve days later he proposed.

FOR LORD MORAN

More and More Woe Over Book

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Lord Moran says he once quarrelled with Sir Winston Churchill because the late prime minister believed incorrectly that he wanted to be minister of health.

"I allowed myself to become worked up over this absurb charge," says Moran, Churchill's physician for 25 years, whose recent book about the wartime premier has caused sharp controversy.

Moran's statement comes in a letter to The Daily Telegraph, which last week carried an article by Randolph Churchill, son of Sir Winston, saying that the doctor-peer asked to be made health minister when Sir Winston was returned to power in 1951.

The article stated Christopher Soames, son-in-law of Sir Winston and a former Conservative minister, recalled that Moran flew into a "tantrum" when Sir Winston received his bid with hilarity.

Moran says in the letter: "I had only one serious quarrel with Sir Winston during the 25 years in which I was associated with him, and my recollection of this incident is quite different from Mr. Churchill's version.

"I had been sufficiently ill-advised to criticise the manner in which ministers of health were appointed, so that, as a rule, they only remained in office for a few months.

WASN'T PLEASED

"Sir Winston did not take my criticisms in his usual good-humored way. Indeed he took sharp exception to what I said. 'You know nothing about politics. I believe you want to be minister of health.'

"I allowed myself to become worked up over this absurd charge and we parted without patching up the quarrel. My wife made peace between us."

Randolph Churchill says that Soames recalls Moran approaching Sir Winston and asked to be made health minister only to be "met with a hilarious and incredulous response."

DIDN'T WANT DOCTOR

While Moran was Sir Winston's physician for 25 years, what the prime minister needed for the health job was a politician, not a doctor, said Randolph in his article.

The Moran book, published against the wishes of Lady Churchill, has caused a continuing controversy with its detailed analysis of Sir Winston's declining health in the later years of his career.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Vancouver Mines Slump

Nine mining issues hit lows for the year in sluggish trade on the Vancouver Stock Exchange today.

Trading on Wall Street picked up today and the price picture brightened slightly. Prices edged higher at Toronto.

AT NEW YORK in a technical rally with no particular news behind it, the list moved ahead following an irregular start. Such glamor stocks as airlines, aerospace issues, color televisions, other electronics, office equipments and photographic issues took their accustomed positions of market leadership.

Sperry Rand loomed again as the most active stock, but this time it was unable to post any gain.

Taft Broadcasting, up nearly 2, also was active, helped by a big block.

Fairchild Camera was up about 7 points while gains of 3 points or so were made by Johnson and Johnson, Gulf and Western Industries, Delta Airlines, Chicago and North Western Common and its preferred. Northwest Airlines spurted about 4.

AT VANCOUVER the losses were marginal but widespread across the board.

Among mines slumping were Bornite, down .01 to .35; Copper Ridge, off .01 to .30; Endako, down .12 to $10.50; Midwest, off .01 to .45; Nadina, down .10 to $1.80; Northwest Ventures, off ½ to .12; Rodstrom, down .03 to .40; Silver Titan, down .10 to $2, and Ventures, off .08 to .52.

Northlode was an exception in the trading, gaining .14 to a high for the year of .97.

In the industrials, CPR added $4 to $65.75, presumably reflecting the new grain deal signed between Canada and Russia.

MacMillan, Bloedel was off .25 to $25.87 and Massey lost .12 to $34.37.

AT TORONTO bank issues were big winners. Bank of Montreal gained 1⅛ to 60, Royal Bank 1¼ to 74½ and Bank of Nova Scotia and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce 1 each to 70 and 64¼.

Transportation and grain issues also gained, on news of three-year, $800,000,000 wheat and flour deal with the Soviet Union. CPR climbed 1⅝ to 65½ and Canada Steamship lines ¾ to 35¼.

Maple Leaf Mills gained 1 to 16½, and Ogilvie Flour Mills ½ to 14 among grain issues.

In senior base metals, gains of ⅜ each went to Falconbridge, at 90 and Inco, at 96⅞. Rio Algom gained ¼ to 25.

AT MONTREAL banks led most sections fractionally higher in moderate trading.

Industrial volume was 105,000 and mines and oils 334,800. Among the banks Royal jumped 1⅜ to 74½ and Montreal one point to 60.

AT LONDON the stock market wavered uncertainly today with a market impression gathering force that Britain's seamen's strike is as far as ever from any settlement.

Demand was small, selective and usually related to company news.

Canada Firm To Open Chile Mine

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — John C. Doyle, a director and former president of Canadian Javelin, said Monday the company will open a copper mine in Northern Chile under a revised corporate setup affecting many Caadian holdings of the Doyle interests.

He gave no date for the opening.

In a telephone interview from Montreal with radio station CJON, Mr. Doyle said a new formula will lay out "spheres of influence" for the Jubilee Iron Corp. and the Newfoundland and Labrador Corp., both Javelin subsidiaries.

The changes mean the former firm, under the new name Jubilee Mining Corp., will handle much of the mining and mine exploration and development of Javelin. NALCO will concentrate on timber concessions. The changes also will give Bison Petroleum, another Javelin subsidiary, rights to oil exploration off Newfoundland now held by Jubilee.

GET 50 PER CENT

Jubilee Iron Corp. had acquired "50 per cent interest in approximately 80 square miles of copper concessions in the immediate vicinity of . . . a coastal port in northern Chile."

"It is planned to immediately begin construction of an operating mine on the property. The location permits profits to be exported as it is in the northern free zone of Chile.

Engineers have estimated on an initial basis that profits should equal approximately $1,000,000 a year, based on a price of only two-thirds of the current market quotations for Chilean copper."

The ore was three and one-half per cent copper, he said.

Park To Get Mine Airstrip

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial parks authorities confirmed Monday that an American-owned mining company looking for minerals in Tweedsmuir provincial park has been given permission to build an airstrip in the park.

Ashfork Mines Ltd., Canadian subsidiary of Phelps Dodge Corp. of the U.S., has staked about 270 claims near the western boundary of the park, about 320 miles northwest of here.

Some mineral claims are within the park, said authorities.

A spokesman said a permit to build and operate an airstrip in the park was granted because otherwise the company would have wanted an access road which would have caused more damage.

The mineral claims were staked by the company from 1959 to 1966. Under new legislation approval is necessary from the recreation minister for further prospecting in such Class B parks.

Tweedsmuir is a 2,400,000-acre park, largely undeveloped.

The parks branch spokesman said the company was told that if and when a mine comes into production inside the park, new road access must be provided from the coast.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices showed considerable irregularity in active trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today, with broad advances and aggressive demand in early activity.

Some buying on U.S. markets helped the upswing, but there was considerable profit-taking on American markets and early broad advances were reduced or erased. This resulted in some broad gains in Winnipeg being reduced.

A heavy volume of barley trading was noted with shipping interests preparing for domestic and international trade.

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures prices fell into a fast and broad skid today after having been sharply higher on another delayed opening of the board of trade.

Wheat and soybeans were down about 10 cents a bushel from their highs of the day in early afternoon transactions on pressure described as mainly profit cashing. Dealers said apperently there was also a heavier volume of short selling than on recent days. At their peaks, most commodities again were at season high levels.

Shot Wounds Party Chief

Aussie Felled At Viet Rally

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Opposition Leader Arthur Calwell had his chin cut by glass splinters tonight after a youth fired a shotgun at him through a closed car window.

. . . surprise attack

The Labor party chief, who had just finished speaking at an anti-Viet Nam meeting at a suburban town hall, was reported in satisfactory condition in the hospital after the incident.

A doctor said the 69-year-old Calwell had not been hit by any of the shotgun pellets.

The Labor leader told a reporter as he was placed in the ambulance going to the hospital:

"I'm all right . . . I'm all right. I must get word to my wife that I'm all right."

Calwell was taken on a stretcher into the hospital's casualty reception area for immediate attention.

His chin was heavily bandaged, he looked pale and his eyes were closed.

Peter Westaway, a television station official who arrived on the scene seconds after the incident, said:

"Mr. Calwell, holding a blood-stained handkerchief to his face, called out 'I've been shot, I've been shot'."

Westaway said Labor party supporters who attended the meeting chased and caught a young man.

The windshield of Calwell's car was shattered, Westaway said.

"Most of the crowd had dispersed from the meeting when the incident occurred," Westaway said.

Police who were at the meeting had also left.

"I was in the foyer of the hall when I heard an explosion.

"I raced outside and saw Calwell standing on the footpath."

Police were questioning a man about the shooting.

Calwell has been leader of Australia's federal Labor party since 1960, after being deputy leader for nine years.

As a member of the Labor government after the Second World War, he served in the posts of minister for information and for immigration.

His leadership of the party has been under attack and only recently, he had to fight hard to retain the position against a strong bid led by the party's deputy leader, Gough Whitlam.

Varsity Star Signed by Hawks

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Black Hawks have signed Denver University defenceman Wayne Smith to a professional contract, general manager Tommy Ivan announced today.

Smith, 23, was the leading scorer among college defencemen last year. His home is in Regina, Sask.

Resists Pressure

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia said today his government intends to keep up its struggle to maintain the independence it seized from Britain last November, despite the pressure of international trade sanctions.

Plane Found

MONTREAL (CP) — Four Montrealers and their missing light plane were found safe today by RCAF search craft near Lac de Dix Miles, 216 miles northwest of Montreal.

They were spotted on a gravel road near the lake.

Guard Signed

VANCOUVER (UPI) — The B.C. Lions of the Western Football Conference announced the signing today of Canadian offensive guard Ray Lychak and import linebacker Benny Rapp.

Lychak, from San Jose State, is 22 years old, stand 6' 1" and weighs 240. He was born in Prince Albert, Sask. At San Jose, he was a three-year letterman and for the past two years a member of the varsity team. He was chosen the Spartans' most valuable lineman in 1965.

De Gaulle In Kremlin

MOSCOW (Reuters) — President Charles de Gaulle discussed European security and the German problem for three hours today at the start of talks in the Kremlin.

Leonid Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, swept diplomatic protocol aside to talk to the general face-to-face. Normally, as party leader, he does not take part in detailed negotiations with Western visitors.

A French spokesman said the first negotiating session since de Gaulle arrived Monday for an 11-day visit began with an opening statement by Brezhnev, followed by a statement from the French leader.

As they broke up, both de Gaulle and Brezhnev stressed the considerable importance of close consultation between France and Russia, the spokesman said.

The spokesman said de Gaulle told the Russians that his journey to Moscow, his first for 22 years, was in itself a tangible manifestation of France's desire for East - West consultations.

SET EXAMPLE

De Gaulle was quoted as saying that negotiations between countries of West and East were a good thing and that the example should be followed by other European nations, namely that West Germany should have such talks with the Soviet Union.

Russia's leaders were reported to have stressed the desirability of contacts between European nations and France.

Few details of the discussions were released, but the French delegation said the entire morning was taken up by European security and the German problem.

Normally talks with Western visitors are conducted by Premier Alexei Kosygin or President Nikolai Podgorny. Today both took back seats to Brezhnev.

The party leader took complete charge as soon as he strode in at the head of the Soviet delegation to greet the

Nun's Body Studied For Miracle

MADRID (Reuters) — The body of a Roman Catholic nun who died 342 years ago is being medically examined here because of a legend that says it has remained undecayed through the centuries by a miracle.

The body, about four feet, six inches tall, has been on public display in a chapel since Friday—the face covered by a thin veil and only the shrivelled, dark brown hands and feet showing from beneath a white shroud

Thousands of persons have filed into the chapel to view the body of the Blessed Mariana of Jesus, who was mother superior of the convent of Don Juan de Alarcon in central Madrid.

An official medical report, expected to be made public sometime this week, was being prepared to find out whether a miracle has occurred.

NEW VIET WAR PEACE DRIVE

MANSFIELD BACKS U THANT

THANT
. . . would halt bombing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called on UN Secretary-General U Thant today to take the lead in a new effort to arrange Viet Nam peace talks.

Mansfield said he believes a three-point plan renewed by U Thant at a United Nations press conference Monday would get "every consideration from President Johnson" if there was some sign the Communists might accept it.

Thant proposed a cessation of U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam, scaling down of military operations by both sides and a willingness on the part of all concerned to enter discussions with all participants in the fighting. However, Senator Gale W. McGee (Dem., Wyo.), a strong supporter of Johnson's Viet Nam course, said in a separate interview he thinks Thant's proposal has "a hollow ring to it."

"We've tried stopping the bombing before and it didn't invite any response," McGee said. "On the contrary, the enemy used the lull to intnestify their efforts."

UN Chief Will Visit Moscow

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—UN Secretary-General U Thant plans to visit Moscow later this summer, diplomatic sources reported today. The Viet Nam conflict, which he described Monday as "one of the most barbarous in history," is expected to be a major topic in his talks with Soviet leaders.

Informed quarters said Thant received an invitation some time ago to visit Moscow and he has recently accepted it. The time of the visit is understood to be under discussion.

He mentioned no plans to go to Moscow, but word began to circulate later that such a visit is being arranged.

FASTING BUDDHIST

Extremist Arrested

SAIGON (AP)—Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's South Vietnamese soldiers seized the extremist Buddhist leader Thich Tri Quang in his hospital room in Hue today. The slight, robed monk walked out of the building on the 14th day of his hunger strike.

With the four-month Buddhist uprising crumbling under the military junta's firmness, Tri Quang's chief rival, the moderate Thich Tam Chau, appealed to Ky to "assure the life and liberty of the Venerable Tri Quang and all other monks who led the struggle" against the regime.

A police officer in Hue said that Tri Quang, 42, had been put in protective custody to shield him from the Viet Cong.

The government's action against the chief of the Buddhist struggle movement showed its confidence that it had all but smashed the militant Buddhist minority's campaign for an immediate restoration of civilian rule.

In Saigon, troops and police kept several hundred monks and their followers bottled up inside the Buddhist Institute for the fourth day despite their plea to the International Red Cross that they faced epidemic and starvation.

After four days of talks with Ky and other government leaders, Lord Walston, Britain's under secretary for foreign affairs, told newspapermen he foresaw a military victory for the allies within 12 months.

Lord Walston's prediction echoed one made by Ky on the first anniversary of his rule Sunday, but Walston added: "I cannot see a real building up of a peaceful democracy here for a very long time indeed."

He said the shooting and bombing "will slowly fade away" and the number of terrorist incidents gradualy decline. He said North Viet Nam had become convinced it could not win a military victory but he saw no imediate prospect that Hanoi would sue for peace.

On a strip of beach along the Mekong Delta south of Saigon, U.S. seamen unloaded 250 tons of Chinese-made arms and ammunition from a gun - running trawler intercepted Monday as Viet Cong sampans were about to pick up the cargo. U.S. military authorities said it was probably the biggest arms prize of the war.

The trawler, which bore no markings, was believed to have come from the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong. The crew fled with the guerrillas after a battle with U.S. Coast Guard cutters, planes and helicoters.

LED REBELLION

Tri Quang had led the Buddhist rebellion in the northern provinces and was a leader in agitation against previous governments, including the regime of the late president Ngo Dinh Diem. Some American officials think his ultimate objective is establishment of a Buddhist state that could make a deal with the Communists and expel the Americans.

He began the hunger strike June 8, when the rebellion began faltering, vowing to take only liquids until the United States withdrew its support of

Wilson Charges Reds Prolonging Ship Strike

By JIM ANDERSON

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson rocked Parliament and the striking seamen's union Monday with the charge that Britain's shipping strike is being prolonged by Communists who want to damage the nation.

. . . in critical mood

He didn't use the word "Communist" but there could be no mistake about the meaning of the carefully-chosen words in his statement to Parliament on the shipping strike, now in its fifth week.

He said a tightly-knit group of "politically-motivated men" had put pressure on "a select few" of the 48-member national executive of the seamen's union, who "in turn have been able to dominate the majority of that otherwise sturdy union."

Sources said later that the government did not believe any of the executive were Communists, but that a Communist group was meeting regularly and dictating strike policy to the executive with the threat that any show of weakness would mean defeat in union elections.

PLANS AIRLIFT

Wilson told Parliament: "This group holds views which failed to secure any representation in this House at the last election, but their backstage views have had effect."

He also said plans were being made for a Royal Air Force airlift to deliver important exports and carry backed-up mail to Northern Ireland. The Royal Navy would be used to get supplies to outlying islands.

The prime minister, who has been rebuffed by the seamen in his personal attempts to win a settlement, called William Hogarth, general secretary of the union, to a meeting at 10 Downing St.

Hogarth is believed to be a moderate, and Wilson is said to have urged him to take a stronger lead in the union executive.

Hogarth's only comment on the meeting and Wilson's statement was that it indicated a toughening attitude by the Labor government.

Militants among the seamen quickly rejected the charges and said it was the prime minister who was turning a strike over economic issues into a political struggle.

RED REPLIES

John Gollan, general secretary of the British Communist party, accused Wilson of "McCarthyite smears and innuendos" against leaders of the seamen's union.

In a statement after Wilson made his Commons speech, Gollan said the 36,000 - member Communist party opposes the government's wage - restraint policy as "a barefaced fraud" and blames Britain's economic difficulties on "crippling military expenditures at home and abroad."

The rest of Britain's trade union movement has largely sided with the government in calling on the seamen for a settlement. But chances of a serious split in the sailors' ranks seemed slight after votes Monday at six major ports supported the executive.

A secret ballot among the seamen has been suggested, but Wilson said it would be difficult. More than half the union's 63,000 members are still at sea in ships that won't be laid up until they reach British ports.

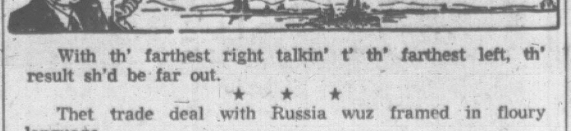
BITTER BATTLE RAGES FOR JUNGLE HIDEOUT

SAIGON (AP)—American paratroops smashed today into a jungle hideout in South Viet Nam where 500 Viet Cong guerrillas threw up a bitter defence from log bunkers and criss-cross tunnels.

At last report a pitched battle had been raging for 36 hours and 69 guerrillas were known killed.

Some 2,000 or more men of the 101st Airborne Division and the helicopter-borne 1st Cavalry Division were battling the Viet Cong in the jungle highlands of Phu Yen province, about 15 miles north of the American coastal enclave at Tuy Hoa.

It was the second major action for the 101st Airborne in two weeks. From June 7 to June 14 the paratroops battled North Viet Nam's 24th Regiment on the Kontum plateau, 120 miles northwest of Tuy Hoa, and estimated they killed more than 1,000 of the 1,400 to 2,000 troops opposing them.



With th' farthest right talkin' t' th' farthest left, th' result sh'd be far out.

Walkout Stalls Rail Loadings

MONTREAL (CP) — The movement of freight from the Montreal's waterfront sheds to railway cars remained stalled today, as some 600 freight handlers employed by the CPR and CNR continued their strike.

A group of men showed up for work early today, but when the usual muster roll didn't take place, they left for a nearby union hall.

The latest walkout on Montreal waterfront started the day after 4,250 longshoremen here and in two other Quebec ports—Trois-Rivieres and Quebec city—had returned to work after a 39-day strike.

The latest dispute arose when the railway freight handlers demanded a new contract which would guarantee them payment of time-and-a-half rates after 7 p.m. weekdays and all day Saturday with double time being paid for Sunday work.

Under their current agreement the railway workers receive time-and-a-half rates for overtime work during the day and a 27-cent hourly shift differential for night work.

Overtime work for the railway employees has become a necessity in an effort to clear the huge backlog of cargo which arrived during the longshoremen's walkout.

Normally the railways employ 40 gangs of 32 workers each on duty at one time, but this number has been greatly increased to handle the excess cargo.

Sleepy Linda Irritates Cameramen

MADRID (Reuters) — Angry Spanish photographers caused a furore in front of the Spanish royal palace today while waiting for President Johnson's eldest daughter to arrive. But Lynda Bird Johnson slept through the whole thing.

The shouting photographers laid down their cameras in protest after being told by an official of the palace that they could not go inside.

Lynda, who arrived in Madrid shortly after dawn for a vacation in Spain, was too worn out to appear. A spokesman for the U.S. embassy said she was sleeping in her room at the ambassador's residence.

Earlier, at Madrid's airport, she had said with a broad smile, in answer to a reporter's question, that she had no marriage plans. Her constant boy friend in the U.S. is movie actor George Hamilton.

U.S. GRABS BAIL BOND OF MINING MAGNATE

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—A $10,000 bail bond posted on behalf of Canadian mining magnate John Christopher Doyle was seized by the U.S. government Monday, since Doyle has failed to serve his prison sentence.

Doyle was supposed to appear in U.S. District Court last July 15, nearly a year ago, to be taken into custody. He had been sentenced to three years, sentence to be suspended after three months, for sending unregistered stock of Canadian Javelin Limited, a Newfoundland iron ore firm, through the U.S. mails.

The violation is not an extraditable offence, and no action can be taken against Doyle as long as he stays outside the United States.

'NO CAUSE FOR ALARM' FRANCE ASSURES CANADA

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA —There should be no cause for alarm among the western allies over General de Gaulle's visit to Moscow, Canada's secretary of state for external affairs Hon. Paul Martin was assured at the Brussels NATO meeting by French spokesmen.

The Canadian government was somewhat concerned over the scheduled visit by the French president. Mr. Martin while in Brussels took the opportunity to sound out his good friend the French Foreign Minister Couve De Murville. He was reassured by these conversations, it was learned here today.

The Canadian minister is on the record as stating that he believes improvement in East-West relationships should be done in consultation. He made clear that in taking this position Canada is not meaning to imply any criticism of General de Gaulle's visit to Moscow at this time. Any head of government has the right of going to other capitals, including the Soviet Union and many of them have exercised that right.

However the Canadian government is hoping that whatever positions are taken by General de Gaulle in Moscow they will be positions that are not inconsistent with the general interests of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The Canadian government was advised that it should not be apprehensive over the talks. There will be conversations for example regarding greater exchanges between France and Russia in the cultural fields and discussions on space technology.

France and Russia are already in agreement on two objectives. They both want to remove American influence from Europe and they both would like to maintain Germany in a relatively weak and non-nuclear role among the defence forces on the continent.

The Canadian government is determined to have France continue to play an important role within NATO.

Prime Minister Pearson in his important policy speech at Springfield, Illinois, voiced sympathy with General de Gaulle's objections to NATO in its present form. At the same time Mr. Pearson criticized the French president's decision to withdraw from the integrated military command of NATO.

Mr. Pearson by his words and by implication supported President de Gaulle's contention that the dominating role of the United States over the European nations when NATO was set up was no longer justified under present day circumstances. France he said was not alone in feeling that Europe was strong enough to be given its rightful share in the control of the policies of the alliance.

The Canadian prime minister cautioned against other western states denouncing President de Gaulle because the French leader was demanding a position for France in the alliance equal to that of Britain and somewhat closer to that of the United States.

JET BOMBERS IN MID-AIR CRASH

Flaming Death Hits Homes

HAMPTON, Va. (AP)—A U.S. Marine Corps bomber, aflame colliding with another jet, hurtled into a suburban neighborhood of small frame homes Monday night, all but devastating a three-block area. The other plane fell harmlessly into Chesapeake Bay.

There were conflicting reports on how many residents were killed, ranging from two or three to eight. Forty were injured and 11 remained in hospital.

Six to eight of the modest, two-bedroom homes were demolished and an estimated 20 others damaged to some degree in the housing development near Buckroe Beach, a summer playground on the bay.

The two-seater A-6 Intruder attack bomber plowed into the development from the south at 8:57 p.m. Seconds earlier, it had collided at 400 miles an hour with another Intruder at 2,000 feet.

All of the four marines aboard the two aircraft ejected safely and landed near the second bomber in Chesapeake Bay off Norfolk. Three were picked up by a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter, the fourth by a private boat.

MISS CENTRE

The crash occurred not far from the big Fordham shopping centre and the homes of many air force and army men from nearby Langley Air Force Base and Fort Monroe.

Witneses said the aircraft came down at a 45-degree angle just off Sergeant Street, where its engine buried itself in a deep crater.

The wings and portions of the flaming fuselage continued on—with parts of the fuel tanks—for two blocks, mowing down homes as they went and setting some of them on fire. Bits of the plane were found 15 blocks away at the shopping centre, where a wheel plunged through the roof of a bowling alley and injured three persons.

The marine bombers, out of Cherry Point, N.C., were en route to Patuxent River, Md., and had left their Cherry Point base at 6:30 p.m. The Fleet Marine Force Atlantic said it had no immediate explanation for the collision and that the planes were on a routine weather mission.

'Second-Best' Effort, Says Grit Leader'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ray Perrault, provincial Liberal leader, Monday described the government's voter registration campaign now being publicized as a "second-best effort" and said B.C. urgently needs a complete house-to-house emuneration.

Nothing less, he said in a statement, would make certain that all those entitled to vote were registered.

He said almost 500,000 people have moved to B.C. in the last 10 years. In addition "we are in the vacation season when thousands of people will be absent from their places of residence and unaware of the need to register voluntarily."

"By itself a publicity campaign directed to those not on the present outmoded voters list cannot result in satisfactory voter registration throughout the province."

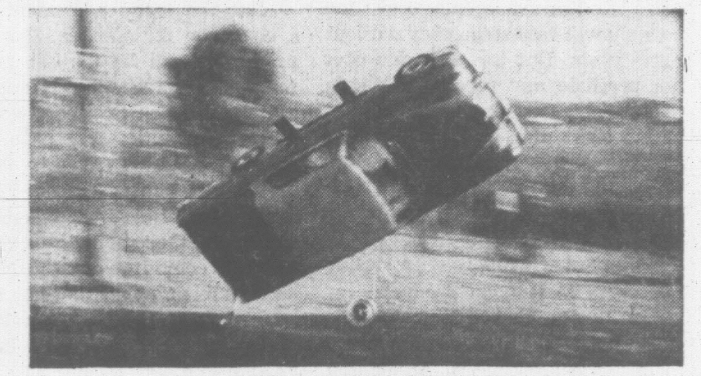
TEST: Car hits ramp at 50 mph . . .



. . . flips upside down . . .

. . . crunches onto its roof . . .

. . . ends up intact.

Mercedes-Benz and safety: a story of rigid roofs, folding ends, swinging axles, $44 tires and $15 locks.

SAFETY? Consider the Mercedes-Benz 230S. If we shaved a few inches off the roofline, prettied up the dashboard and steering wheel, and softened the seats, the car would certainly have more showroom appeal.

But such changes affect safety—and our engineers will not yield on these matters.

SAFE AT SPEED: Mercedes-Benz refuse to install sofa-soft springs that compromise safe roadholding. Any Mercedes-Benz can be driven around a racing circuit flat out, in utter safety.

There's no need to substitute "heavy duty" parts, either; all parts are "heavy duty". (Tires on the 230S, for example, cost $44 each.)

ROADHOLDING: The unique Mercedes-Benz low-pivot swing axle started life in a world champion racing car. Its virtues will become instantly apparent the first time you are forced to swerve abruptly, brake savagely or corner quickly.

BRAKES: Among experts, Mercedes-Benz cars are renowned for their stopping power. The reason? Impeccable engineering from the ground up—tires, suspension system, weight distribution.

The brakes themselves (disc up front, huge drums at the rear) would stop a car of twice the weight. Front and rear brakes have separate systems (if one set fails, you still stop).

HIGHWAY FATIGUE ITEMS: Most car buyers plump for soft seats. Mercedes-Benz seats are undeniably firm.

A liability in the showroom, these seats are a blessing on the highway. Orthopedic surgeons designed them to give firm support to the knees, shoulders, back and bottom. They keep you fresh, alert—and superbly comfortable.

In a Mercedes-Benz, instruments are placed where they can be seen at a glance. They are legible; they are shrouded to kill glare. All to reduce eyestrain.

Fresh air is constantly circulated, and stale air exhausted, to stave off drowsiness. Even tiny harmonic vibrations, inaudible and unfelt, are tuned out, since they dull the senses.

APPEARANCE: Styling purists say the 230S sits too high. Mercedes-Benz retorts that the driver sits high, with a commanding view of the highway. He can also see all four corners of the car without craning.

The 230S steering wheel is indelicate, too. But decidedly functional. Smaller, thinner wheels are less comfortable to grip. And more tiring.

FOLDING ENDS: In a head-on crash, the front end of a Mercedes-Benz will fold. It will act as a shock absorber, to cushion impact. If you are hit from the rear, the back end will crumple.

Tests show that up to nine tenths of the force of impact is dissipated by this patented "folding body" system.

Between the shock-absorbing ends is an incredibly strong passenger area. Roof supports, for example, are built with the strength of a roll bar on a racing car. (The pictures above were taken during a test of this principle.)

CAREFUL PACKAGING: In a Mercedes-Benz anything that can cause injury is either recessed, flexible, generously padded, or made of special soft metal.

The windshield will pop out in a crash, away from the occupants. The rear-view mirror is spring-mounted. Impacts over 16 lbs. spring it loose.

One thing won't give way, though—the door locks. Their safety-cone design stops the doors from springing open during a crash. These locks cost $15 each.

Nobody sees or admires $60 worth of locks. They are simply part of the hidden value in a Mercedes-Benz.

Come in and drive one soon.
